RETIREMENT CLAUSES STAY

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Modified in several important particulars the Administration Currency bill was introduced in both branches of Congress today. Senator Owen introduced the measure in the Senate while Representative Glass did so in the House. Arrangements were made for printing 25,000 additional copies of the bill, and the House adopted a resolution authorizing the Glass committee to use $5,000 of the contingent fund to employ expert mathematicians to aid the committee.

While several changes were made in the bill, as introduced to-day, the more important were these:

First—Sections 18, 19, and 20, which were in the original bill and afterward eliminated, have been restored, so that the bill now provides for the retirement of the present national bank note circulating currency within twenty years at the rate of 5 per cent. a year, and the refunding of the United States Government 2 per cent. bonds into 3 per cent. bonds.

Second—The Federal Reserve Board is to be allowed to permit 5 per cent. of the 15 per cent. reserve required of the country banks to consist of balances on deposit with any bank in a reserve or central reserve city as defined by law.

Third—The limitation of $500,000,000 upon the amount of the Federal reserve treasury notes proposed to be issued under the measure has been raised so that, as the bill now stands, this note issue must not exceed $500,000,000 plus the difference between the total amount of national banknotes outstanding at any given moment and the amount of such notes outstanding at the passage of the act.

Fourth—The Federal reserve banks are to establish each week, or as much oftener as required, subject to review and determination of the Federal Reserve Board, a minimum rate of discount to be charged by such bank for each class of commercial paper, which shall be with a view to accommodating the commerce of the country and promoting a stable price level, and the original proposal to vest the Federal Reserve Board with the authority and power to establish the discount rate has been stricken from the measure.

Fifth—In various ways the power of the Federal Reserve Board of seven members, wherein the banks are to have no representation whatever, is broadened and strengthened.

Sixth—The Federal reserve banks are authorized to buy and sell cable transfers, a privilege not accorded in the original draft of the measure.

Seventh—The Federal reserve banks, whenever they pay out or disburse Federal reserve treasury notes of the new issue, are to be required to "segregate" in their own vaults "and shall carry to a special account" on the books of such bank gold or lawful money equal to 33⅓ per cent. of the Treasury notes so paid out by the bank.

Eighth—Member banks of the new Federal reserve system will be allowed to accept drafts or bills of exchange—having not more than six months' sight to run—growing out of transactions involving importation and exportation, but not involving the issue of travelers' letters of credit.

Bankers Ignored.

The introduction of the bill without any modification of its prohibition against banks being represented on the Federal Reserve Board shows that the bankers' appeals to the President and to the joint authors of the bill have fallen on deaf ears. President Wilson is determined that the bankers shall have no representation on this board.

The board is to be composed of seven members, including the Secretary of the Treasury, the Secretary of Agriculture, the Controller of the Currency, and four other members to be chosen by the President by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. The bill requires only one of these four outside appointees to be a person experienced in banking. Thus the board retains its political complexion, since it is to be composed of political appointees entirely.

The four bankers who saw the President, Secretary McAdoo and Chairmen Glass and Owen yesterday, urged the President to give the banks some representation on the board. These bankers—Messrs. Festus J. Wade of St. Louis, George M. Reynolds of Chicago, John Perrin of Los Angeles, and Sol Wexler of New Orleans—urged the President to increase the size of this board from seven to eleven members, the four additional members to be chosen from among twelve names to be submitted to the President by the twelve regional reserve banks. Not only did the President reject this suggestion, but various changes made in the text of the measure tightened the grip which the Federal Reserve Board will have upon the new banking system.

Probably the most striking change made in the bill is the restoration of the three sections providing for the retirement of the national bank bond-secured circulating notes and the refunding of the 2 per cent. bonds behind them into threes. Not a change, not even the striking out of a comma, has been made in these three sections as they appeared in the original bill.

These sections were restored because it was apparent to the authors of the measure that the bill would have great opposition in the banking world and very little support among bankers unless the 2 per cent. bonds were protected. Regardless of whether the national banknote circulating currency is retired, it is pointed out by men qualified to know that the issuance of the proposed $500,000,000 or more worth of Federal reserve Treasury notes would have a serious effect upon the market value of the 2 per cent. bonds, unless these bonds were protected by refunding or otherwise.

The bankers who saw the President yesterday suggested that it would be unwise to fix an arbitrary limit of $500,000,000 as the amount of the new Federal reserve Treasury note issue. Although the full amount might not be taken out by the banks, it was suggested to the President that the size of this issue should be fixed by the demands of the commerce of the country. These arguments impressed the President, Secretary McAdoo, and Messrs. Owen and Glass, who already had been considering the wisdom of removing the arbitrary limit of $500,000,000.

Change in Reserve Limit.

The way the opening sentence of Section 17 read in the bill as given out last Thursday night was:

"That an issue of Federal reserve Treasury notes not to exceed $500,000,000 is hereby authorized."

In the bill as introduced to-day this sentence has been modified to read as follows:

> That an issue of Federal reserve Treasury notes not to exceed $500,000,000 and in addition thereto a sum equal to the difference between the total amount of the national banknotes outstanding at any given moment and the amount of such notes outstanding at the passage of this act, is hereby authorized.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, June 26.—F. E. Rush, H. A. Miller, and I. C. Fox, the appraisers who came to Europe from New York to value the European estate of J. Pierpont Morgan, left Queenstown on the Olympic to-day. Mr. Rush represented the customs authorities. The appraisers spent some time in London, Paris, and Berlin appraising property there.

They have apparently come to an agreement as to what the property is worth for duty purposes in the United States; for, although it is situated in Europe, the representatives of the Morgan estate must pay duty on it in America.

In all, the European estate probably represents $15,000,000 in real and personal property. The art works alone, which are not included in this valuation, apart from other art works in America, represent something like $12,000,000; but under the provisions of the will they do not become assessable for duty, as does the other property.

Mr. Nathan, sent by the United States Government to England in 1912, when the announcement of the removal of the Morgan art treasures to America was made, to assess their value, estimated them at $50,000,000. Many of them have since been brought to this country.

OSLER'S PLEA FOR THE RICH.

No Hospitals for Them in England —The British "Pigheaded."

LONDON, June 26.—"Give up the voluntary system of hospitals; it is antiquated," said Sir William Osler in his Presidential address to-day at the annual conference of the British Hospitals Association at Oxford.

Sir William was contrasting the methods of American and Colonial Hospitals with those of English institutions, and said there was a striking contrast between the American and British hospitals. In fact, in England everything was done for the poor and nothing whatever for the poor rich, who were the most neglected people in the country.

"You are hopelessly behind the times," said Sir William. "You have got to reform and rearrange your ideas, because many of you are pigheaded, obstinate, and hopelessly ignorant on this question."

NEW MENINGITIS CURE.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, June 26.—The recovery of an eleven-year-old girl, Charlotte Walsh, who was supposed to be dying of cerebro-spinal meningitis at Franklin Square Hospital, by means of a remedy never before used for this disease, has astonished medical circles here. She was admitted two weeks ago.

"Her temperature was then 105, and her condition critical in the extreme," Dr. L. S. Horka, the resident physician, said. "To-day she sat up, and should be well enough to leave soon."

"And how was the cure effected?"

"By four injections of a solution of carbolic acid. The needle was run into the muscles, not as usual, into the veins, or under the skin. The treatment has been used by us for tetanus, and successfully at least in nine cases; but never before, to my knowledge, has it been tried in cerebro-spinal meningitis.

"After the first use of the needle there was a slight drop in her temperature. After the next it fell more; then sank to normal."

As a part of the city's celebration of the Fourth of July it was decided yesterday to revive the old custom of ringing the city's bells on that day. The Mayor's Fourth of July Committee recommended that he should request that the chimes and church bells of the city should be rung for a short time beginning at 8 A. M. on the Fourth, "as an expression of the spirit of jubilation and as a revival in modified form of an old-time custom." The Mayor gave his permission in this letter.

> Dear Mr. Hall: The suggestion of the Executive Committee of the Fourth of July Committee that the bells of the churches and other bells be rung between 8 and 9 o'clock in the morning on Independence Day, for all or some part of that hour, is a good one, and I leave it to you to request them to do so. You may use this letter if you see fit. Some people hate to hear bells, but their number is very few. The bell has always been a source of solace, of joy, and is as much now as it ever was. I hope they will be rung in the morning of next Independence Day. Sincerely yours,
>
> W. J. GAYNOR, Mayor.

> Dr. Edward Hagaman Hall.

Dr. Hall explained that the old custom referred to was revealed in the proceedings of the Common Council in the days after the War of Independence.

INSURANCE MAN INDICTED.

Titus Is Said to Have Defrauded His Company of $10,000.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 26.—William L. Titus, head of the investment department of the Western branch of the Continental Insurance Company of New York, with headquarters in this city, was indicted by the Grand Jury to-day on three charges of operating a confidence game.

The defendant is alleged to have obtained approximately $10,000 through a systematic swindle. According to evidence submitted to the Grand Jurors, Titus would report a fire loss, submit proof of it, adjust it himself, make out a draft, and, cashing it, appropriate the money to his own use.

The defendant had been a trusted employe of the company for twenty years. He was arrested at his office to-day and subsequently released on bail of $7,500.

M'NAB DID WARN M'REYNOLDS EARLY

Attorney General Told on May 21 of Talk of Political Pull to Stop Caminetti Case.

McNAB WIRES THE TIMES

By Telegraph to the Editor of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26.—In answer to your wire of June 26:

The Attorney General wired me on May 16 asking for a report on the Caminetti-Diggs cases. There are three indictments, one for conspiracy against Diggs and Caminetti and one each for direct violation of the White Slave act against M. Diggs and D. Caminetti.

On May 21 I forwarded a complete report, showing the aggravated offense, warning the Attorney General that it was being openly charged that political influence would stop the cases and that the prosecution would be "fixed," and demanding instructions by wire to proceed. On May 27 the Attorney General said to proceed. On June 3 I wrote to the Attorney General, referring to repeated telegraphic requests for postponement by Senator Caminetti:

> I feel it my duty, in view of the repeated telegrams, to state that I believe your direction wired to me is the only proper course to pursue. I have no hesitancy in saying that the Government's case will be impaired by a long delay. Witnesses whom it is material the Government should use may not be available if postponement be granted; evidence at hand may be difficult to secure later. Furthermore, I have written to Caminetti with the utmost candor and frankness, informing him of the condition of the public mind and saying to him that both he and this office will be subjected to the bitterest public criticism if the cases again be postponed.
> I think the good of the service demands that I proceed. I am forced to the conclusion by my knowledge of the case that another postponement will make it increasingly more difficult for the Government to proceed.

On May 20, on my behalf, C. K. McClatchy, editor of The Sacramento Bee, wired to Secretary of the Interior Lane a missive for the Attorney General—and the telegram was delivered to the Attorney General—bitterly protesting against further postponements, as follows:

> Strong intimation from certain leading Democrats that a systematic effort is being made with the authorities at Washington to have the white slave cases against Diggs and Caminetti dropped and postponed for the weakening of the prosecution. It would be an infamous outrage if this were accomplished. It would be a reproach to any Department of Justice which would permit this or even acquiesce therein. It would say to the people of California that there is one law for wretches without friends and a totally different law for wretches with political pull, and it would provoke universal contempt for all law in this section of California.

Senator Caminetti wired me on June 1 requesting a postponement. I refused. He had written to me on May 28, demanding a postponement. I refused. On May 27 I wrote to Commissioner of Immigration (formerly State Senator) Caminetti:

> Your well-known political prominence has already brought forth suggestions that the case has been continued for political reasons. I can conceive no good that can be accomplished by delaying trial.

On May 28 I wrote to the Attorney General that "the comment has been freely indulged in that unlimited influence would be brought to bear at Washington either to indefinitely defer the cases, if not to dismiss them," and protested against any further continuance. On June 18 the Attorney General, over my protest, wired ordering the cases postponed until Autumn.

All the files in this office show the above facts.

JOHN L. McNAB.

MANN EXCORIATES WILSON.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Taking as his text the McNab-McReynolds controversy over the Caminetti-Diggs white slave cases in California and the subsequent course of the Administration in dealing with that matter, James R. Mann, the minority leader, in a speech in the House to-day severely criticised President Wilson, Attorney General McReynolds, and Commissioner General of Immigration Anthony Caminetti; praised the course of District Attorney McNab as one of great courage and manliness, and accused the Administration of injustice and hypocrisy. Mr. Mann said the President and the Attorney General had acted like "frightened rabbits."

"When we find," said Mr. Mann, "the chief law officer of the country and the Chief Magistrate of the nation have permitted themselves to be used to prevent the enforcement of a great moral reform law like this, we have a right to make inquiries."

> In the Caminetti-Diggs case and the Western Fuel Company case the Attorney General has retained Thomas E. Hayden of San Francisco, formerly President of the Board of Education of that city. The Attorney General has not definitely determined who else will be retained, but he is considering the names of several prominent California attorneys.

For some reason, unexplained, it was decided not to ask Francis J. Heney, the San Francisco graft prosecutor, to serve as one of the special counsel to prosecute in these cases. The President and the Attorney General are anxious to obtain Matt Sullivan of San Francisco as Mr. Hayden's associate. Mr. Sullivan took a prominent part in the prosecution of Abe Ruef after Mr. Heney had been shot down in the courtroom.

The action of A. Bruce Bielaski, Chief of the Bureau of Criminal Investigation in the Department of Justice, in suspending Clayton Herrington, the special agent of the department at San Francisco, who worked up the evidence in the Diggs-Caminetti case, was taken without the knowledge of President Wilson. Mr. Bielaski sent the order of suspension by direction of Attorney General McReynolds. Mr. Herrington was suspended for insubordination because he sent a telegram to President Wilson demanding the removal of the Attorney General.

Denounces Elder Caminetti.

Reviewing the correspondence in the case, Mr. Mann said in part:

"Caminetti's father has been appointed Commissioner General of Immigration, one of the duties of which office is to enforce both the Mann and Bennett white slave laws in reference to the deportation of aliens brought here for immoral purposes—a fine man to place in that position, whose principle object is to leave his office in order to go to the side of his twenty-seven-year-

REBUKE LED HELEN M'CARTHY TO LEAVE

Helen McCarthy, the 16-year-old daughter of John A. McCarthy of 112 West Seventy-second Street, who disappeared from her home last Tuesday morning, was found yesterday afternoon in Fort Washington Park. The girl, who looks several years younger than she is, was exhausted, and was able to tell little about her wanderings during the two days she had been away from her home. She was found by two young men who thought they recognized her as the missing girl, and so reported to Mounted Policeman Richard Holt, who led the heavy-eyed, tired girl to the West 179th Street Police Station, where she was later reclaimed and taken home by her father.

The finding of the girl followed a forty-eight-hour search by the police.

It was about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon when two young men, who were passing the afternoon in the park, noticed a girl in short dresses. The young men were Joseph Daley of 542 West 148th Street and Frank Brophy of 746 St. Nicholas Avenue. Both had been reading the story of Helen McCarthy's disappearance in the papers and they immediately thought of the girl when they saw the diminutive figure in pink approaching them.

Just in advance of the girl walked a small boy in knickerbockers. The girl appeared to be following the lad and when he reached where they were seated the young men asked him who the girl was.

"I don't know," the boy answered. "I asked her but she did not tell me. She said she was tired and lonely and asked me to let her walk with me."

A moment later the girl came up. It was apparent that she was almost exhausted. Brophy and Daley spoke to the girl and asked her what her name was.

"Where do you live?" asked Daley.

"Over in New Jersey. My people have gone away, and I have forgotten where we live," Helen answered slowly.

"Are you sure it's New Jersey where you live?" Brophy asked her, and the girl nodded. She said she had crossed to the New York side in a ferryboat. Later, however, she changed her mind about having come from New Jersey, and said that she had come from Albany. It was in Albany that her uncle, the late Right Rev. Frederick W. Hooker, Roman Catholic Bishop of Albany, lived.

Tried to Hide a Ring.

Convinced that the girl was Helen McCarthy the young men called Policeman Holt. Holt noticed that the girl was trying to remove a ring from her finger. It was a signet ring that had belonged to her sister who died three years ago. He remembered that in the police description it was stated that she wore a signet ring engraved with the initials, "M. McC."

At that moment Inspector George F. Titus came along in a police automobile. Titus recognized the girl at once and told Holt to take her to the station. Later Titus questioned her. The account of her wanderings was not very clear, but there seems little doubt that she spent two nights and the most of two days in the park.

Mr. McCarthy, the father of the girl, had told the police that he was certain she was penniless when she left home. He also described her as a girl who, dspite her 16 years, had the brain of a child of 6. In response to police questions he said also that on the morning of her disappearance he had rebuked her for ordering a breakfast that was not in keeping with his instructions.

The police found that Helen was not penniless. She had a silver mesh bag in which was 95 cents. She told Inspector Titus that she had about $3 when she left home. The police also found two cards in the bag. Inspector Titus tried to get the child to admit that she was Helen McCarthy, but for a long time she insisted that she was "Patty White." Finally she admitted that the Inspector was right. Then she told him about wandering in the park. She said she had very little sleep.

"I did sleep a little on a street car," she said, "but I did not know where the car was going."

Identified by Her Father.

Mr. McCarthy arrived about 5 o'clock and found his daughter in a chair in the Captain's room. Inspector Titus had sent for Dr. Schaub of Washington Heights to examine the girl. Dr. Schaub said afterward that she was suffering from exhaustion only and that she would be all right in a day or two.

Miss Helen, after a sleep of several hours, told last night a more detailed story of her wanderings. She said that she had left home because she felt hurt because of the reproof her father had administered, and that she had gone first to Central Park, where she had remained most of Tuesday morning. In the afternoon, she said, she tried to get work as a servant. Then she thought about selling newspapers, but she could not find a way to gratify that ambition, so finally she decided to go to the home of a friend in St. Nicholas Avenue, but when she got there the house was closed.

Then she "walked and walked," she said, and finally landed in Fort Washington Park.

ROCKAWAY GIRLS MISSING.

Two girls, 15 years old, disappeared from their homes in Rockaway Beach early this week and a general alarm was sent out for them yesterday by their parents. The first to disappear was Isabel Gans, a nurse in the employ of Mrs. M. Nathan, in the Rockaway Beach Hotel. She left her place last Sunday morning, giving the impression she was going to visit her mother, who lives in East Twenty-third Street, Manhattan. The visit home was not made, and the mother notified the police after getting into communication with Mrs. Nathan.

Rose Wagner left her home, 35 Dodge Avenue, on Tuesday morning, after refusing to do housework her mother had given to her. When last seen she was standing on the front porch. She had attended a public school, and when it closed she helped her mother in the care of the house. On Tuesday she said she was tired of working so much and confided to a girl friend that she was going away.

COHALAN'S FATE IN TAMMANY HANDS

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, June 26.—After a meeting of the Judiciary Committees of the Senate and Assembly to-day it was announced that the taking of testimony in the Cohalan investigation would not begin until July 8, the day the Legislature is to reconvene. Under a resolution adopted in both houses yesterday the committees must hold their opening session next Monday. This meeting, however, will be merely formal.

The general impression at the Capitol is that the trial will not result in the removal of Justice Cohalan. It is pointed out that the Hooker case, which furnishes the last precedent for the lawmakers who are to investigate the Cohalan charges, ended in acquittal. In the case of Judge Hooker, as in the Cohalan case, the complaint which formed the basis for the Executive inquiry had reference to actions alleged to have been committed by the Judge prior to his election to the bench.

It seems certain that the Cohalan case will be settled by the Legislature itself and not by the Judiciary Committees. On each of the committees there is a Tammany majority, but from statements made by members of the committees it is inferred that they are not willing to assume any responsibility beyond that involved in recommendations. Consequently, the Cohalan case will be "put up" to the Legislature.

To effect removal the charges must be sustained by a two-thirds majority in each house. After the Judiciary Committees report the first vote must be taken in the Assembly. Here 100 votes will be required to sustain the charges. Out of the total number of 150 members of the Assembly it is conceded that Tammany Hall controls at least 55. If this number of votes should be cast against the removal of Justice Cohalan in the Assembly it would be sufficient to bring about his acquittal. The lower house must sustain the charges before the case can be placed before the Senate for final vote. Thus, should there be any desire on the part of Tammany to shield the man who for years was the chief adviser of Charles F. Murphy, there would be nothing to prevent it.

The delay in the Cohalan investigation, according to Aaron J. Levy, minority leader of the Assembly, to whom was intrusted the preliminary work in connection with the investigation, is due to a request from Einar Chrystie, Secretary of the Bar Association, whose report will form the basis for the investigation. Mr. Levy said he had urged Howard Townsend Chairman of the Grievance Committee, and Justice Cohalan to attend the meeting of the Judiciary Committees on Monday.

"Mr. Chrystie, with whom I communicated by telephone, informed me that it would be impossible for the Grievance Committee to present its case on such short notice," said Mr. Levy. "It was in deference to that statement that the taking of testimony was postponed, and for no other reason."

The Senate Chamber will be pre-empted by the investigators. If the tentative plan arranged to-day is carried out it will be transformed into a courtroom by the removal of the Senators' desks.

All the parties directly interested in the investigation, that is, the Bar Association, John A. Connolly, who made the original charges, and Justice Cohalan himself, will be entitled to the services of counsel under the plan of procedure adopted yesterday by the Legislature. According to a report which reached the Capitol to-day Justice Cohalan has retained John B. Stanchfield as his counsel.

William D. Guthrie was selected yesterday to represent the Bar Association in presenting to the Legislature the findings of the Grievance Committee against Justice Cohalan. Mr. Guthrie is the Chairman of the Judiciary Committee of the Bar Association. He will be assisted by Einar Chrystie, counsel of the Grievance Committee, who already has gone into the charges.

He directs that $25,000 be kept in cash in bank for the use of executors in case of emergency. The will was made in 1911.

The late Mr. Trenor was at one time a dancing master in New York, and as such he gave lessons to Chauncey M. Depew and some of the Goulds and Vanderbilts.

VETERAN CORRECTS GAYNOR

Ex-Police Captain Lawrence J. Murphy, who was in charge of the Prospect Park Police Station in Brooklyn until May 18 last, called on Mayor Gaynor yesterday in reference to the Mayor's charge that a "dunderhead" and "old-timer" was responsible for locking up several boys in cells over night for playing ball in the park. The Mayor, in his statement about those boys, left no doubt that he placed a great deal of the blame for their incarceration on Murphy. Mr. Gaynor did not know when he made his statements that it was a young Captain, recently promoted by Commissioner Waldo, and not Murphy, who was in charge of the station when the boys were locked up.

When asked about ex-Capt. Murphy's visit, the Mayor said:

"Yes, ex-Police Capt. Murphy called to say that he was not at his desk when the thing happened, as he was away on his vacation. Nice old gentleman!"

Murphy retired from the force on June 6, after serving thirty-two years.

POWER OF PEERESS OVER MILLIONAIRE

SEEN EXAMINING A DESK

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 26.—The feature of the second day's hearing of the Sir John Murray Scott will case to-day was the reading by F. E. Smith, M. P., K. C., counsel for Donald Scott, who is contesting Sir John's will which left $5,000,000 to Lady Sackville, of letters exchanged by the testator and Lady Sackville covering the whole period of their twelve years' friendship.

Counsel suggested that the chief means by which Lady Sackville obtained and maintained her influence over Sir John was flattery. Some of Sir John's letters to Lady Sackville began "My dear old José," while she addressed him "Mon bon Seery"—a cryptic term unexplained in court.

One characteristic epistle read:

"My dear old José: I can never remain angry with you for long, you are such an old silly; so I forgive you all your shortcomings. Be rational and behave better in future." With this was a quotation from a love poem by Owen Meredith.

In one letter Lady Sackville said that J. Pierpont Morgan had telephoned to her three times, but she had told the servants to say she was out. She supposed Mr. Morgan wanted to show her some of his collections. She added with regard to another friend:

"I have no time for him to-day. I treat him like dear old Pierpont Morgan."

"Be a Good Seery."

In another letter, speaking of certain business in which she was interested—Lady Sackville is one of several titled Englishwomen who run shops in the West End—she wrote: "Please don't be jealous of the time I spend there. Be a good Seery and come to see me to-morrow."

Sir John did not go, for he died suddenly the next day at Hertford House. After his death a letter written some time before, to be given to Lady Sackville after his decease, reached her from Sir John's solicitor, Mr. Capron, who appears in the case to claim probate of the will and codicils. The letter began, "My dear little friend," and went on to say that the writer left Lady Sackville a goodly fortune as a fitting reward for the affectionate interest she had always shown in him.

Mr. Smith, in concluding his nine hours' speech, said the question was whether the testator at a vital and critical moment was in a position to give free play to his own wishes or whether he was so under the influence of Lady Sackville that the decisions he took were not his, but hers.

Sir John Scott, said counsel, was obviously a vain, weak man—"Every word he wrote proves how easily open he was to the very kind of influence that Lady Sackville was so admirably qualified to exercise. No doubt he did not move in what the world, in the cant expression, calls 'smart' or 'fashionable' society, but he was amiable and wealthy.

"Into the life of such a man Lady Sackville comes, with all her knowledge of the world, and with the fascinations of an accomplished woman, in the circumstances of all others which, if my reading of his character is well founded, would render it certain that, if she chose to do so, she would obtain ascendancy and domination over him."

Mr. Smith asked the jury to note how swiftly Lady Sackville's conversation passed from art collections to family troubles, and how strange a story, unmatched in the history of the English courts, it was that in so short a time pecuniary transactions of a character so astonishing should take place.

Tried to Free Himself.

Mr. Smith endeavored to show that Sir John in the later years of his life was in feeble health. His weight was 350 pounds. It was asserted that he made several efforts to break off relations with Lady Sackville and to revoke the bequests in her favor. Lady Sackville regained control over him, according to Mr. Smith, now by threatening to quarrel with him and now by addressing him in endearing terms.

Mr. Smith read a letter from Lady Sackville which, counsel suggested, was written after Sir John had drafted a codicil considerably reducing her benefits under his will. This draft was found in his house after his death, but, so far as can be learned, was never properly executed. A reward of $50,000 has been offered by Sir John Scott's relatives for a duly executed facsimile of this draft codicil.

Lady Sackville's letter, presumably, according to Mr. Smith, written after Sir John had informed her of this codicil, read as follows:

> I am very calm, although I cannot help feeling sorry about the final decision you have reached. It shows how little you care for me. If you treat me in that way I cannot trust you or your promises any more. You have changed my future life entirely.
> I shall play the game. Nobody will know that there is any difference, except that I shall take care to tell people when they talk about your fine things that they are not coming to me and that you never intended

MRS. MACKAY DIDN'T SAIL.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

There was a rumor in this city yesterday that Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay had sailed on the steamship La France, following the departure of her husband, who sailed on Wednesday with their three children on the Imperator. The report was due to the fact that trunks labeled "C. H. M." were seen on the pier of La France. Later it was ascertained that the trunks were the property of Charles H. Marshall.

SEARCH ME, SAYS WILSON.

Thus Denies Rumor He Would Ask Congress to Amend Trust Law.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—"Mr. President," said a newspaper man to President Wilson this afternoon, "it is reported that you are to ask Congress to amend the Sherman anti-trust law. Is that true?"

"You can search me," answered the President. "I never heard of it."

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, June 26.—The murderer of Charles E. Pendell, money lender and former bookmaker, who was found dead in his office yesterday, obtained at least $100,000 in diamonds and money, according to the police.

Pendell drew a box of diamonds from his safety deposit vault and put them in his office safe the day before the murder. When he was found dead the safe was open and the strong box empty. Pendell's pockets had been rifled.

David Parton and Edward Porter were arrested on suspicion to-day, but Parton was released later. Porter was held pending an inquiry as to his movements yesterday.

BARS SEX HYGIENE TALKS.

Chicago Board of Education Overrules Superintendent Young.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 26.—This city will have no sex hygiene classes in the high schools. Protests by the thousands against the proposed departure have been pouring in upon the members of the Board of Education, and that body, after much deliberation, has refused to ratify the action of the School Management Committee in instructing Superintendent Ella Flagg Young to introduce a course of lectures on the subject.

The President of the board also received telephone calls from hundreds of persons who were not in favor of the course and who did not believe in talks on personal purity.

Mrs. Young's report to the School Management Committee recommended specialists be engaged for the Fall term of 1913 to give simple but scientifically exact lectures on sex hygiene in twenty-one high schools.

WANTS COLONEL FOR MAYOR

Dougherty Tells Democrats He Would Vote for Roosevelt Gladly.

Mayoralty candidates were discussed last night at a meeting of the Democratic Union at the Hotel Astor. J. Hampden Dougherty, the principal speaker, said he had no particular candidate in mind, but that he thought Col. Roosevelt was the type of man needed, and that he would gladly support him if he would run. What the city needed, he said, was a business administration, and he asserted that the city would soon go into bankruptcy if the present methods of conducting its affairs were not changed.

Edward J. McGuire, who was active in the fight against Tammany two years ago, and who ran for President of the Aldermen on the refrom ticket in 1903, said he thought that District Attorney Whitman was the best candidate in sight.

BAGS FLY IN WATER JUMP.

Boy Fielder Falls Into River, but Holds Ball Until Saved.

Charlie Rocks is only 8 years old, but he took his position as left fielder pretty seriously yesterday, although it was only a game "the gang" was playing on the Hudson River front at the foot of West Ninety-seventh Street. Charlie was stationed just a few feet from the bulkhead. When a high fly went his way at a crucial stage of the game he thought of nothing but getting it into his mitt. He got it with a high jump, but he had backed to the edge of the bulkhead and he toppled into the river. But he kept a tight hold on the ball.

William Benia, 13, of 304 West Sixty-ninth Street, and James Reynolds, 11, of 228 West Sixty-seventh Street, went overboard after him and brought him to the bulkhead, where all three were pulled in by adult rescuers. The ball still stuck to Charlie's mitt. Dr. Pryor was called from the Polyclinic Hospital and fixed Charlie up so he could go to his home at 201 West End Avenue a hero.

Now the youngsters are arguing whether the batter was out or made a home run. One of the team knows a man who has a book of rules, and he is going to look it up.

ZOO HEALTHIER THAN JAIL.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 26.—The animals in the Zoo at Lincoln Park have more commodious and sanitary quarters and receive better attention at the hands of their keepers than the prisoners in the county jail, according to the charge made to-day by A. A. McCormick, President of the County Board. He made this observation after he and the County Commissioners, representatives of the Juvenile Protective Association, the United Jewish Charities, and other philanthropic organizations had inspected the prison.

The erection of a new county jail and criminal court building in a less congested portion of the city is proposed by President McCormick and his associates.

Lauterbach Tells Senators Why He Sought Employment in Railroad Dissolution.

TO CALL WALL STREET MEN

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The devious paths of the conspiracy to blackmail the Union Pacific Railroad into employing Edward Lauterbach as counsel at a heavy fee, as revealed to the Senate lobby investigating committee last night by Judge Robert S. Lovett, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Union Pacific, were traced still further to-night.

As a result of the absorbing testimony given to-day, the committee will probably call David Lamar, George F. Baker of the First National Bank of New York, Paul D. Cravath, Francis Lynde Stetson, Lewis Cass Ledyard, all New York attorneys, and Charles Steele of J. P. Morgan & Co.

Representative Daniel J. Riordan of New York denied under oath any knowledge of or participation in the conspiracy, and Edward Lauterbach gave voluntarily under oath his explanation of his connection with the matter. He went on to tell his relations with David Lamar, whose friendship had cost him his former affiliation with the Morgan interests.

When Mr. Lauterbach was excused at the end of the day, the committee adjourning without date, it was with the understanding that he might be recalled after the other New Yorkers had testified.

But the surprise of the evening came when Representative A. Mitchell Palmer of Pennsylvania, a member of the Ways and Means Committee, told how his name had been used in telephone conversations with Lewis Cass Ledyard of New York to further Mr. Lauterbach's candidacy for appointment as counsel in the Union Pacific dissolution proceedings. Mr. Palmer said that Mr. Ledyard, besides keeping him informed of every conversation with his impersonator, had made a careful investigation of the telephone calls and had finally convinced himself as to the person involved.

Mr. Ledyard will be asked to testify, and, according to Mr. Palmer, he will tell who it is whom he suspects of having impersonated Mr. Palmer. Mr. Palmer himself knows the name of the suspected man, but asked to be excused from telling as his knowledge came only from Mr. Ledyard, and even Mr. Ledyard's knowledge was based on a deduction. The impression was conveyed that Mr. Ledyard's investigations had led to the "one other individual" besides Mr. Lauterbach, whom, Judge Lovett said last night, he thought to be partly responsible for the blackmailing campaign pressed against the Union Pacific officials.

Made Appointment—Lauterbach Came.

It was from the impersonator of Mr. Palmer that the most sweeping offers to control legislation and the courts came. Nothing that Mr. Palmer said indicated that Mr. Lauterbach was directly mentioned by him.

Mr. Lauterbach's part in the whole affair came out when Mr. Ledyard, with Mr. Palmer's knowledge, insisted upon a personal interview with the man claiming to be the Pennsylvania Congressman. Then the impersonator made an appointment for a man whom he described as able to present proofs of his ability to do all he had promised. At the time appointed, Edward Lauterbach called at Mr. Ledyard's home.

There, said Mr. Palmer, Mr. Lauterbach urged Mr. Ledyard to come to Washington and meet certain members of Congress high in the councils of the majority. Mr. Palmer recalled that Mr. Ledyard had said that Speaker Clark and Chairman Underwood, the Democratic floor leader, were mentioned by Mr. Lauterbach as ready to assist in straightening things out to the satisfaction of the Union Pacific Railroad and its allies. This straightening out included the suppression of an attempt to reopen the money trust investigation and the withholding of a threatened investigation of other subjects close to the Union Pacific.

The control which Mr. Lauterbach promised to exercise extended, according to Mr. Palmer, not only to Congress but to the courts, though Mr. Lauterbach's claims to influence struck him as entirely ridiculous.

Certain prosecutions pending in the Spring, said Mr. Lauterbach, according to Mr. Palmer's version of what Mr. Ledyard had told him, would under the incoming Administration be molded to a satisfactory conclusion by Mr. Lauterbach's influence. According to Mr. Palmer, Mr. Lauterbach did not intimate that he could corrupt the majority, but said merely that certain of the majority leaders were anxious to obtain for their party the good will of the great financial interests allied with the Union Pacific and the Morgan group.

"The whole thing," said Mr. Palmer in concluding his testimony, with a laugh, "was an indefinite and crude performance, a half-baked attempt to do something improper, I don't know what."

A Surprise to Palmer.

Representative Palmer's testimony was in substance as follows:

"Mr. Chairman, I have seen in to-day's papers the statement made before your committee last night by Judge Lovett, in which he referred to the fact that members of Congress had been impersonated in telephone conversations with himself and with other men in New York City.

"In view of the turn which your investigation has taken by reason of Judge Lovett's testimony, I felt it my duty to acquaint you with an experience of my own of that kind, so that you might have the benefit of it, if you cared to pursue this branch of the investigation deeply. I can add a short chapter to this interesting question.

"Early in February last, while I was at my home in Pennsylvania, I was called to the telephone to answer what my clerk said was a call from New York. When I reached the telephone, a voice at the other end of the wire said, 'This is Mr. Ledyard.'

"I said, 'Who?'

"He said, 'Mr. Ledyard.'

"I told him, 'Spell it.'

"He spelled his name and said he was Lewis Cass Ledyard, and added: 'You ought to know, for you have been talking with me over the telephone.'

"I said: 'You are very much mistaken, Mr. Ledyard. So far as I know, I have never spoken a word to you in my life. I have never seen you; I have never spoken to you, directly or over the telephone, or had any communication with you. You will have to explain yourself a little further.'

"He then went on to say that if that was true there was a very strange and remarkable conspiracy afoot, in which my name had been used, and he then went on to tell me what was to me a very amazing story.

How Ledyard Was Called Up.

"He said that he had been called on the telephone a short time before that, perhaps a day or two, by a gentleman who, after some hesitation about giving his name, saying that he was a representative in Congress, finally said that he was Representative Palmer of Pennsylvania. This person told Mr. Ledyard that he was in a position, by reason of his membership in the House and his relation with prominent members, to be of service to interests which Mr. Ledyard represented, even going so far as to say, as I recall it, that he thought the money trust investigation report could be controlled, that various investigations, then proceeding, both in Congress and in the courts, affecting large financial interests in New York City, could be satisfactorily adjusted, and promising most amazing results of his efforts here in Washington.

"I can not undertake to give you all the details of the conversation between this person, who was alleging that he was Representative Palmer, and Mr. Ledyard, but it is sufficient to say that Mr. Ledyard detailed that conversation to me and that during the next two or three days he had perhaps a half dozen other telephone conversations with the same person, in which this person went into greater details about how and why he was in a position to grant legislative favors.

"After each of these telephone conversations that Mr. Ledyard had with this party over the wire in New York Mr. Ledyard called me on the telephone and repeated them to me, for the double purpose of having evidence at hand that it was an impersonation; that I was actually at that time many miles away from New York, and also to acquaint me with the proceeding, thinking that perhaps, as a member of the House, I ought to know about it.

Unknown Shied at Interview.

"Mr. Ledyard endeavored to get a personal interview with the man. He fought shy of that, saying, as I recollect it, that no good would be accomplished from a personal interview with him, but promised to see him later, and even went so far as to declare that in the next day or so he was obliged to be in Bethlehem, which is in my district, so that he could not meet Mr. Ledyard at an hour that Mr. Ledyard suggested for a conference.

"Mr. Ledyard, through the telephone company and I think through various other agencies, made a very earnest effort to locate the person who talked with him over the telephone. The best he could do was to trace the telephone calls, and he traced them to a place which satisfied him as to who the party was.

"If the committee wants to go into that further it seems to me Mr. Ledyard should be called, and I will leave it for him to say what he found out as to who this party was.

"Mr. Ledyard told me who he thought it was, based upon the information that he had obtained; but, as even he was not certain about it, I would prefer not to say who it was."

In a short executive session the committee decided not to force Mr. Palmer to name the man suspected by Mr. Ledyard. Mr. Palmer proceeded:

"This person, who declared that he was Representative Palmer, when Mr. Ledyard was unable to obtain a personal interview with him, declared that he would name a person in whom Mr. Ledyard would have confidence, and to whom he could talk freely, and who would be able to produce evidence that he and this alleged Representative Palmer would be able to do what they said.

"Those statements finally led to Mr. Ledyard's making an appointment to meet the gentleman whom this person named, and at the hour of the appointment there appeared at Mr. Ledyard's house Edward Lauterbach, a member of the bar of New York City, as I understand.

"Mr. Ledyard and Mr. Lauterbach had a long conversation about this matter, Mr. Lauterbach taking it up apparently from the thread which had been laid down by the pseudo Palmer over the telephone. Mr. Lauterbach declared that he spoke for several important gentlemen in the House of Representatives who were able to do the things which the person who had been telephoning to Mr. Ledyard said could be done, and when doubt was expressed by Mr. Ledyard as to the truth of such allegations, Mr. Lauterbach, as I recall it, urged Mr. Ledyard to come to Washington, or to meet elsewhere in person certain gentlemen high in the House organization, even going so far as to mention the name of the Speaker and the floor leader, and I think one or two other important members of the House.

"After this had been told to me I told Mr. Ledyard I did not see that I had any interest at all in the matter. It was an amazing proposition to me. I had never seen or heard of Mr. Lauterbach except in the most general way. I had never had any particular interest in any of these matters which it was said could be influenced or controlled, and therefore I said that I would prefer to have nothing further to do with the matter, and it was dropped."

What False Palmer Promised.

"Would you mind telling us more fully," said Senator Reed, "what this service was that the mythical Mr. Palmer was represented as being able to perform?"

"Well, Senator, that was repeated to me at such great length and in such detail by Mr. Ledyard, who, I think, made arrangements to have his conversation taken down in shorthand, so that he has a complete record of them, that I would not like to trust my memory to be accurate about it. But the proposition was apparently that the money trust investigators' report, which was then pending or then expected, would be shaped to suit certain large financial interests in New York City, and that certain prosecutions then in the courts would, if not then, under the incoming Administration be molded to suit the desires of these gentlemen.

"All of this apparently the gentleman who was talking with Mr. Ledyard, and, according to Mr. Ledyard, Mr. Lauterbach also, saying was not for any financial consideration of any kind, but the man who first spoke with Mr. Ledyard seemed to put it on the ground that the powers that be in the Democratic House were anxious that they should have the support of the interests in various things, that they were anxious to aid all these large interests, which otherwise would be offended by the result of these investigations and prosecutions, and that things were going to be controlled and fixed up in a way that possibly would win their support.

"Mr. Ledyard's letter to me is dated Feb. 11, and that was upon the breaking off of his communications with this person. They came to a breaking point, because they either had to accept the proposition to come to Washington and get in touch with these gentlemen in charge of legislation or drop it altogether, and they did not, of course, want to go any further with it.

"Mr. Ledyard seemed to be interested in it only for the purpose of uncovering the real purpose of some person who was attempting to do something which was improper."

At the committee's request Mr. Palmer produced a letter from Mr. Ledyard setting forth the substance of the telephone conversations.

Lauterbach "Voluntary" Witness.

When Mr. Lauterbach took the stand, the committee in the most pointed fashion made him state that he came voluntarily, Chairman Overman adding that the committee would not cross-examine him at this time, but would reserve the right to recall him for cross-examination after other witnesses had been heard. After Mr. Lauterbach had taken the oath he was made to repeat his statement that he came voluntarily.

In pursuing this course, it is thought that the committee, besides wishing to pave the way for a thorough investigation on its own account, wished to dispose absolutely of any question of immunity.

Particular significance was given to this attitude of the committee by the suggestion, pointedly made to Mr. Riordan during his testimony, that he might seek reparation for the use of his name in the courts of New York. Mr. Riordan promised to do what he could to punish his impersonator and his associates.

Mr. Lauterbach began with a detailed statement of his profession and political career, the cases in which he had been employed, the offices he had held, and the charities with which he had been connected. He mentioned the fact that as a delegate to the Republican National Convention that nominated President McKinley he had carried to the convention the gold plank, after it had been revised by J. Pierpont Morgan.

Mr. Morgan, Jacob Schiff, Otto H. Kahn, Mr. Harriman and many others were mentioned by Mr. Lauterbach as men with whom he had been closely associated and whose respect he thought he had always held. It was through the services he rendered Mr. Harriman in regard to completing his transcontinental chain of roads and through subsequent opposition to the Union Pacific-Southern Pacific merger that he won that insight into transportation, he said, which made him think he might be able to give valuable assistance in settling the dissolution proceedings.

Mr. Lauterbach entered on a detailed statement of his conversations with various people in New York in regard to Union Pacific matters.

"I understand," he said, "that the first thing that occurred in reference to the pending Union Pacific matters occurred in this way: Mr. Kahn is the leading spirit in the Metropolitan Opera House. I am counsel for Mr. Oscar Hammerstein, the impresario. I called on Mr. Kahn to confer with him as to a method by which he could be relieved of a feature of the contract. Several interviews took place, from about February, in March, April, and May, and bore upon that question chiefly.

"I called at the office to see Mr. Kahn frequently about that matter. I knew nothing of Mr. Riordan or his name being called up or of my name having been suggested to Mr. Kahn or to Mr. Lovett or to Mr. Evarts. I know these gentlemen very well. If I had sought to solicit business from them there would have been no difficulty in my doing so. In fact, Judge Lovett, at Mr. Harriman's suggestion and without any solicitation on my part, had engaged my services to perform part of Mr. Harriman's work, in an effort to acquire the control of the Illinois Central Road.

Tells of Talk with Kahn.

"When the first project, or the second, of the Union Pacific was made to the Supreme Court, I knew of its nature, and felt that it could not be accepted or should not be accepted. I said to Mr. Kahn: 'Mr. Kahn, you need not have gotten into this difficulty. If you will remember, ten years ago, I came as the representative of the Keene pool in Southern Pacific; its lawyer; they owned some 350,000 shares of the Southern Pacific Company, which they had purchased on thorough examination, believing it to be, as it was, a prosperous and dividend-paying property, and you, Mr. Kahn,' I stated to him at that time, 'have acquired for the Union Pacific a majority of the Southern Pacific stock, which has steadily gone down since the date of the acquisition, and the pool which owns this enormous amount of stock is suffering because of the declaration of the Union Pacific that no dividends would be paid, and that the moneys earned ought to be used in the betterment of the Central Pacific.

"'I have advised Mr. Keene that your ownership of the majority of the Southern Pacific Company is unlawful, repugnant to the Sherman act, repugnant to public policy; I wish you would make some concession in the matter and have an arrangement made whereby this minority stock, you having the majority in the Union Pacific Road, shall be properly treated.'"

Mr. Lauterbach then went on to detail various conversations that he had with Mr. Kahn in past years about Union Pacific matters. He had gone in occasionally to see Mr. Kahn, mainly on operatic business, and they had discussed these Union Pacific affairs. They had spoken generally of the conditions of affairs in this country, but he did not think that he (Mr. Lauterbach) had referred to the Pujo investigation at all.

"But I thought," he said, "I might be of service in guiding this matter, in assisting in guiding the matter, and I should have been glad to have done so. There were sentimental reasons why I would have been glad to have done so. I had had domestic difficulties; my wife had divorced me, and I had lost social and professional standing and an affiliation with their interests, and the Morgan interests would have done me great good. I was entitled to the affiliation I sought. I said to him that I believed there would be opposition to the propects, as there was. I did not say to him that I knew what the decision would be.

Denies Claim of Influence.

"I have never seen Attorney General McReynolds. I do not know him. I claimed to have no influence here except such influence as I might have by reason of what I might consider, without egotism, I suppose, was my knowledge of the situation.

"At one time we were speaking of the general attitude of investigations, and he asked me in what way the Union Pacific could be investigated, and I said I knew of nothing except the proper regulation of this segregation, and except, perhaps, the acquisition by the Union Pacific and the method of acquisition of the various great blocks of other railroads which they had acquired, the policy of acquiring which I had never understood, or the propriety of acquiring which. Not only was it objectionable, in my opinion, to acquire the property of competing roads, but also to acquire the property of other railroads, which could be controlled by the same great financial backing that the purchasing roads had behind them.

"He said he did not care for any such investigation. I said I did not know that any would take place. I do not know that I ever mentioned the name of any Congressman. If I did, it was in a general way of the difference between the parties and the eagerness with which some members of Congress were pursuing investigations. My view of the matter was that they were being pursued very properly."

"With whom was that conversation?" asked Senator Reed.

"With Mr. Kahn, steadily. The end of the operatic business has not yet occurred. The last interview upon that subject was one of my protesting against what they were doing abroad in the purchase of the new operas which my clients had been in negotiation with and had promised, and which were sold to other interests, to the Campanini interests."

Didn't See "Judge What's-His-Name."

"Just before that—that was perhaps a week ago—Mr. Kahn said to me: 'If you want to confer further about the matter, the Union Pacific, I am not on the committee, but Mr. Mortimer Schiff, my partner, Mr. Vanderlip of the City Bank, and the Chairman of the Executive Committee, Judge What's-his-name, whatever it is, are on the committee.'

"I said that I did not desire to see them, that I had no desire to press my services upon them, and if Mr. Kahn, from my knowledge of him, and from what I believed his friendship to me was, had thought I was in any respect coercing him or threatening him, or blackmailing him—the suggestion has been made—he would have said to me, 'Mr. Lauterbach, I tell you to desist. I advise you to desist.'

"All that he said to me was that he would prefer that any further suggestions that I had to make—they were nothing else—should be made to the newly appointed committee, whom I never saw. I never saw Mr. Vanderlip on the matter, or Mr. Mortimer Schiff, or Judge What's-his-name?"

"Judge Lovett?" suggested Chairman Overman.

"Lovett," assented Mr. Lauterbach. "I never spoke to any of them. I would have, of course, been glad, as I said, if they had voluntarily permitted me to associate myself with them; but the suggestion was not made, and there was no feeling about it.

"I did see, but had nothing to do with the preparation of statements that came across the ticker, or were in one of the Wall Street journals, to the effect that there was—that there ought to be—opposition to the proposed exchange of Baltimore & Ohio stock owned by the Pennsylvania for an equal amount of Southern Pacific stock, because the holdings of the Baltimore & Ohio by the Union Pacific would be increased to that extent, and the holdings by the Pennsylvania of Southern Pacific, with the fiscal agents, the money power, behind them, would substantially make the control of all four roads—Baltimore & Ohio, Pennsylvania, Union Pacific, and Southern Pacific—remain under one control in the bankers' hands.

"I expressed that opinion when it was brought home to me by Mr. Cravath over the 'phone. I had known Mr. Cravath a long time. Mr. Cravath had said to me on a previous occasion—had met me and said some one had asked him over the 'phone to meet me at the club. I said I knew nothing of it. He said I did not come. I said I had not been advised, and I did not know whether I should have come if I had been. He then said, 'Do you know the owner of the mellifluous voice?' I said, 'I do not know to what you refer.'

"Mr. Kahn at one interview asked me the same question, and I said I did not know, but that if there was anything I could do to discover it I would be glad to do so.

"That constitutes my statement in respect of the matter about which I came down last night. I think I ought to go on immediately to make my statement in regard to the other matter to which reference has been had, the Lewis Cass Ledyard matter. I think I have covered the facts except to say that I have never seen Mr. Riordan except most casually. I do not know that I have ever spoken to him, except perhaps to pass the word of day, as I met him while he was in the State Senate and I was a Regent of the University at Albany. I have had no converse with him, no communication with him, no dealings with him. Who ever used his name in any way I do not know.

"I come now to the Lewis Cass Ledyard matter. I hope I have covered the ground in respect to the Kuhn-Loeb situation. I will simply say broadly that I have no desire to coerce, no desire to compel, no desire by the expression of any influence in Washington to acquire a foothold in the professional end of the representation of the Union Pacific.

"I do not know any member of any of the committees that have investigated matters this year. I have had no conversation with any of them.

"One day Mr. Ledyard called me up and asked me to come to his office, and I went to his office. He said to me that he had been informed over the telephone that Congressman Riordan had desired me to be appointed as counsel in matters pending in Washington, as it would protect their interests.

"I told him that was a surprise to me, that I did not know Congressman Riordan, that I did not know why he should have selected my name, but that I was glad of an opportunity to speak to Mr. Ledyard, and, as I understood he represented the Morgan interests, to have him represent my interests to the Morgans.

David Lamar Comes In.

"In addition to the matters that I have referred to as having taken place between the Morgans and myself during some twenty years—matters of great importance—there were many others, some of a private nature to which I need not refer, and others—and among others there was a suggestion by Mr. Morgan that I should endeavor to control the activities of a man named David Lamar.

"I first knew Lamar by his coming to me at the time of the coal strike and telling me that the coal strike was creating great difficulties, and that it was fatal to the candidacy of Gov. Odell, whose friend I was, and that I ought to interest myself in endeavoring to check the strike. He introduced me to John Mitchell, and I heard his views of the matter.

"I sent for Gov. Odell. It was on the eve of the election. I called him to New York and there was a meeting arranged. There had been futile efforts here in Washington to adjust the matter through the President and other efforts, and it seemed as though that dreadful condition was to continue.

"Senator Platt and Senator Quay met at Senator Platt's office, and this was the result of the suggestion of Mr. Lamar, or I never should have thought of it, and they were attended by the counsel representing the railroads, by Gov. Odell, and myself.

"Gov. Odell said that if the strike continued, that if they did not do their utmost to cause it to be discontinued, he would take such steps, as the Governor of the State of New York, as would operate to prevent it, that it could be done in the case of the Delaware & Lackawanna road, or of the Delaware & Hudson road, which had New York charters, and the Erie road and others.

"Senator Platt, when the matter was understood, at once put his foot down and said to the counsel, who were before him, that he would do everything in his power to change it, and word was sent to Mr. Morgan through me that they should do all that they could to change it, and word was sent forward to Washington, and Mr. Root was sent on by the President, and the strike was ended.

"I got to believe in the great ability of Mr. Lamar, and, as far as I know, in his integrity. He represented Mr. Sage in some matters with which I was connected, and he brought to me the business of Henry H. Rogers in an effort to prevent the Guggenheims from acquiring the American Smelting and Refining Company, and he set forth the facts connected with that so clearly that I began the litigation with the encouragement of Mr. Rogers, and, although beaten in the first instance—Mr. Lindabury was my associate, or I was his—the Court of Errors and Appeals of New Jersey, mainly by reason of the suggestions that came from Mr. Lamar, decided what is now the leading case upon the subject, that every share of stock that emanated from New Jersey corporations must either represent full value in stock, and be so imprinted, or must represent dollar for dollar the face value of the stock. I received a large remuneration, and I had a sense of gratitude to Mr. Lamar."

Had Been Warned Against Lamar.

"Is Mr. Lamar a lawyer?"

"No, I think not. He has the keenest ability of any man that I ever knew."

"What is his business?"

"I do not know," said Mr. Lauterbach. "He has been a Wall Street man. I have often conferred with Mr. Lamar, who has come to my office. I have represented him as his lawyer. We have small matters to attend to, and I have listened to his views upon public subjects.

"He is not looked upon with favor in Wall Street. He is looked upon with much disfavor, and I had been importuned to have nothing to do with him, and I felt that I was suffering professional loss by having him as my client. But I owed him gratitude. I believed that the criticisms that were made of him were unjust, and I maintained my professional relations to him.

"The result of it was that the warm affiliation that had existed between the Morgan house and myself seemed to fade away. I saw Mr. Morgan very frequently, and he was very courteous. He made me loans of money when I needed it, which loans were generally repaid, but there was not the same feeling that had formerly existed, and I felt that it was an unjust situation.

"I never knew that any one had called up Mr. Riordan in respect of the Morgan matters in any way until one day when Mr. Ledyard sent for me and told me that there had been an urgent message of this kind, and I think I had heard of a similar one previously through Mr. Steele of J. P. Morgan & Co.

"I told them on all occasions that I could not understand it, that I did not know whence it had come, but I felt at perfect liberty to appeal to any member of the firm of Morgan & Co. for professional services in matters in which I sought to interest the Morgan house, which were not to be appreciated, I think, by reason of my affiliation to which I have referred.

Hoped to Regain Morgan Friendship.

"I told Mr. Ledyard more in extenso than I have to-night of my twenty years' close and pleasant affiliation with the Morgan house, and that all I desired was a reinstatement of that harmonious relation, and that I asked his aid to secure it. I left him under the impression that he would do so, and would do so within a day or two.

"I then went to Mr. Stetson, who has always been my friend and grateful to me and I to him, and made the same endeavor, only to have that entente cordiale between the Morgan house and myself re-established. Mr. Stetson said that he would see Mr. Ledyard about it.

"I received an invitation from Mr. Ledyard. I was under the impression, I admit, that it was one lawyer and gentleman talking to another lawyer and gentleman. We did talk over the situation. I did mention, as he knew, that there were shades of opinion here in Washington, some more radical and some more conservative; some radical, as led by Mr. Henry, and some more conservative, as led by the Congressman from Alabama. He asked me if I would be employed, and I said that I would be glad to do so, that it was not a matter of compensation. I wanted no compensation except such as they might desire to give, and I would be glad to be employed.

"I thought Congressman Henry would be the Attorney General. It was before the appointment of an Attorney General, but it was a mere surmise on my part.

Says He Wanted No Fee.

"I told him expressly that no money of any kind, if I were engaged, would be distributed to anybody or expended to anybody, or used in any unlawful purpose, and I think he made a memorandum of that fact, and of the general conversation, and of my statement that I desired no fee except that I desired to again represent the house from which I seemed at the moment to be excluded.

"He told me that I should hear from him, and I heard nothing, until one day George F. Baker of the First National Bank called me up and asked me to come to his house. Mr. Baker was the next to the first, and is now the first, great man in Wall Street. He was formerly the second; Mr. Morgan is dead.

"I went over the situation with Mr. Baker. He told me that they had never been better represented, that I had been loyal and faithful, that he understood that there was something that I desired to accomplish, and that he would aid me in accomplishing it.

"I said I desired to represent the Morgan interests with others, if necessary; that it was important for me to do it, but that, above all, I wanted to reestablish the entente cordiale between the house of Morgan and myself. And I had no ulterior motive. I think there were general discussions at that time as to what we thought of the spirit of affairs in Washington, investigations rife, and former methods very properly criticised, and a change taking place in the methods with which corporations were treated. The tariff was being treated in the way in which I understood it was to be treated when we prepared tariff planks in the Republican platform, but which had always been disregarded, and so we had general discussions of the subject. Nothing came of that.

Poor, but Reputation Unscratched.

"The matter was procrastinated until one day, quite recently, Mr. Baker said that there was a meeting to take place between all the interests affected to consider the proposition of reinstating me where I desired to be. I understand that the attitude taken by Mr. Ledyard since that time was that, at least as long as any affiliations with Mr. Lamar existed, I was to be may I term it crushed? That I was to be persona non grata. I believe the first manifestation of that was last night. I think the second manifestation, of which I had no prior knowledge and which I meet on the stand, as it is presented, has occurred to-night.

"I am a poor man in money, but until to-night and last night I believe I have had an unscratched reputation."

To questions by Senator Reed, Mr. Lauterbach denied that he had ever had any relations directly or indirectly with Oscar W. Underwood, Champ Clark, A. Mitchell Palmer, or Daniel J. Riordan. He declared to be unwarranted any attempt to connect them or any member of Congress in an improper way with anything Mr. Lauterbach was interested in.

Questions About Lamar.

Senator Reed pressed Mr. Lauterbach about his relations with David Lamar and was particularly anxious to ascertain his present address. Mr. Lamar, said the witness, lived on Riverside Drive, at the corner of 108th or 100th Street. Mr. Lamar, as far as the witness knew, was a Wall Street man, "not of the banking class, but of a respectable class."

Mr. Lauterbach did not know of Lamar's connection with any firm and had no knowledge of his operations.

"I don't think he follows any special line of business," he added.

Mr. Lauterbach said he did not know that Mr. Lamar had spent any time in Washington, except when he was interested in some railroad bill in the last Congress. Lamar was then in Washington for three or four weeks, so he told him.

"In what way was he discredited?" asked Senator Reed.

"I don't know," answered Mr. Lauterbach, "but the name of David Lamar seems to be anathema."

"Has he been operating in opposition to certain interests or in stock operations?" Mr. Reed asked.

"I rather think the former; that he has been on the bear side in certain matters."

Perkins Came About Lamar.

Mr. Lauterbach told of one occasion several years ago when George W. Perkins, Francis L. Stetson, and Lamar came to his office to obtain his services in a matter of litigation affecting the United States Steel Corporation. They thought that Mr. Lamar had instituted the suit, and wanted the witness to get Lamar's acquiescence to certain things. When they left, said Mr. Lauterbach, the witness thought that what they wanted had been accomplished.

"When did you last see Mr. Lamar?" asked Senator Reed.

"I saw him on Thursday of last week. I was going to Albany and saw him with his wife, a child, and two nurses on the Albany boat. I think they were going to Pittsfield, Mass., for the Summer."

"Did you talk about the matters that have been mentioned here to-night?"

After a long pause, with his head bent as if trying to recall what had occurred on the Albany boat, Mr. Lauterbach said:

"I think we referred to what was on the Wall Street news slips in regard to opposition to the settlement of the Union Pacific dissolution, and asked him if he was the man who had issued these statements. He told me he knew nothing about them."

"How did you come to ask him if he was responsible for those slips?" Senator Reed asked.

"Because I had spoken to him in my office in respect to this pending settlement, and he had furnished me with the figures of the amounts of holdings represented by the various interests. I think this was the day before I met him on the boat. I think he looked up the figures in Poor's Manual in his office."

Senator Reed handed Mr. Lauterbach one of the Wall Street news slips containing the statement about opposition to the dissolution plan, and asked:

"What made you think he had been the author of this?"

"From the fact that I had spoken to him on the subject, and from the fact of the well-known activities he had in all matters of general interest."

Senator Reed then called attention to the fact that the statement about opposition bore a Chicago date line, and asked if Mr. Lauterbach had noticed that.

"I think I did notice it," said Mr. Lauterbach, but Mr. Reed did not press him any further along that line.

"Had he anything to do with that litigation or anything to do with matters pertaining to this case?" Senator Reed inquired.

"None whatever as far as I know."

"Then I don't understand what you mean by saying you spoke to him about this matter."

"I have spoken to him previously on the subject and that was the only reason."

"You were not an attorney in this matter?"

"I had no professional interest in the matter except my general interest in this whole subject, and I wanted to get the facts."

Senator Reed said he still did not understand why Mr. Lauterbach had such an interest in the matter.

"The only reason was that I had a great general interest in this and other such matters," answered Mr. Lauterbach.

Mr. Reed wanted to know why Mr. Lauterbach had asked Lamar for the figures of the holdings of the various railroads concerned, and Mr. Lauterbach insisted that it was merely because he had a general interest in the subject. He did not know, he said, that Lamar had obtained the figures from Poor's Manual, but only supposed so.

Senator Nelson referred to the telephone conversations about which Representative Palmer had told.

"Don't you suppose the man at the telephone might have been Mr. Lamar?" he asked.

"I should be loath to think that any man would do that," answered Mr. Lauterbach.

Riordan, Denying, Criticises Lovett.

Representative Daniel J. Riordan of New York took the stand and testified that he knew nothing of the charge made by Judge Lovett that a man purporting to be himself had urged on Mr. Lovett over the telephone the retention of Mr. Lauterbach as counsel.

"I never saw Judge Lovett in my life; I never spoke to him in my life," said Riordan. "I wouldn't know him if he came in this room to-night. In this connection Mr. Lauterbach's name was mentioned. I have known him, but I never mentioned his name in any connection. I can't find out where this telephone call was sent from, whether Washington or some place else. I never used the long distance telephone but twice in my life.

"I don't know whether Mr. Lovett's office is in New York. I don't know where Mr. Lauterbach's office is. I think this call ought to be traced, and I think it could be easily traced. It seems strange Mr. Lovett has not made any effort to trace it. I'm always accessible in New York; I never hide away; I'm always easy to find."

Riordan said he thought that it was strange that Lovett allowed such a statement as the mysterious telephone caller made to go unchallenged.

Senator Reed remarked that a man was "indiscreet" who got such a telephone call, drawing in the name of a public man, and gave out an interview to the press and did not try to verify the personality of his caller.

national bank circulating notes outstanding. The effect of the foregoing provision, as now modified, is that when all of the national bank circulating notes have been retired there will be authority, under the proposed act, for the issue of the new Federal reserve treasury notes up to a grand aggregate of about $1,212,000,000—which sum represents the value of the $712,000,000 worth of national banknotes to be ultimately retired, plus the $500,000,000 named in the bill for the additional currency, over and above the amount of the new kind of currency that would be issuable on the basis of the retirement of the existing national banknote circulation.

The bill now contemplates the retirement of the national bank circulation in 20 years, at the rate of not more than 5 per cent. annually. This means that about $35,000,000 of the national bank circulation may be retired annually, and correspondingly, that the limit upon the total amount of the Federal reserve treasury notes to the issued may be increased at the rate of about $35,000,000 annually over and above the $500,000,000 initial limit given in the act.

Higher Powers of Board.

Many of the changes in the bill involve only the shifting of words, but behind these alterations was a set purpose to strengthen the power of the central political control over the new Federal reserve banking system. The first of these alterations marks an important change in connection with the very initiation of the system. It is the substitution of the word "may" for "shall"—it means much. It occurs in the eleventh paragraph of Section 4 which originally read:

> The reserve bank Organization Committee shall, in organizing Federal reserve banks for the first time, call such meetings of bank Directors in the several districts as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this act and may exercise the functions herein conferred, &c., pending the complete organization of such bank.

This was mandatory and would have required the reserve bank Organization Committee to call such meetings of bank Directors. This paragraph has been changed to read:

> The reserve bank Organization Committee, may in organizing Federal reserve banks for the first time, call such meetings of bank Directors, &c.

In Section 10 of the bill, before its modification, it was provided that "the Federal Reserve Board may, at its discretion, &c., entitle such applying (State) bank to become a stockholder in the Federal reserve bank of the district in which such applying bank is located, or, at its discretion, may reject such application."

The bill as introduced to-day adds to the above sentence this clause, "or cancel the membership of the bank."

This is in line with the set purpose of the bill's authors to broaden and perfect the power of the Federal Reserve Board.

Again, in the second paragraph of Section 10 the bill before modification provided that no such applying State bank "shall be admitted to stock ownership in a Federal reserve bank unless it possesses a paid-up unimpaired capital sufficient to entitle it to become a national banking association in the place where it is situated, under the provisions of the national banking act, and conforms to the provisions herein prescribed for national banking associations of similar capitalization." The modified bill adds to the above sentence this clause, "and to the regulations of the Federal Reserve Board." This also increases the power of the Federal Reserve Board over State banks coming into the new reserve banking system.

Removal of Board Members.

In Section 11 of the original bill it was provided that the Governor of the Federal Reserve Board should be subject to removal by the President upon a statement of the reasons for such removal. The modified bill equips the President with power to remove any of the four members of the board by stipulating that these members shall serve first for two, four, six, and eight years, respectively, and thereafter for terms of eight years "unless sooner removed for cause by the President." This increases the political power of any President over the proposed Federal Reserve Board.

Section 12 before modification provided that the Federal Reserve Board should be authorized and empowered "to examine at its discretion the accounts and books of each Federal reserve bank and to require such statements and reports as it deems necessary." This grant of authority has even greater scope in the modified bill, which gives the Federal Reserve Board power "to examine at its discretion the accounts, books, and affairs of each Federal reserve bank," &c.

This modification would vest that board with sweeping power to inquire into any "affair" of any Federal reserve bank.

It is true that the modified bill strikes out the provision which proposed to allow the Federal reserve power "to establish each week, or as much oftener as required, a rate of discount which shall be mandatory upon each Federal reserve bank and for each class of paper," &c., and now proposes to allow the Federal reserve banks "to establish each week, or as much oftener as required, subject to review and determination of the Federal Reserve Board, a minimum rate of discount to be charged by such bank for each class of paper, which shall be with a view to accommodating the commerce of the country and promoting a stable price level." While the Federal reserve banks are to fix "minimum" discount rates, still there is preserved to the Federal Reserve Board the right of review.

Retirement of Treasury Notes.

Before modification the bill allowed the Federal Reserve Board to supervise and regulate only the "issue" of Treasury notes to Federal reserve banks; the modified bill also empowers the board to supervise and regulate the "retirement" of such notes.

Section 14 of the original bill provided that "whenever, in the opinion of the Federal Reserve Board, upon application jointly and directly made to the Secretary of the Treasury by not less than ten national banks in one district, the public interest so requires, the Federal reserve banks may authorize the reserve bank of the district to discount the direct obligations of member banks," &c.

The modified bill provides that "whenever in the opinion of the Federal Reserve Board the public interest so requires the Federal Reserve Board may authorize the reserve bank of the district to discount the direct obligations of member banks," &c.

This is another illustration of the purpose to tighten up and strengthen the power of the Federal Reserve Board, since it takes away the requirement of a joint application by ten national banks in one district before the Federal board can authorize such discounting.

Until yesterday the bill provided that any member bank might accept drafts or bills of exchange drawn upon it having not more than "four months to run" growing out of transactions involving "importation or exportation of goods or the issue of travelers' letters of credit."

This has been changed to permit the member bank to accept such drafts or bills of exchange having not more than "six months' sight" to run, and growing out of such transactions, but eliminating the travelers' letters of credit.

Disbursing Reserve Notes.

What may be regarded by the banking world as an important change has been made in the third paragraph of Section 17, relating to the proposed Federal reserve Treasury note issue. The first sentence of this paragraph until yesterday read:

> Whenever any Federal reserve bank shall pay out or disburse Federal reserve Treasury notes of the issue herein provided, it shall hold in its own vaults gold or lawful money equal in amount to 33⅓ per centum of the Treasury notes so paid out by it.

By substituting "segregate" for "hold" and adding a new clause this sentence has now been modified to read:

> Whenever any Federal reserve bank shall pay out or disburse Federal reserve Treasury notes of the issue herein provided, it shall segregate in its own vaults and shall carry to a special account on its books gold or lawful money equal in amount to 33 1-3 per centum, &c.

Section 23 has been changed to read: "That every Federal reserve bank shall at all times have on hand in its own vaults, in gold or lawful money, a sum equal to not less than 33 1-3 per centum of its outstanding demand liabilities," and eliminating from the end of the paragraph these words, "which shall at the same time be not less than 33 1-3 per centum of its outstanding Federal reserve notes."

There were other changes in the bill, but they were [illegible] essential.

BRYAN BLOCKED MONEY BILL CHANGE

Insisted His Friends Would Vote Against It if Political Control Was Eliminated.

BANKERS RETURN HOME

3 Out of 5 of Their Suggestions Accepted and They Hope Merit of Others Will Be Recognized.

Festus J. Wade of St. Louis and Sol Wexler of New Orleans, two of the bankers who conferred with President Wilson, Secretary McAdoo, Senator Owen, and Congressman Glass in Washington on Wednesday concerning the currency bill, returned to New York yesterday and visited the financial district, where they talked over the results with some of the New York bankers. President Wilson's other two callers, George M. Reynolds of Chicago and John Perrin of Los Angeles, started for their homes from Washington.

Mr. Wade, who left for St. Louis last night, and Mr. Wexler, who remained until to-day on private business, preserved a diplomatic silence when questioned about their visit to Washington. From local bankers with whom they talked, however, it was learned that they felt that a good deal of progress had been made toward eliminating objectionable features of the bill. Their sentiments were much less hostile than when they were in Atlantic City a week ago, although the feature of political control of the new banking and currency system remains. They took the view, it was said, that the individual banks would have to consider whether they should come under this kind of control or become State institutions.

The two emissaries were convinced that there was no possibility of getting the bill changed at this time in respect to political control or to the issue of the new notes in the name of the Government, instead of in the name of the reserve banks.

The stumbling block on this point, which proved insuperable, was William J. Bryan. Mr. Bryan, it was said, had said flat-footedly that if the bill was changed in either of these respects, his friends in Congress would vote against the entire measure. President Wilson, who showed that he was willing to make concessions in general, when sufficient reason was brought forward, was too intent on having the bill passed at the extra session to invite a fight against it by his Secretary of State, so no such changes were agreed on.

Hope It Will Work Itself Out.

While the bankers thought that this situation made it certain that the bill, as now modified, would pass the House, they did not overlook the fact that there were likely to be hearings even there, at which the arguments against it on these points might be ventilated at least. They have hopes that when the bill reaches the Senate these changes may be made. They also consider it not improbable that the bill will pass only the House at this session, and that when it is revamped for the regular session next Winter their counsels may prevail.

Even if no change is made in the composition of the Federal Reserve Board they thought it might work out pretty satisfactorily if the first head of the administrative body should be a big and broad enough man, as he would probably recommend to Congress such changes as experience showed to be necessary. They also expressed confidence that first-class appointments would be made by the present Administration.

Before the bankers went to Washington they had the idea that, even if the purely political board were retained, its duties might be put on a basis comparable to the functions of the Interstate Commerce Commission, while the Directors of the reserve banks had charge of their actual operation. They believed changes could be made that would preserve the principle for which the authors of the bill contended, and at the same time bring about such a condition.

The returning bankers reported one important change along this line in the provision that the discount rate of a reserve bank should be fixed by its Directors in the first instance, the Federal Reserve Board having merely a veto power. This, they pointed out, would leave the actual banking function in the hands of the nine Directors, six of whom are to be chosen by the banks that are members of the reserve bank, while the political board at the head of the system would have power to prevent any possible abuse of this power.

The bankers had their way on three of the five main points, Mr. Bryan having his way about the other two. The bankers carried the day for their contention that provision should be made for the exchange of the 2 per cent. bonds now securing circulation for 3 per cents without the circulation privilege, which involves the retirement of the national bank currency secured by the bonds, the whole process to extend over twenty years and the new notes to be issued as the old ones are canceled.

While 3 per cent. bonds, without the circulation privilege, would not be worth par in the present condition of the market, one of the bankers who visited Washington expressed the opinion that, as these bonds came to the banks gradually, they could be sold for par to trustees for estates, guardians of minors, and others who have a special partiality for Government bonds. In the meantime the banks would be getting 3 per cent. on their investment, and he thought the matter would work out without any great hardship.

Gain on Reserves.

The other points gained by the bankers were the removal of the $500,000,000 limitation on the amount of Federal reserve notes that could be issued and permitting the country banks to keep a third of their legal reserves in their correspondent banks in the reserve cities, with the authorization of the Federal Reserve Board.

One important point that the bankers who have been in conference at Atlantic City, New York, and Washington have not brought very strongly to the front was the subject of discussion yesterday between the pilgrims from Washington and local bankers. This was the failure of the bill to provide for the cancellation of the new currency automatically when the need for it shall have passed.

The new currency, it was said, would be elastic enough in one sense. It would come out when there was need of it, but no machinery was provided for its going back. In the answers of the Bankers' Currency Commission to the questions propounded by the Senate sub-committee this point was covered by the suggestion that the notes issued by the several reserve banks be distinguished by numbers and that when one reserve bank came into possession of the notes issued by a second reserve bank, instead of reissuing them it should cancel them and charge the amount to the second bank.

This would create a vacuum that would draw out more notes of the first bank if they were needed, while the issues of the second bank would be to that extent reduced, unless the demand for currency kept up in its own territory. This plan, it was said, would result in automatic increase and reduction in the volume of currency in accordance with growing or diminishing business needs. This point will doubtless be made more prominent than it has been whenever hearings are held by the committee of either house.

FOR A WILSON BIG STICK.

Hoke Smith Proposes to Empower Him to Levy Retaliatory Rates.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—A proposal to arm the President with a tariff "big stick" of stronger and greater proportions than that provided in the amendment suggested by the Finance Committee majority was made to-day in the Democratic caucus of the Senate on the Tariff bill.

Discussion of the proposed countervailing duty on wheat and flour, which the committee recommended, led to a general debate on retaliatory and countervailing tariff rates, and Senator Hoke Smith of Georgia urgently proposed the adoption of an amendment that would give the President power to enforce countervailing tariff rates on all commodities of commerce against any nation refusing to deal with the United States on a reciprocal tariff basis.

The amendment proposed would in many respects take the place of the maximum and minimum clause of the Payne-Aldrich tariff law, but Senator Smith advocated a provision that would be broader than that, one that would give the President the authority at any time to impose on any nation which might discriminate against the products of the United States the same tariff rates exacted on American goods. Such a clause in the Tariff bill, it was argued, would place the United States in a position to defend the country against any unreciprocal action or attempt to shut off its foreign trade.

old son under trial for a white slave offense. Is he a proper man to be in charge of the decision of questions as to the deportation of aliens brought here for immoral purposes?

"District Attorney McNab charges the Department of Labor, Bureau of Immigration, and Department of Justice with refusing to deport certain alien women. I demand that they shall make public the information which has been sent by McNab on this subject, so that we and the public may determine whether there has been any other crooked work in reference to the deportation of these women."

Going back to the Caminetti-Diggs cases, Mr. Mann said:

"The District Attorney had warned the Attorney General that every effort would be made to prostitute Justice, to perjure witnesses, to buy away the witnesses, to thwart the ordinary administration of law, and then the District Attorney sends a telegram to the President."

"Are you aware," inquired Mr. Kahn of California, "that Diggs, the other defendant, is the nephew of a Democratic State Senator of California, and that the political influence referred to in the United States Attorney's letter may probably have some bearing on that?"

"Of this fact I am absolutely sure," responded Mr. Mann, "that the great mass of Democrats in public and private life neither condone an offense of this character nor the effort to postpone the speedy trial of offenders."

Both sides of the House applauded this statement.

"Yielding to Influence."

"I am compelled to acknowledge what I have heretofore indignantly refused to believe, namely, that the Department of Justice is yielding to influence which will cripple and destroy the usefulness of this office.

"Mr. McNab makes no accusation of wrongdoing," said Mr. Mann, "he imputes no motives in the statement, but says that he now believes 'the department is yielding to influence which will cripple and destroy the usefulness' of his office. The District Attorney was ordered by the Attorney General to postpone the cases. That order, now they find, will destroy the usefulness of the office out there, and they run to cover to change the order.

"Frightened rabbits never got away quicker than the President and the Attorney General when this matter was brought up. They might have excused themselves to the world if they had said 'the Attorney General acted under a misapprehension, a little carelessly, perhaps,' and then withdrawn what they had done and commended the officer under him who dared to call the attention of the public to the facts. That would have been a manly course. We all, of course, excuse mistakes, and we all admire manliness. But we all hate hypocrisy, and this action taken is pure hypocrisy.

"What did the District Attorney do that he is objectionable? He called the attention of the President, in the only way it would have received attention, through a resignation, to the fact that the Attorney General's office had been imposed upon.

"Manliness such as I would have expected from the Christian, moral gentleman occupying the White House would have required him to ask the District Attorney to withdraw his resignation and try these cases, he being familiar with them. They have now accepted the resignation of the District Attorney and have dismissed the White Slave act officer who worked up the case.

"I suspect the elder Caminetti and possibly the junior Caminetti may be quite willing to have the case speedily tried, when the few men who were familiar with the case and who have worked it up are fired out of the service, before anyone else has time to learn all the circumstances of the case.

Postponed on Request.

"What sort of a Department of Justice is it—what kind of an Attorney General is it, who, having on file from the District Attorney statements that people are endeavoring to thwart the Administration of Justice and to bribe or buy witnesses of the Government, on a telephone message from so great a man as even a Cabinet officer, without investigation, without reference in his department, without stopping, as he says, to examine the files, orders the case postponed, which in all probability would have meant to have the case dismissed or ended?

"No doubt the Attorney General is a great lawyer and a great man. But if the Democratic Administration intends to proceed upon the theory that when a Cabinet officer telephones the Attorney General, or when some wealthy defendant, as happened in the Western Fuel case, walks into the office of the Attorney General and asks to have a case postponed, it is done, there will not be many Democratic Administrations in the next 100 years.

"The excuse offered is worse than the offense, and it is offered for the purpose of casting ignomy upon one official in the Department of Justice who has had bravery, who has had courage, who has known how to do things.

"McNab, rising superior to place, looking up to more lofty heights than drawing a salary, knew that the way to attract the attention of the country and to obtain consideration by the Administration was to do what he did—flash his resignation over the wires to the President, calling attention to the facts. By so doing he has made the President and the Attorney General not only to beg the question but to eat their own words. He deserves a tribute from the good people of this country, which I have no doubt he will at least receive in their hearts."

Strange Truck Thief Helping District Attorney and Secret Service on a Big Job.

Assistant District Attorney Moskowitz heard the returns yesterday from twenty detectives who had been sent out to investigate the loose ends of the story of Isidor Rader, the east side Fagin, who is in the Tombs awaiting sentence for receiving stolen goods. The detectives, it was learned, brought in facts which corroborated Rader in almost every instance. Mr. Moskowitz placed in District Attorney Whitman's hands at the end of the day a long list of confederates in the systematized business of robbing New York merchants. There were enough names on this list, it was said, to keep the Grand Jury busy for a whole month. A special Grand Jury will begin sifting of evidence early in July.

Included in Mr. Moskowitz's report to the District Attorney, it is said, was sufficient evidence to show that the protection money paid by Rader and east side "fences" did not go solely to the six first-grade detectives mentioned in Rader's preliminary confession, but that the greater part of the money went "higher up" to two men in Police Headquarters. These two men, it was said, were the ones whose trail was struck time and again in the District Attorney's graft hunt in Harlem and the Tenderloin. There woud be little chance of indicting either of these men, it was said, without a confession from one of the detectives involved. The graft of the detectives, it was said, was limited largely to extortion payments for "throwing" cases in the courts and to division of stolen goods.

Evidence was put before the District Attorney, it was learned, showing that Rader and his immediate band of truck thieves were not the actual disposers of the millions of dollars of goods stolen from wagons, piers, and railroad yards every year. The men behind the actual thieves, it was said, were established business men whose checks for large amounts would be certified by banks in this city. There were as many fences on the lower west side in the vicinity of the Hudson River piers, it was said, as on the east side where Rader operated.

A United States Secret Service man called on Assistant District Attorney Moskowitz in search of $16,000 worth of goods stolen from one of the Hudson River Piers. He asked whether the District Attorney's office, through any of the many thieves congregating there regularly, had information regarding any of these goods.

"I think I can help the Government out," said Mr. Moskowitz to the Secret Service man.

Mr. Moskowitz thereupon called up the strange thief who had met him at Broadway and Franklin Street on Wednesday. This was the man who said he lived in the dual rôle of gentleman and truck robber. He is said to be known among thieves as "Slick Martin." He had pleaded with Mr. Moskowitz to give him a chance to reform.

"Martin" met Mr. Moskowitz and the Federal detective near the Criminal Court Building, and he immediately fell in with the proposal to help the Government. He was able to tell the detective something definite about the stolen goods, so that the trail of the thieves was uncovered. It was understood that he was to receive remuneration if the goods were recovered. He denied having stolen the goods himself.

Detectives Edward Leigh and Albert Thomas of the District Attorney's office arrested yesterday Roswell Kennedy, 32 years old, of 579 Washington Street, a truckman in the employ of the Ajax Trucking Company, which hauled goods shipped to this city by the American Woolen Company. Arthur McKeever, President, charged that Kennedy had stolen $6,000 worth of goods from his company. He said that his company had been the victim of a federation of thieves.

TO PROMOTE 176 FIREMEN

A record number of appointments and promotions will be made by Fire Commissioner Johnson at 2 o'clock this afternoon. In all, 349 men will be concerned. Of these 176 will be promoted. There is no room at Fire Headquarters large enough for assembling all these men at once, so they will be appointed either in relays or, if the weather is fine, on the lawn around the Bureau of Fire Prevention of the headquarters, in East Sixty-seventy Street.

The promotions and appointments are as follows: To engineer, 42; to Lieutenant, 41; to Chief of Battalion, 1; to Captain, 16; fourth-grade firemen, 76; probationary appointments, 173.

ARAB SAID HE'D WED WIDOW

And Samuel H. Ragland Will Marry Mrs. Ford Next Week.

Mrs. Mabel Moore Ford, daughter of Col. M. Frost, President of the National Machinery Company of Tiffin, Ohio, will be married in the Holland House next Wednesday to Samuel H. Ragland of New York, formerly of Kansas City. When that was announced yesterday it was remarked that believers in omens and fortune tellers might find encouragement in a circumstance connected with the romance.

Mr. Ragland, on a tour of the world four years ago, stopped at Port Said. He then regarded himself as a confirmed bachelor. He was approaching middle age and, having a large circle of friends, he had concluded single life suited him. But, when sitting under a eucalyptus tree in the garden of the hotel in the Egyptian port with a traveling companion, he was drinking for the first time real Arabian coffee, a caravan which had started from the Sahara arrived. As the camels stopped, an old Arab wearing a dingy burnouse and turban detached himself from the party and approached the coffee drinkers. He insisted on telling their fortunes.

More to get rid of him than for any other reason, Mr. Ragland handed to the old man a few piasters and told him to "spout on." After various incantations the Arab spread on a mat sand he had carried in a bag and which he said he had brought from the Garden of Allah. He invited Mr. Ragland to pass his hand through the sand and leave an impression of his palm. Then he told the fortune. Among other things he said:

"In a few years you will marry a woman whose husband is now living."

Mr. Ragland paid little attention to the words. Two years later he met Mrs. Ford. Her husband, William H. Ford of Toledo, had died not long before. It was not until Mr. Ragland had won Mrs. Ford's consent to an engagement that he recalled the prediction of the Arab.

Col. Frost for many years has made his home for half the year in the Holland House, passing much of the rest of the time in his big country place near Somerville, N. J. The wedding was to have taken place in Somerville, but Col. Frost has been ill in the Holland House, and on that account the ceremony will be performed in his apartment there by the Rev. Hugh Pritchard, assistant pastor of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church.

PLEA FOR CLEANER PARKS.

Education Board Asks School Children to Co-operate.

A letter from President Thomas W. Churchill of the Board of Education to the principals of all the public schools in the five boroughs was read to their pupils yesterday. Mr. Churchill said that for the children who might remain in the city during the Summer vacation the public libraries, playgrounds and parks offered many opportunities for study and healthful sports, "to be enjoyed by all, to be cared for by all, to be a pride for all." Then the letter ran:

"The reports of late in the daily press, including a letter from Mayor Gaynor, show clearly that there is a portion of our population which seems to think that the public parks are for their special benefit. These people trample the lawns, make bonfires of the refuse of their luncheons, play baseball on the grass, pluck flowers, break branches from the bushes and trees, and strew the ground with refuse and litter, particularly on Sunday afternoons.

"Such conduct shows a lack of civic pride, a disregard of law and order, and great selfishness. People should take as good care of public property as of private property, and show as much pride in the care of all public parks and buildings as of their own homes. Let me express the hope that none of the public school children is guilty of the wrong acts mentioned above. Let me urge the school children, and through them their parents and other relatives, to proper respect for and care of our city's property."

REPORT OF A NEW HOLBEIN.

Fine Portrait Said to Have Been Sold in London for $1,500.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Friday, June 27.—The Chronicle says it is rumored that a hitherto unknown picture by Holbein the Younger has been discovered in London and is likely to pass into the British national collection on extremely easy terms.

It is impossible to confirm the report in a definite way, and it should, therefore, be accepted with that qualification; but it is said that the picture was recently sold by a London dealer for $1,000 or $1,500 without any idea that it was a Holbein. The attribution to Holbein, it is said, was made only when the picture was cleaned.

It is a portrait of a man, executed on a much smaller scale than the same painter's "Duchess of Milan," but very fine work of perfect coloring.

HALF OF FRISCO'S STOCK HELD HERE

YOAKUM MAKES A DENIAL

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, June 26.—A total of 250,000 shares of Frisco Railroad stock—a little more than one-half the entire capital stock issue—was held by New York investors, New York banks, and brokerage firms when the company went into the hands of receivers on May 27. This came to light to-day, upon an examination of the stock books.

The Central Trust Company of New York heads the list of shareholders, with 33,235 shares of the common stock, which at the present market price are valued at $132,900, as against an average price of $664,500 in 1912. The next largest holder is a foreign banking house known as the "Dutch Association of Holland," which has 780 shares of common, 1,625 of first preferred, and 6,950 of second preferred. The recent market depreciation in these shares is $311,750.

Two of the smallest stockholders are James Speyer of Speyer & Co., who is credited with 200 shares of common, and Hans Winterfeldt, a Director of the company, who owns five shares of the common.

The Speyers, however, are known to own or control the great bulk of the Frisco's 5 per cent. bond issue, of which they placed $3,000,000 in Paris on March 20. The Paris bankers, it was said, sold the bonds to the Parisian public at a net profit of 5 points.

When the Frisco receivership was announced, the Speyers raised objections because they had not been consulted by the St. Louis stock interests. It is rumored that a third receiver may be appointed to represent the bondholders and satisfy the Speyer faction.

On all the 395,000 shares of stock held outside of St. Louis, the aggregate loss resulting from the slump of Frisco shares preceding the receivership is $10,000,000.

New York brokerage houses hold about 100,000 shares of Frisco stock. Most of these holdings, however, are believed to be for individuals.

Frisco common shares were on the market at fancy prices when the Rock Island Company, headed by Daniel G. Reid and W. H. Moore, bought the entire issue. The purchase price was $60 in common stock of the Rock Island Company and $60 in the 5 per cent. collateral trust bonds of the company. These bonds subsequently were redeemed on a basis of $102.50 and interest. On this transaction the St. Louisans, including James Campbell, Thomas H. West, and B. F. Yoakum, who then were interested in the Frisco and Rock Island affairs, made a handsome profit.

A report from St. Louis that B. F. Yoakum of the St. Louis & San Francisco Railroad had disposed of practically all his holdings of common stock in that company prior to the receivership proceedings brought an instant denial from Mr. Yoakum yesterday.

"The statement that I have disposed of all of my St. Louis & San Francisco common stock excepting 261 shares is absolutely untrue," he said. "I am a confident believer in the property, and am doing all I can to aid in its rehabilitation."

to leave them to me. I don't want to appear slighted. People must know you are leaving us nothing now. You are leaving me in the lurch. You need not be afraid I shall start a great friendship with anybody else. You are absolutely the only person I ever trusted in that way all my life, and I am well repaid now, alas!

In conclusion, counsel said: "In one of these parties you have kin of the dead man, bone of his bone, flesh of his flesh, and against that valid, indestructible claim you have the flimsy competition of these people, with no tie of birth, whose only claim is based on assiduous attentions and who claim to destroy and defeat the claims of blood."

Only one witness had been called when the case was adjourned.

LONDON, June 26.—Suggestions of possible highly interesting developments were introduced to-day in the "fight for the millions," as the public call the suit over the will of the late Sir John Murray Scott.

F. E. Smith, counsel for those who are trying to break the will, mentioned an alleged secret visit to Sir John's house by Lady Sackville, in the course of which she was seen at the drawer of a desk in his library.

Major Arbuthnot, a friend of Sir John Scott, would, said counsel, testify that on his arrival to dine with Sir John one evening he opened the door of the library and saw Lady Sackville and Miss Sackville just shutting a drawer of the writing desk. Major Arbuthnot is said by counsel to have withdrawn, but while he was still in the hall Lady Sackville opened the door a little and glanced around. Then she and her daughter left the house in what appeared to the Major a very hurried and unusual manner.

When Major Arbuthnot later saw Sir John Scott he mentioned that he had seen Lady Sackville in the library. Scott immediately became intensely agitated and broke into a perspiration, crying: "My God! It's incredible!"

Sir John Scott, it was added, had no idea that Lady Sackville was in the house. He believed she was at her residence, Knole Park, Kent, at the time. Mr. Smith added that the Sackvilles were known among the Scott family under the nickname of "the Locusts," while in the servants' hall Lady Sackville was referrred to as "the Earthquake."

Six More Die Through Humidity.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., June 26.—Although the average temperature was below normal, excessive humidity was responsible for six deaths in this city, making a total of 14 fatalities due to the same cause in the past forty-eight hours. The humidity ranged from 87 per cent. at 8 A. M. to 78 per cent. at 8 P. M., while the average temperature was 73 degrees, one degree below normal for this date. The maximum temperature was 81 degrees at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

JACK JOHNSON GONE; IS NOW IN CANADA

MONTREAL, June 26.—Jack Johnson, the champion pugilist, is in this city, and admitted to-night that he intended to sail for Europe next Tuesday to engage in fights in St. Petersburg next September. He said he did not intend to forfeit his bail bond, which calls for his presence next November in Chicago, where he is under sentence on a white slave charge.

After his release on $30,000 bail pending an appeal from his conviction and sentence of one year and one day in the Federal prison at Leavenworth, Kan., his lawyers succeeded in obtaining from Judge Carpenter a reduction of the bail to $15,000, his mother, who had qualified for $15,000, being relieved. The present $15,000 bail bond, which dates only from last Monday, was signed by Mathew Baldwin, a Chicago real estate dealer.

Johnson had been convicted of violating the Mann White Slave Act by bringing Belle Schreiber, a white woman, from Pittsburgh in 1910 for immoral purposes. It was charged that because of his infatuation for Belle Schreiber, Johnson's first wife, Etta Duryea, also a white woman, committed suicide a year ago.

Reports received to-night from Toronto and Montreal were that Johnson and his white wife were in Canada. Dispatches from Canada said Johnson met his former manager, Tom Flanagan, in Toronto and told Flanagan he intended to forfeit his bail and go to Paris. Immediately after that he left Toronto, ostensibly for Montreal. In Montreal a big negro and a white woman arrived on a Canadian Pacific train to-day and immediately disappeared.

"Johnson would be foolish to run away," said Bachrach. "If, however, it is true that he has left he has a perfect right to do so. The bond he is under does not prevent him from leaving the State or the country. The only condition imposed by the bond is that Johnson shall appear in the United States Court of Appeals at the time his case is called there."

Following Johnson's indictment and pending trial, agents of the Department of Justice kept a close watch on Johnson, but it was not sufficiently keen to deter Johnson from starting on a trip toward Canada prior to his trial. A passenger on the train recognized Johnson and telegraphed the Federal authorities, and Johnson's journey was halted before he reached the Canadian border. He was returned to Chicago, despite his expostulations that he was merely going on a fishing trip, and was carefully guarded until his trial.

EXONERATES A. H. MOTLEY.

Indictment Dismissed, Patent All Right—Partner a Suicide.

Judge Mulqueen in General Sessions yesterday dismissed the indictment against Alfred H. Motley, who, with his partner, Clark H. Miller, was charged with swindling the United States Lithographing Company out of $100,000 by fraudulent representations.

The charge against Motley was that both he and Miller sold to the United States Lithographing Company a new process of lithographing which, they said, would accomplish much more than the process then in use and cost much less. It was then agreed that the company should pay $100,000 down, which was done. Both Motley and Miller went to England to sell the English rights to the process. While there the complaint was made against them and they sailed for this city at once to answer the charge.

Following their arrival in this city both Motley and Miller visited the United States Lithographing Company, and it is now said that they were able to convince the company of the worth of their invention. Miller committed suicide two days before his case was to come to trial, and yesterday Assistant District Attorney Edwards moved for the dismissal of the indictment against Motley, on the ground that his process was all he represented it to be.

HOPE TO EXTRADITE BAUDER

Swiss Believe the United States Will Deliver Up Financier.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

GENEVA, June 26.—The Swiss Federal authorities are making great efforts to obtain the extradition from the United States of Hans Bauder of Basel, son of a Swiss millionaire and himself a very wealthy man, on several charges involving the sum of $1,000,000.

Bauder was arrested in America some months ago, and, according to the Swiss papers, is strongly opposing extradition on various legal grounds. Little doubt is entertained here, however, that the American authorities will soon deliver up Bauder to Switzerland.

The Swiss authorities have already spent $3,000 in telegrams and legal expenses in connection with the case.

Hans Bauder, President of the International Realty Association and head of two savings banks, in Basel and Zurich, was arrested in Chicago last Feb. 21 on the complaint of the Swiss Government. It was charged that Bauder had swindled citizens of Switzerland out of nearly $500,000.

As President of the Australian-Manhattan Consolidated Mining Company, a Nevada concern, Bauder, it is stated, returned to Switzerland two years ago and sold several hundred thousand dollars' worth of stock. Investigators employed by the Swiss Government charge that the stock is worthless.

"OUT INTO THE NIGHT."

Capt. Scott's Last Reading Was from Miss Johnston's Tragic Story.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, June 26.—The relics of the Scott expedition are now on view at the Imperial Services Exhibition in London.

One exhibit likely to be overlooked by the visitor and yet full of polgnant interest is a shabby, much-thumbed six-penny copy of Mary Johnston's story of Old Virginia, "By Order of the Company." It was found in Capt. Scott's tent, and Mr. Meares, who picked it up, was impressed with the circumstance that it lay open at the chapter headed, "We Go Out Into the Night." Any one who has read Miss Johnston's tragic story will appreciate the strange coincidence.

WIFE LEAVES A. G. HALLERAN

Attorneys Admit Flushing Woman Is to Begin Legal Action.

For six months Aloysius G. Halleran, a brother of Tax Commissioner John J. Halleran of Queens, and his wife, Mrs. Sarah G. Halleran, a sister of Mrs. Helen Connolly, wife of the Borough President of Queens, have not been living together. With the publication yesterday of an advertisement announcing the sale of their household furniture came the report that Mrs. Halleran had begun an action against her husband in the courts. Process servers from the office of Rasquin & Rasquin, attorneys for Mrs. Halleran's father, Mr. Connell, and also for Mrs. Halleran, were unable to find Mr. Halleran yesterday.

Mrs. Halleran is making her home with her sister, Mrs. Connolly, who is spending the Summer at Babylon. At the law offices of Rasquin & Rasquin in 170 Broadway, Manhattan, Judge William J. Rasquin, Jr., senior member of the firm, said the papers in the case had not been served. He confirmed the report that an action has been instituted, and dictated the following:

"I do not want to try my client's case in the newspapers. My client hesitated in instituting proceedings of any kind, owing to her aversion to publicity which such proceedings usually bring. She was obliged to leave her home last March, and went to her parents' home, where she has been living up to last week, at which time she went with her sister, Mrs. Connolly."

Mrs. Halleran is about 29 years old, and her husband is 32. They were married on July 3, 1906, and have no children. Until several months ago Mr. Halleran was interested in the hardware business in Flushing, and since his trouble he has been living at the home of his aunt, Mrs. Hendrickson, in North Prince Street, Flushing.

PATRONAGE AS LURE TO WIGWAM LEADERS

Sulzer Said to be Planning to Win Over Murphy's Lieutenants.

PRIMARY FIGHT NEXT FALL

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, June 26.—After the decisive defeat of Gov. Sulzer's Direct Nominations bill in the Legislature yesterday the Sulzer "War Board" took a day off. Its headquarters in the Capitol, maintained at the State's expense, is still equipped for war, but there are rumors of peace in the air.

The leaders of the direct primary opposition have been watching with the greatest interest the tone of the editorials in up-State newspapers since the defeat of the Sulzer bill in the Senate yesterday. When they left Albany for New York to-night they said that their anxiety had vanished. There has been no great popular uprising over yesterday's direct primary disaster.

Despite the Governor's declaration that the war will go on, the conviction is expressed in quarters very close to him that Mr. Sulzer will be satisfied with any honorable compromise on the direct primary question that the opposition may offer him.

But the Governor is said to be just as determined as ever to continue his warfare upon Charles F. Murphy. To-day the Governor was urged by some of his friends to carry his war against the boss into Tammany's own bailiwick. It may be stated authoritatively that within the next few days a move will be made to take away from Mr. Murphy and attract to the Governor's side half a dozen of the Tammany district leaders in New York City. It was said to-night that, as far as New York City was concerned, not the county but the Assembly district would be recognized as the unit in the distribution of patronage along the lines suggested by the autonomy plan proclaimed by the Governor last April.

While the general belief is that there will be no direct primary legislation at the present session, some of the Assemblymen still hope to secure legislative approval of a measure which will bring the question of abolishing the State convention to a vote at the polls next Fall. The Democratic leaders will not attempt to pass the Blauvelt bill over the Governor's veto in case he should again express his disapproval.

The Frawley Committee of Inquiry, which will investigate the conduct of the State departments under the Sulzer Administration and sift reports that the Governor made free use of patronage and veto powers to win votes for his Direct Primary bill, together with other reports that he failed to account for some contributions and expenditures in his campaign for election, may organize some time next week, but will not actually begin its investigation until after the close of the extraordinary session.

HAVE PLAN TO PAY IN FULL.

A. D. Matthews's Sons Seek to Form Company with Dimonds.

The creditors of A. D. Matthews's Sons, for seventy years importers and retailers in Brooklyn, received yesterday a letter from that firm asking them to consent to an arrangement whereby it ultimately could pay its debts in full. Its present embarrassment, the letter pointed out, was due principally to the firm's inability to obtain money with which to meet its bills promptly and discount its purchases, although its book accounts as a going concern showed assets of more than $100,000 over its liabilities.

The proposition which the creditors are asked to sanction is that the firm of L. Dimond & Sons, which has large department stores in Providence and Boston, be permitted to associate with the firm of Matthews's Sons in a new firm, to be known as A. D. Matthews's Sons, Inc., the Dimonds agreeing to supply the necessary capital to conduct the business as well as to make an immediate cash payment of 10 per cent. to all the present creditors, giving the creditors 5 per cent. bonds of the new corporation for the remainder of their indebtedness.

By that arrangement, the firm says, the creditors would get 10 per cent. on acceptance of the plan by a majority of them, 9 per cent. more one year thereafter, 8.77 per cent. the second year, 8.55 per cent. the third year, 8.33 per cent. or 44.65 per cent. in all, the fourth year; another 8.10 per cent., or a total of 52.75 per cent., the fifth year, and in twelve years their claims in full. If the bonds were not redeemed earlier, they ultimately would receive 147.24 per cent.

The only alternative to the plan outlined, the letter to the creditors asserts, seems to be the wrecking of the company by liquidation through bankruptcy, which, it adds, after deduction of lawyers' fees and other expenses, would leave comparatively little for creditors.

Lehigh Valley to Tell Cause and Probable Duration of All Delays.

A general order instructing conductors of all passenger trains to inform passengers at the earliest possible moment of the cause and probable duration of all delays has been issued by the Lehigh Valley Railroad. The conductors are instructed, upon receiving information that their trains will be delayed or detoured, to pass promptly through the trains or arrange for trainmen to do so, announcing this information and advising passengers as to the best way of proceeding on their journey.

This will enable passengers with business appointments or expecting to meet friends to telephone or wire ahead to change the time of their engagements. The order also extends to ticket agents, who must notify passengers at their stations or those who come to purchase tickets as to the probable duration of all delays.

1200 Men's Bathing Suits the $3, $4 & $4.50 grades

You'll need to attend this sale early to be in the swim!

¶ Some shops don't handle twelve hundred bathing suits in an entire season, let alone in a single offering of this character. Of course, this is neither here nor there, but we mention the fact simply to emphasize that other fact—that Saks' is headquarters for bathing suits in this city. Indeed, this is alone responsible for our ability to get such a tangible saving on regular prices as in this remarkable sale today.

75 Dozen of these Bathing Suits are made of fine worsted.

¶ And you know what that means. In addition, more than half of them are full fashioned, and all of them are the product of a maker who is a crank on quality. The assortment includes plain colors and others with white or red borders, and there are a number of novelties thrown in for extra measure, which will go to those who dive first into the selections. Quarter sleeve or sleeveless models, whichever you fancy. And so that there shall be no misunderstanding there are about twenty-five dozen suits that are 90% worsted and 10% cotton for the man who cannot wear all wool. All sizes, and all splendid values.

Appreciated Souvenirs of New York Style

IT is said the noblest prospect which a Scotchman ever sees is a high-road that leads him to England.

* *

So the Westerner and Southerner take a Pullman to New York—the greatest of Summer resorts—the headquarters of American smartness.

* *

And the souvenir of the visit most appreciated is something to wear which really represents New York's accepted idea of the refinement of style.

* *

Weber and Heilbroner haberdashery has long supplied this want, in neckwear and shirts and socks, to thousands of out-of-town customers who have developed into firm season-after-season friends.

* *

We appreciate this custom—our organization proffers its courteous advisory suggestions.

* *

They are distinctly of New York.

Saks Clothes Wear Well

¶ Saks clothes are like the few friends a man has, whom the wear and tear of life can never alienate nor change.

¶ They are so made in the beginning that their easy, unlabored lines never leave them, but continue like faithful servitors to the end.

¶ Style is, of course, a common enough quality in the shop windows, but it is the hang of the garment after you have worn it three months that is the acid test of style.

¶ The worst made garment in the world can be made to look presentable on a wooden figure, but the question is, will it last?

¶ Wooden figures are but wooden figures, and the style that lasts through the vicissitudes of hard wear has to be tailored into the garment and not pressed and pushed into it for the deception of the unwary.

¶ The style of a Saks garment is permanent—perennial—unchanging—tailored into every line and seam by an organization which has no more use for wooden figures than a hen has for ducks!

WILL NAME GERARD FOR BERLIN POST

KAISER IS BEING SOUNDED

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ON BOARD STEAMSHIP IMPERATOR, via Halifax, June 26.—Justice James W. Gerard of the New York Supreme Court, who is on his way to Europe on this vessel, has received word that he is to be appointed Ambassador to Germany.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, June 26.—It is learned here that President Wilson has formally submitted the name of Justice Gerard of the New York Supreme Court to the German Government as Ambassador to Berlin, and the appointment is under formal consideration here. The Kaiser's approval is largely a matter of form.

In official circles it is expected that Gerard will relieve Leishman as Ambassador during the Summer.

FRIENDS CONGRATULATE.

Justice Ford and Sheriff Harburger Send Messages to Gerard.

Messages of congratulation to Justice Gerard on board the Imperator were sent yesterday by several associates in the Supreme Court House.

Justice John Ford was on the bench when an attendant brought the news. The Justice at once sent this wireless dispatch:

> Congratulations. Germany will be pleased; Uncle Sam faithfully and honorably served.

Sheriff Julius Harburger sent this message:

> President Wilson could not have done better. Tradition makes you ideal Ambassador Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to Germany.

Justice Gerard has frequently been mentioned for high office, and was looked upon as a likely nominee for Governor last year. When the Wilson Administration came in it was widely reported that he would be the next Ambassador to Mexico, where he has many interests and warm friends. Later it was stated that he would be sent to a European post.

Justice Gerard is now 46 years old, a son of James W. Gerard, who was a State Senator, a member of the Board of Education, and one of the best known members of the New York bar. He was graduated from Columbia in 1890, studied at the New York Law School, being admitted to the bar in 1892. He entered the office of Bowers & Sands, and at the age of 34 years became a member of the firm.

Among the prominent cases in which he figured as counsel was that of Gusthal against former Mayor William L. Strong, involving the validity of the Kingsbridge franchise granted to the Third Avenue Railroad, in which he succeeded in preventing the Third Avenue Railroad from getting certain perpetual franchises. He also represented the Rice Institute of Texas in its suit against Albert T. Patrick, who was convicted of the murder of the founder of the institute, and who, under a will that was found to be a forgery, was to have a large share of the Rice fortune.

Justice Gerard entered the National Guard as Second Lieutenant of Company F, Twelfth Infantry, and in 1892 attained a Captaincy. With that rank he served as an aid on the staff of Gen. McCoskry Butt during the Spanish war. In 1900 he was appointed Quartermaster, with the rank of Major, of the First Brigade. He was elected a Justice of the Supreme Court in 1907. Before going on the bench Mr. Gerard was for four years Chairman of the Democratic Campaign Committee of New York County.

Justice Gerard is President of the Lawyers' Advertising Company, a member of the Bar Association and of the Union, Tuxedo, Country, University, New York Athletic, Riding, Fencers', and Democratic Clubs and the Sons of the Revolution. He has traveled extensively and is fond of outdoor life, having achieved some note as a hunter in Scotland, England, and this country.

SUDDEN SHIFT FROM MADRID.

Wilson Said to Have Changed His Purpose Without Telling Gerard.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Announcement was made here to-day that Justice James W. Gerard of the New York State Supreme Court was to be appointed Ambassador to Germany. The usual inquiries are being made in Berlin to ascertain whether Justice Gerard will be acceptable to the German Emperor.

President Wilson had decided to appoint Justice Gerard Minister to Spain, but the latter wished an embassy post and it was in line with his desire that a bill was introduced to raise the Spanish mission to the ranks of an embassy. This bill has passed the Senate and is pending in the House. There have been reports that Justice Gerard did not want to go to Spain and had virtually declined the President's offer, but these have been denied at the White House. Why the President determined to appoint him Ambassador to Berlin has not been explained. It is said that he sailed for Europe, not knowing of the President's change of purpose.

The German mission was first offered by President Wilson to Prof. Henry B. Fine, of Princeton University. He declined on the ground that he had not the means to maintain a diplomatic establishment in Berlin. Rudolph Spreckels was sounded on the subject, but would not consider the place.

In addition to making known the prospective appointment of Gerard the President sent these nominations to the Senate:

Albert G. Schmedemann of Wisconsin to be Minister to Norway.

Benton McMillin of Tennessee to be Minister to Peru.

Nathaniel B. Stewart of Georgia to be Consul at Berlin.

J. Butler Wright of Wyoming to be Secretary of the Legation to Brazil.

Fred Morris Dearing of Missouri to be Secretary to Legation at Brussels.

Oliver P. Newman and Frederick L. Siddons to be Commissioners of the District of Columbia.

The President to-day withdrew the nomination of Meredith Nicholson, the Indiana novelist, who was named as Minister to Portugal and declined the office.

Joseph E. Willard, ex-Lieutenant Governor of Virginia, is said to be slated for Madrid.

TO LICENSE BOOKMAKERS.

LONDON, Friday, June 27.—A telegram from Berlin to The Daily Chronicle says:

"The bookmaker question is one which has long agitated German sporting circles. For the last thirty years bookmaking, according to the strict letter of the law, is 'verboten,' like so many things in the Fatherland, yet the profession has contrived to run its business and to prosper to a fair extent. In every second beershop, in hairdressing saloons, and tobacconists' establishments bets sub rosa are made.

"Now the whole position is about to be changed. The Government has been considering the matter, and a bill has been drafted which will be laid before Parliament. In Germany, as in France, the pari-mutuel system is in vogue, and the Government at present taxes all transactions on that machine to the extent of about 16 per cent. On the Berlin race courses last year it is reckoned that the totalizator business amounted to no less than 30,000,000 marks. ($7,500,000.) Now it is proposed to reduce the tax to 12 per cent. Of that the State takes half, the other 6 per cent. going to the various Rennvereine, or racing associations for the purposes of horse breeding.

"The Government hopes to lose no revenue by the decrease, as the bookmaker tax will preserve and very possibly increase the amount that the State receives. As to the bookmakers, the bill provides for the recognition of a certain number in each large town. The figure is to be fixed according to the population. The bookmaker must pay a tax of 6 per cent. of his takings to the Government, and the Rennvereine receive a small percentage of the winnings from the person betting. Small wins are free from the tax, which will afterward rise as high as 10 per cent.

"When betting with a bookmaker cash must be paid, and the smallest amount that can be put on for a win or place will, it is proposed, be 5 marks. This five-mark minimum is not popular in sporting circles. In fixing it the State is no doubt taking a fraternal interest in the person of moderate means, whom it does not wish to encourage to bet, but it is argued, on the other hand, that such a restriction will have the result of making him a customer of the unregistered bookmaker, whom it is advisable not to encourage."

82-YEAR-OLD DUKE SEEKS A DIVORCE

SHE IS 40 YEARS HIS JUNIOR

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, June 26.—Another divorce affair in the Bavarian royal family occupied the attention of the courts in Munich yesterday when the senior member of the reigning house, the eighty-two-year-old Duke Ludwig, brother-in-law of the Emperor of Austria, entered suit for divorce against his morganatic wife, Frau Antonie von Bartolf, who is 40 years her royal husband's junior. The grounds of the suit were not publicly stated. The hearing was adjourned to July 4 pending the appearance of the respondent, who was not present when the case was called.

Duke Ludwig is the brother of the late Empress Elizabeth of Austria. His present wife, his second, is of bourgeois origin. His first, to marry whom he renounced his rights of succession, was a young actress named Mendel, who received the noble name of von Wallersee and died in 1891. A week after the expiration of a year of mourning the Duke married his present wife. She was a Munich ballet dancer named Barth, who received the name of Frau von Bartolf.

Soon after his first marriage the Duke was compelled to transfer his royal appanage of $96,000 a year to his brother, the famous royal oculist, the late Duke Karl Theodore, and in order to meet his requirements disposed of a piece of royal property which he had inherited to a Munich brewery. During her lifetime the Empress Elizabeth frequently came to her brother's assistance.

The Bavarian royal family was favorably disposed toward Ludwig's first wife, but never took up his second. She and the Duke have lived quietly at a villa outside of Munich, the gift of the Empress of Austria.

Grave reasons, it is thought, must be responsible for the Duke's desire for a divorce. He and Frau von Bartolf have been supposed to live very happily. The members of the royal family are described as deeply mortified over the publicity which is bound to result from the suit.

The Duke's only child, the Countess Larisch, the daughter of his first wife, recently published her memoirs, in which she professed to give the true account of the death of the Crown Prince Rudolph of Austria, and in which she incidentally sought to blacken the memory of her aunt and benefactress, the Empress of Austria.

Irish Farmer Also Recovers Cost of Action Brought for Loss of His Son.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, June 26.—Thomas Ryan, an Irish farmer, whose son was lost in the Titanic disaster, to-day obtained a judgment of $500 and costs in his suit against the White Star Steamship Company.

The finding of the jury in the Ryan suit was accepted in two other cases in which similar damages were awarded.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, June 26.—Miss Mathilda Molt, formerly of Norwich, Conn., the oldest member of the American colony in Berlin and a resident of the German capital for twenty-five years, died suddenly at her home last night of heart disease. She was a founder and Vice President of the American Woman's Club in Berlin, which is taking charge of the funeral arrangements.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VERA CRUZ, June 26.—Gen. Manuel Mondragon, who was Minister of War under Madero and went over to Huerta at the time of the latter's coup d'état, and who recently surrendered his portfolio to Gen. Blanquet, sailed for New York on the Ward liner Monterey this afternoon.

DOUGLAS, Ariz., June 26.—The complete defeat of the Mexican Federals under Gen. Ojeda and the utter demoralization of the Government forces, described "as flying every direction" from Santa Rosa, are reported in a message received here to-night from Gov. Pesqueira of Sonora.

The money stringency from which the Constitutionalists' cause in Mexico is suffering will be relieved within ten days by the circulation of a $5,000,000 banknote issue, according to Roberto Pesquiera, insurrecto representative in Washington, who returned to-day to his home here. The issue will be a lien on all property within the sphere of rebel influence and supply insurgent war needs for several months.

SEATTLE, June 26.—R. W. Greeme, wanted by the Federal authorities at Phoenix, Arizona, in connection with the smuggling of an aeroplane across the boundary line into Mexico last month, was arrested by a United States Deputy Marshal last night on a telegraphic warrant from Phoenix, charging him with violation of the neutrality laws. He said he would not oppose removal to Arizona.

LOS ANGELES, June 26.—Adolfo Villareal was arrested here last night by the United States Marshal's office on a charge of smuggling into Mexico an aeroplane used by the Sonora rebels. Although he was dressed as a laborer, the authorities say that the Mexican is a man of prominence and wealth.

GUARDSMAN TELLS OF RACE PREJUDICE

THREE DENY DISCRIMINATION

Soldiers Admit Signing Statement "to Help Captain"—Governor's Inquiry to End To-day.

The special inquiry ordered by Gov. Sulzer into the charges made by Samuel Littman, an attorney, formerly a Sergeant in B Company, Forty-seventh Regiment, N. G. N. Y., that because of race discrimination promotion by regular election to the rank of Second Lieutenant was denied to him, was resumed at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the Council Chamber of the City Hall. For three hours counsel to Littman made a vigorous attempt to show that by unfair inducement signatures were obtained to a statement from a majority of the members of B Company that they would not have voted for Littman had he been put up for election. The statement was introduced into the record by counsel to Col. Henry C. Barthman of the Forty-seventh at the first session of the inquiry on Wednesday afternoon.

Lieut. Col. Herman Bendell, designated to conduct the inquiry, carried out his threat of the preceding afetrnoon, when he had confessed that he and his associates were suffering beneath the weight of their gold-braided, tightly buttoned dress uniforms, appeared at yesterday's session in civilian clothes. He urged that the examination of witnesses be directed more to the point, and expressed it as his opinion that the Governor would dislike useless discussion.

Opponents Shake Hands.

The examination again was conducted without show of animosity, notwithstanding Mr. Littman's attorneys at the first session made known their intention of carrying the investigation of alleged race discrimination into other regiments. When the ex-Sergeant walked into the chamber he approached his former regimental commander and the two shook hands. Mr. Littman then introduced his counsel, Judge Leon Sanders and Maurice Simmons, to Col. Barthman.

Questioned by Mr. Simmons about his attendance at drills the last term of his enlistment, Mr. Littman replied he had been present at every one. Col. Alexander S. Bacon, counsel to Col. Barthman, asked the witness if his honorable discharge was not made out in his own handwriting. Mr. Littman said it was, but that it bore the signature of his Captain, S. Ralph Tiffany. He explained that his record, submitted by Col. Bacon, had been made out by him exactly as it was to be found on the company's books.

Col. Bacon then asked Mr. Littman whether on the morning following his discharge on Feb. 3 last an account of his charges was not published in a New York morning newspaper. Mr. Littman replied that such a story was published two or three days after his discharge. Counsel to Col. Barthman next introduced a copy of a Brooklyn paper of Feb. 5 in which appeared statements made by Mr. Littman, among them one that he had said that Col. Barthman had told him he would be thrown down before the Board of Examiners should he persist in forcing an election. Mr. Littman denied having made such a statement. He further said that he did not see the reporter of that paper by appointment.

Arthur Belinsky, a shipping clerk of 143 Starr Street, Brooklyn, said he had been a member of B Company two years and knew Mr. Littman well as an efficient non-commissioned officer. He was one of those who signed the statement saying he would not have voted for Sergt. Littman. Mr. Belinsky was asked by Col. Bacon to explain why he had signed that statement. He replied he signed it at the request of Corporal Charles H. Rogers, Jr., who informed him Mr. Littman was representing that he had been a candidate nominated at a caucus for election to the office of Second Lieutenant. Mr. Belinsky said he knew Mr. Littman never had been nominated at a caucus, and for that reason agreed to sign the statement, when it was explained to him further by the Corporal that a repudiation of Mr. Littman's charges would "help the Captain of the company out of trouble." When Mr. Belinsky admitted that he had not been forced to sign the statement and that he had affixed his signature without even reading the document, his testimony was ordered stricken from the record by Lieut. Col. Bendell.

Signed "to Help Captain."

Counsel to Mr. Littman called in succession Alexander Silverman of 893 Myrtle Avenue, Frank James of 430 Lefferts Street, Emanuel M. Solomon of 1,273 Lincoln Place, and Abraham Schwartz of 975 Flushing Avenue. The first three said they had signed the statement when under the impression that they would "help their Captain out of trouble." Mr. Schwartz was the only member of the company who signed a statement that he would have voted for Mr. Littman. Silverman, James, and Solomon testified they would have voted for the former Sergeant. They agreed he was an efficient non-commissioned officer and the rightful one to succeed to the vacancy of Second Lieutenant. However, they told the board they signed the statement to the contrary of their own will at the request of Corporal Rogers.

All the witnesses except James said they were members of the Jewish race. Each of the witnesses with the exception of Mr. Silverman swore that he never had observed the least race discrimination in the company's ranks or between officers and men. Mr. Silverman recalled an act of alleged race discrimination in the ranks when the company was drilling in the armory. Asked specifically about that instance, he said:

"Well, one of the men in the ranks remarked that the time would come when there would be only two flags in this country—the Irish and the red, white and blue. He also said: 'We will get rid of them (the Jews) finally.'"

Corporal Rogers testified that he drew the statement signed by the majority of the company members that they would not have voted for Mr. Littman. He said he did it of his own accord and took it to the armory on drill night. According to Rogers, the statement was open for perusal by all members of the company, and none was asked to sign it under misrepresentation. He said he explained to each man the charges that had been published in the newspapers by the former Sergeant, and asked all to sign the document to show their attitude.

Rogers Was Ambitious.

Mr. Rogers, questioned by Mr. Simmons, admitted he was an aspirant to higher office at the time he circulated the statement. He maintained, however, that his aspiration ended soon afterward, because he realized his activity against Mr. Littman probably would have influenced his superior officers in his behalf. Mr. Simmons asked if Corporal Rogers recalled having gone to Col. Barthman's office in company with Sergt. Bohn in October last to ask that an election be ordered for Second Lieutenant. Mr. Rogers answered he did so at the request of Sergt. Littman, admitting that he opposed the election of Mr. Littman. Asked if he had not acted with deception toward his company and his Colonel, he replied that he had done so.

Following that admission, Col. Bacon asked Corp. Rogers if he had not gone to the office of the Colonel merely to request that an election be called. He answered in the affirmative. Col. Bacon then informed the Corporal that he had practiced no deception, and the witness agreed that he had not, except in so far as he had intended to ask for the order of election as representing his company. It was brought out, however, that the interview with the Colonel had not been obtained.

An effort by counsel to Col. Barthman to have read into the record a resolution entered on the book of B Company, containing substantially the same repudiation of Mr. Littman's charges as in the signed statement, failed when it was shown that the resolution was the latest matter entered in the company's record, notwithstanding that several meetings ordinarily should have appeared as following it.

The inquiry was adjourned to 3 o'clock this afternoon, when the board will endeavor to complete its investigation, even should a night session be necessary.

ILLINOIS GETS SUFFRAGE.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 26.—With a moving-picture camera focused on him Gov. Dunne signed the Woman Suffrage bill to-day. The act provides that Illinois women of legal age may vote for all statutory offices.

The Governor's wife and Mrs. George Wilbur Trout, Mrs. Sherman M. Booth and Antoinette Funk, the suffrage crusaders who fought for the adoption of the bill, appeared in the picture.

The bill will become law on July 1. After that it is probable that it will be tested in the courts.

CHICAGO, June 26.—"He's signed it!" That was the way news of the suffrage law came over the telephone to Chicago suffragists gathered in the Fine Arts Building, and the women cheered.

Dr. Margaret Johnson, who cast her ballot twenty-two years ago by walking in among the men and dropping it in the box before they could stop her, unpinned a new bonnet, and tossed it into the air.

STARTS CHILDREN SAVING THEIR MONEY

PART OF WELFARE PLAN

Three thousand children gathered yesterday at the doorstep of 25 Oliver Street. This is the home of Alfred E. Smith, Speaker of the Assembly, who is interested, with Tom Foley, leader of the Second Assembly District, in the welfare of the children of that neighborhood. The children came to receive free gifts which had been promised to "passengers of the Tom Foley Stage Line for Youngsters." The gifts were to be distributed at 4 o'clock, but the collection of humanity took so long to be sorted and squirmed and screamed so much and so mightily that it was an hour later before sufficient order prevailed to hand out the first present. This proved to be a tin bank, red and green in color, with a real key and a real nickel to put into it. Whereupon the delight of the children was so intensified that a passer-by asked the policeman if a riot were in progress.

"Naw, a nuisance!" answered the policeman.

Edward H. Williamson handed out the gifts for Tom Foley, who was not present. Mr. Williamson said afterward:

"This presentation of gifts is part of the plan instituted by Mr. Foley to give each child in the district a good time during the Summer and spend not less than $1 on every youngster. The plan was turned over to me to develop, and I began on June 9 to give the children free donkey rides. We have a small wagon which holds six, and this takes 1,700 children each day for a four-block ride. They come from all around, and any child may go.

"Every few days we give them presents. And every day free milk at 4 o'clock. About fifty or sixty quarts of milk a day are distributed.

"The next thing we will do for them is to give a vaudeville show in the Tom Foley Clubhouse. This will be on July 3. The show will be staged by Henry P. Dixon, and will consist of ten, or possibly fifteen, acts. It will cost $1,000. At least 5,000 children will be admitted to this. There is no favoritism in dealing with the youngsters. Any who come may receive a gift. And if they come back twice they are never rebuked, but simply get two presents. I have never had an accident in dealing with the children, which is wonderful when one considers the disorder. I have about fifteen strong boys to help me. To-day we had on hand for distribution 1,728 banks and $90 in new nickels, three gross of dolls dressed in pink or blue, five gross of woolly white dogs, ten gross of gold-filled rings, and a quantity of strings of beads."

SCHOOLBOY GOLFER FIRST AT FOX HILLS

Leading a field of eighty-one players, Max R. Marston, the interscholastic champion of the east, won the medal in the qualifying round of the invitation tournament over the links of the Fox Hills Golf Club yesterday, returning a card of 37-41—78. J. Harold Slater, one of the best of the home club's representatives, came in second, two strokes behind Marston. Third on the list was Fred R. Blossom of Wee Burn, a young man who will enter Yale next Fall, and is said to possess the makings of a champion. He returned 81.

Other favorites, such as Chisholm Beach, the New York Athletic Club champion; B. T. Allen, runner-up in the recent Sleepy Hollow tournament, and Hamilton Kerr of South Shore, each turned in 82. Beach was steady enough, but was not quite up to his standard. Allen went awry on his putting, while Kerr encountered a poor start and had to take seven on each of the first two holes, almost ruining his chances.

The youthful Marston sailed along finely going out, reaching the turn in 37, par figures. He played poorly at a couple of holes coming back, notably at the eleventh, where he overapprached the green on his fourth shot and required three putts. Twice he required extra tries for the cup.

The first match round in the four sixteens will begin this morning, with the draw in the chief sixteen as follows: Andrews vs. Bottome, Hitchcock vs. Newman, Morrell vs. Janin, Beach vs. Marston, Slater vs. Kerr, Blossom vs. McMenamy, Prindle vs. Harris, and Mendel vs. Allen. The scores:

Marston Wins at Baltusrol, Too.

Max Marston performed the unusual feat of winning the medal at Fox Hills in the early part of the day yesterday, then, going to Baltusrol, and as a partner of Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers, won the gross prizes in the mixed foursomes competition over the Short Hills links. Marston and Mrs. Rogers returned a card of 89, 4—85. Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Nash were the net winers with 100, 12—88, for the reason that Marston and Mrs. Rogers could not take two sets of prizes. Mrs. F. B. Ryan of Cranford was another to make a quick trip, coming over from Forest Hill after taking part in the women's tournament there. The scores:

Williamson, Huntingdon Valley, 7 and 5; Miss Eleanor Chandler, Huntingdon Valley, beat Mrs. Milton Herold, Philmont, 1 up 19 holes; Miss Ethel Campbell, Overbrook, beat Mrs. Florian Krug, Englewood, 3 and 2.

Connecticut Golf Winners.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 26.—Four men remain in the running for the golf championship of Connecticut as the result of to-day's matches on the links of the New Haven Country Club. They are B. P. Merriman of Waterbury, H. T. Topping of Greenwich, N. H. Wheeler and R. Abbott, both of the Brooklawn Club, Bridgeport. The best match in the tournament so far was betwen B. P. Merriman and R. M. Lewis of Ridgefield. The latter is a 17-year-old school boy. The Waterbury golfer had to break the competitive record for the 18-hole course in order to beat Lewis. The youngster held him even going out, but coming in took one more stroke than the veteran. Merriman's score was 74; Lewis, 75. The former's course record was 76, made yesterday afternoon.

Hackensack Golf Club Smoker.

The Hackensack Golf Club will hold a smoker in the new locker room of the clubhouse this evening. The home of the club has been enlarged and with the added improvements the organization promises to rank with the other golf clubs of the metropolitan district. The Hackensack club has grown rapidly during the past few seasons and now has a membership of 480. The limit has been placed at 500 and it is expected that a waiting list will soon be established. The golf fever is spreading rapidly in Hackensack, and the course is said to be one of the best among the New Jersey clubs. An attractive entertainment has been arranged for to-night, and the event promises to mark a new era in the club's affairs.

Gallagher Not to Run for N. Y. A. C.

PHILADELPHIA, June 24.—Johnny Gallagher, a local athlete, has announced that he will not run under the colors of the New York Athletic Club, in contradiction to reports that have been printed. In making the announcement Gallagher explains that in order to run under the New York colors he would have to be a resident of New York for at least four months, and that four months from now Georgetown College, at which he is an attendant, will reopen for the Fall term. Gallagher will compete in the Amateur Athletic Union championships in Chicago this Summer, and will specialize in the mile distance with a fair hope of becoming a championship miler.

Gunboat Smith at Garden A. C.

There is every prospect of a lively ten-round boxing bout to-night in Madison Square Garden when George Rodel, the Boer heavyweight, clashes with Gunboat Smith of California. This pair several months ago at a local club mixed it up and provided one of the most sensational bouts recently seen in this part of the country. That is why Billy Gibson has brought them together again. The winner, moreover, will be in line for a bout in the Garden with Jim Flynn or Arthur Pelkey. After defeating Jess Willard in California Smith laid claim to the white heavyweight title because the late Luther McCarty refused to make a match. Smith calls himself the champion and his title will be in the balance when he enters the ring with Rodel. Smith expressed confidence yesterday in his ability to whip the Boer easily. Never has Rodel been in finer condition. He has trained for several weeks and is said to combine rugged strength with remarkable speed. There will be several good preliminaries. The advance sale indicates a great attendance as the public warms up to the heavyweight battles in the big arena.

White-Britton Bout Not Restricted.

NEW ORLEANS, June 26.—Reversing their announcement of yesterday that the Independence Day bout between Charlie White and Jack Britton would be restricted to ten rounds, promoters to-day said the match would be staged, as originally planned, at twenty rounds. Gov. Hall, who formerly opposed the event, was said by the promoters to have consented to allow the match to go twenty rounds upon assurances that it would be strictly a boxing contest and not a prize-fight, in violation of State law.

Caponi-Clabby Bout Canceled.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 26.—The ten-round boxing contest scheduled between Tony Caponi of Chicago and Jimmy Clabby of Hammond, Ind., which was to have been held at the Federal League Baseball Park here on the night of July 4, has been declared off, it was announced. Promoters said Caponi made a sudden demand for a higher guarantee than they cared to give. A fight between Bill McKinnon of Boston and Jack Dillon of Indianapolis, middleweights, will be held at the local American Association ball park on the night of July 3. I tis scheduled for ten rounds.

Meeting of New York Yacht Club.

Commodore Dallas B. Pratt presided last night at the fourth general meeting of the New York Yacht Club, held at its clubhouse in West Forty-fourth Street. Fifteen yachts were represented and twelve members were elected, several of whom were navy members. Charles W. Webb was elected Treasurer of the club to fill the vacancy caused by the death of William Hallock. No mention was made of the challenge for the America's Cup, the matter being in the hands of the America's Cup Committee, which, it is said, will make a report at an early date.

Steel Yacht Natoma Launched.

The twin screw steel yacht Natoma, built for Charles H. Foster of Chicago, Ill., was successfully launched at 3 P. M. yesterday at the Charles L. Seabury & Co. yards. Mrs. Florence E. Foster, wife of the owner, broke a bottle of champagne over the bows and christened the vessel Natoma as it was released from the launching ways. The dimensions of the vessel are 110 feet over all, 112 feet water line, 17 feet beam, and a draft of 5 feet. The hull is of steel throughout and unusually well arranged for extended cruising. The engines are of the "Speedway" type, two six-cylinder, 8½ inches by 10 inches, developing about 165 horse power each. The cruising speed is fourteen miles per hour, and the maximum speed probably fifteen to sixteen miles per hour. The Natoma is enrolled in the Chicago Yacht Club.

Fast Work at Motordrome.

Averaging a bit over 40 seconds per mile for five miles, Charlie Davis, who rides from scratch in the Brighton Handicap at the Brighton Beach Motordrome to-morrow night, gave the railbirds one of the treats of the season yesterday afternoon. The little star hung to the speed line without wavering and seemed to have reserve speed every foot of the way. A big gallery of fans was on hand to see the workouts of the men, and the spectators were thrilled by the showing of the newcomer. Of the limit men that will ride against Davis to-morrow, Kessler, Vanderbury, and Veitz, showed the best form in the practice yesterday, doing the mile in better than 42 seconds for several revolutions. The feature for Sunday's programme will be the second of the Chapple-Davis matches over the five-mile route, best two heats out of three.

FAVORITES BEATEN AT BELMONT PARK

Long shots reigned yesterday at Belmont Park, five of the winners ranging in odds of from 5 to 1 to 20 to 1, the latter being the quotation against R. F. Carman's Kalinka, which started a rather disastrous series for the players on the whole and gave the "layers" their first real good session of the season.

The disqualification of Surprising, a two-year-old from the Carman barn, in the second race, which had been won by a couple of lengths from Ral Parr's Executor, was a decided setback for followers of first and second choices, as those who had backed Kalinka at 20's parleyed on Surprising, only to have the race taken away. It was generally conceded that the colt bore into several of the horses during the race over the five and a half furlongs straightaway course, and that in awarding the race to Executor, the stewards had taken the proper action.

Miss Chamblet's Brosseau, which had finished second in the steeplechase, was also disqualified, the ruling being made that the gelding had run inside one of the flags on the second time around the course. This decision was a blow to the talent, who had centred their attention on Exemplar and Brosseau. The disqualification, coming after Exemplar had taken a header when racing in second place, helped to deplete many a bankroll, with the disaster made complete when Parr's Mater took R. T. Wilson's bay filly Galaxy into camp in the concluding event of the day.

The steeplechase was a series of mishaps from beginning to end. Maxim's Pride went off in front, attended by Exemplar, the even money favorite, which spilled Jockey Palmer at the first jump past the grandstand on the second time around. From that stage it appeared as though there was nothing to it except the Golden Maxim horse, which had been saved up for a "good thing," and made every post a winning one until the last jump, where W. Allen, his rider, fearful that the riderless Exemplar, which had been racing in his wake and taking every jump, was about to crash into him, failed to get Maxim's Pride over the top bar of the fence, with the result that he came down, leaving Henry W. Warner's Nosegay, at 15 to 1, to last long enough to win.

The Ladies' Handicap, a one-mile race for mares, three years and upward, attracted a good field, of which John Sanford's Bally Cliff was installed favorite. Lightly weighted at 95 pounds, she was out in front for the first quarter with Flying Fairy. Then the Sprite mare took up the pace and carried the lightweight along so fast that she had nothing left in the last eighth of a mile.

The winner turned up in that good mare Flamma, which was cleverly ridden by Radtke. Outrun during the early stages, Radtke bided his time and in the stretch, when the others were staggering, he brought Flamma home the easiest kind of a winner by four lengths, in 1:39 3-5. Hedge was second, a head in front of Flying Fairy, while Bally Cliff was three parts of a length further back.

William Hogan, trainer for Bartlett McLenahan, was suspended, and his case, as well as that of Jockey Kelleher, who rode McLenahan's Buckthorn in a recent race, will be brought to the attention of the National Steeplechase Association. Jackey Glass, who rode Surprising, which was disqualified after winning the second race, was suspended for five days for crossing Spearhead in that race. It was announced that the field will be free to the public tomorrow. The summary:

Courtney Favors 'Varsity Four Race

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., June 26.—That the substitution of the Junior 'Varsity eight-oared race for the four-oared event in the Poughkeepsie regatta will lessen the interest in that event is the opinion of Charles E. Courtney, Cornell's rowing coach, who also said to-day that he thought the four-oared event would be returned to the programme. The four-oared event, he says, has always been one of the most interesting because it varied the programme. Mr. Courtney also spoke about the tidal conditions on the Hudson during the recent races. He thinks that it might be well to suggest to the officials of the regatta the advisability of requesting experts to pass on the tide and not to send the crews off when in one lane the tide is running strongly, while on the opposite side of the course the tide may be slack or running in the opposite direction. He said the Pennsylvania four had no chance to win because the tide was running against it. Judge Irvine, Cornell's Steward, voted for the junior eight race.

ELENA WINS YACHT RACE.

Twenty Boats in Annual Regatta of New York Yacht Club.

With her great spinnaker set to port and swelling in the easterly breeze and her immense mainsail swung broad off to starboard, M. F. Plant's schooner yacht Elena presented a spirited picture yesterday afternoon as she approached the finish line off Motts Point in Hempstead Bay. Just 30 seconds before crossing it her crew "doused" the spinnaker, and gathered it inboard as she finished the winner in her class in the sixty-sixth annual regatta of the New York Yacht Club, in which twenty yachts had started in all classes.

In a close race over a triangular course of about 25 miles on the Sound the Elena had won from E. Walter Clark's Irolita by 2 minutes and 25 seconds corrected time. She was also the winner of the James Gordon Bennett Cup for schooners.

J. P. Morgan's black sloop Grayling, steered by Junius Spencer Morgan, was the first of the "fifties" to finish, and she not only won in her class from the Iroquois II. by 2 minutes and 6 seconds, but she captured the Bennett Cup for sloops. Harry Payne Whitney's Barbara was third boat in this class.

There was some close work in the Sound schooner class. The Vandalia, Rival, and Moira had covered a 14¾-mile course, and they finished in that order, the Vandalia, handled by her owner, W. Butler Duncan, winning from the Rival by just 23 seconds. Addison G. Hanan's new Josephine of the P Class won again, defeating the Windward, her only opponent yesterday, by 12 minutes and 54 seconds, and incidentally beating the time of the winning sloop in the New York Yacht Club 30-foot class—the Rowdy—by 8 minutes corrected time.

Two accidents—not serious enough to mar the day's sport—took place early in the race. The Acushla, owned by G. M. Heckscher, in attempting to luff sharply around the windward buoy marking the starting line, fouled Vice Commodore George F. Baker's Ventura and broke her starboard spreader, forcing her to tack immediately after crossing the line to save her mast. Ventura was on the starboard tack, holding her course across the line. Acushla proceeded, but in rounding the Parsonage Point buoy half an hour later she ran on a rock and had to be towed off. She retired from the race, and was taken to City Island to be hauled out. Ventura repaired her damage and finished the race.

THE BANKING BILL AMENDED.

There is an impression abroad that the Banking and Currency bill as originally prepared by Chairman CARTER GLASS of the House Committee was a meritorious and workable measure. Before it saw the light, the bill was much changed, and for the worse. The theories and the influences that dictated the changes are well known. They have more than once come up for examination and rejection by the country when put forward as articles of the Democratic faith. The bill has been before the country a little more than a week, and it has been subjected to the closest examination and a good deal of criticism. Its purpose and by far the greater number of its provisions have been approved. But defects have been pointed out with such clearness and authority that some of them have now been cured. Those engaged in framing the measure are to be commended for their wisdom in listening to the voice of experience and in accepting the light of reason for their guide.

Chairman GLASS announces that the original provision for the gradual retirement of the National Bank notes based on 2 per cent. Government bonds is restored to the bill. The process of substituting 3 per cents without circulating privilege for the 2 per cents will be extended for twenty years, and in place of the National Bank notes thus retired, Federal Reserve Treasury notes will be issued. The effect of this will be in time to substitute Treasury notes for all the present National Bank notes, but it appears that the bill will permit the issue up to a limit of $500,000,000 of Treasury notes in addition to the present volume of bank notes. In its practical working, this plan would naturally operate against any rapid and undue currency inflation. A most important change is made in vesting the Federal Reserve Banks in each zone with power to fix the rate of discount for that zone, subject to the review of the Federal Reserve Board. In the bill as published the Federal Reserve Board had the power on its own motion to fix the rate of discount in all the zones, a plan so unwise and unworkable that it is not surprising that the destructive criticisms leveled against it have been heeded.

A reasonable freedom as to the keeping of their reserves has been extended to the country banks by the amendments now published. The bill as given out provided that of their 15 per cent. reserve they should keep one-third in their own vaults, one-third in the Federal Reserve Bank, and the other third either in their own vaults or with the reserve bank, at their option. At present the country banks are allowed to count as part of their reserve the balances they necessarily keep with their correspondent banks in cities. It is obviously a hardship to compel them to provide these balances in addition to the reserves they are required to keep. The amendment permits them to keep one-third of the reserve in their own vaults, one-third with the Federal Reserve Bank of the zone, while the remaining third may be either kept at home or sent to a correspondent bank in a central reserve city, at the discretion of the Central Reserve Board.

This change will be welcomed by the country banks, and in some measure will tend to change their attitude toward the bill, which it is understood has been unfavorable. Chairman GLASS announces that the bill will now be introduced without further amendment. The provision for a Federal Reserve Board of seven members, all appointed by the President, three of them being ex officio members, and only one to have the qualification of banking experience, remains unaltered. That is a mistake. It puts the full power of control over banking into the hands of political appointees of the Administration, where it never ought to rest. With the fullest imaginable power over the banking business and the currency the Government will be unable to prevent the periodical recurrence of financial troubles and panicky conditions. But with the power must go the responsibility. Under this bill the country will hold the Administration of the day responsible for any disasters that may come. It is most unwise for the Government or any Administration to put itself in that position. The Government's credit, the Administration's reputation and standing, should be above the accidents of business and finance. The bankers in conference with the President, the Secretary of the Treasury, and Mr. OWEN and Mr. GLASS, made the very reasonable suggestion that the Federal Reserve Board should be increased from seven to eleven members, by adding four representative bankers, to be named by the President from a list of twelve bankers nominated by the twelve regional reserve banks. This change would not destroy the Administration's control, it would give the board the very great benefit of the knowledge and experience of the banker members.

It is plain that a refusal to change the composition of the board in this way, a change that would so manifestly and largely enhance the probability of the successful working of the plan, must be based upon some other desire than that of enacting a really sound measure of banking reform. The preconceived notion, not to call it prejudice, in favor of a purely political control of the banking system seems to stand in the way of this amendment to the bill. It is unfortunate, for if politics would now yield to the teachings of all banking experience, it is probable that the bill could very promptly be put in a form which the country would gladly accept.

A THEATRICAL FAILURE.

The ability of the I. W. W. to harass employers, insult the Government, and assemble mobs is not to be questioned. It also controls a fair measure of destructive talent. But when it rushed into the theatrical business it undertook more than it could successfully accomplish. Many individuals have had the same experience with the same results. There is no other business so delusive and disappointing. HAYWOOD went blithely into the show business, with the idea that anybody can give a theatrical performance and make money. A thousand or more of his fellow-beings between Thirty-fourth and Fiftieth Streets could have told him he was sure "to come out a loser," and they know, for only one man in 10,000 or more who thus venture into theatricals makes his expenses.

The I. W. W., however, asked for no advice, and received none. Its performance in Madison Square Garden drew a great crowd, and the receipts were enormous, $7,645.40. But the result is a deficit of nearly $2,000. Of course, these amateur managers argue that if they could have repeated the show every night for a week they would have made money. Many inexperienced navigators on the dangerous sea of theatricals have been wrecked on that rock; but, obviously, if receipts of nearly $8,000 for one performance do not pay expenses, a week's run of the I. W. W.'s big show should have caused greater disaster. The receipts would have dwindled after the first night.

The exhibition did not help the cause of the I. W. W., or that of the Paterson strikers, in the least. The only way the strikers can help themselves is by going back to their work in the mills. As for the I. W. W., it has learned now that theatricals are not in its line. At best they represent not "direct action," but the reverse. Arson, murder, pillage, incitement to violence, loose talk in public places cost less and enable it to use its collective talents to greater effect. The incident serves to show once more what a precarious calling the theatre manager follows.

ANOTHER RIDER FOR THE PRESIDENT.

The Democratic caucus resolved that it should be in order to put on any appropriation bill a rider abolishing the Court of Commerce, and enacting fresh legislation for the transfer elsewhere of the jurisdiction which it exercises. This is done while the ink of the President's signature is hardly dry upon his protest against legislation in that manner. It would have been more in accordance with the fitness of things if it had been a Republican House which embarrassed a Democratic President in a manner so disagreeable to him. As it is, a Democratic House seeks to antagonize the President with the business interests which have asked what it is said the President approves granting to them. A catalogue of all the interests which have formally petitioned for the preservation of the Commerce Court is too long for reproduction, but some of them may be mentioned as examples of the country's sentiment outside Congress: The New York Merchants' Association, the National Industrial Traffic League, (representing 150 cities and industrial organizations,) the Chicago Board of Trade, the National Hay Association, the Louisiana Railroad Commission, the Ohio Shippers' Association, and the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

Attorney General WICKERSHAM, at one time not overfriendly to the Court, personally appeared before a Congressional committee to support the continuance of the Court. The head of the Court was formerly the head of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and the President took a position in favor of the Court after the expression of the Commission's views to that effect. The Federal Judges who have approved the preservation of the Court are numerous. Shippers generally have approved the work of the Court of Commerce, and if the Court is not continued there will be no body to which shippers can appeal for relief against decisions of the Interstate Commerce Commission declining to grant relief to shippers' grievances.

While this is the representative body of opinion favoring the existence of the Court, there is no similar body of opinion hostile to it outside of Congress. There have been scattered individual opinions hostile to the Court, based generally upon adverse decisions, or other considerations of private rather than public interest. In this case as well as in other cases affecting business, Congress aligns itself against the opinion of the representatives of the country's commerce. Addressing the largest single business interest in the United States, Judge GARY said:

> The President of the United States has said that honest business need not be afraid. Let us be honest. Let us take him at his word. Let us assume that he means what he says.

It would be agreeable to do so. But how is it possible when the acts of Congress and some of the acts of the Administration flout the appeals made to them? Where are the business organizations which are passing votes of confidence in the Administration, and thanking it for kindly offices? There is no better opinion in the land than that which has met with refusal when making proper requests, not for favors, but for the simple preservation and administration of the law as it is, and as it ought to be. On the other hand, license has been given to lawbreakers in a manner which makes it difficult to call a halt even after excessive concessions to a spirit that needs curbing rather than a looser rein.

The President has made it impossible for him to veto any rider because it is a rider, and yet he thinks that he ought to do so. It is a dilemma which he has created for himself, and it is likely to be repeated whenever Congress wishes to discipline him. Congress is invading the prerogative of the Executive much as the President is invading that of Congress. It is an interesting struggle for dominance, but the merits of the main question are submerged, and not for the country's benefit.

NO BUDGET FOR THE NATION.

The reason why the Democratic caucus resolved against the creation of a budget for the nation cannot be obscured. It is said that the power of a budget committee would be too great, and that its Chairman would be too formidable a political figure. That could be true only if he fulfilled the expectation of reform in the country's finances, and it would be a moderate price to pay for the boon of the establishment of a Czar whose rescripts against waste and graft and inefficiency would be so excellent as to compel pandering to the rising demand of the taxpayers for relief.

The real reason for the obstruction of the reform is the selfish interests committed to the inexpressibly bad customs now prevailing. There is nothing in support of it in any party platform, but it is the perquisite of the camp followers of all parties. They represent the localities which elect them, and nobody in Congress represents the nation at large. The Chairman of a budget committee would not formally represent the nation, but he would be under the observation of all the job hunters, and therefore be under the necessity of dividing the allotments fairly. He would be loved for the enemies he would make, for he would be the target of malicious criticism, and he would have to make himself invulnerable on the merits of his conduct.

It would be easier for any such master of its appetites as the Congress fears to establish himself on that platform than to maintain himself upon it. The idea is above criticism, but the execution of it would need to be almost that of a superman. As the matter stands the Democratic caucus creates an issue for its opponents by taking an indefensible position. It is assuming the ground that the same party which wishes to take charge of the greatest and most complicated issues of the country's commerce should preserve the most uncommercial arrangements in its own administration. It is proposing that there shall be no head, no system, no correlation between debit and credit in the affairs of this billion-dollar country. It is proposing to run the country without a balance sheet, without an operation account, with no method of reviewing its contracting and purchasing relations, without the information necessary for economical administration. There is nothing to be said in defense of the proposal. There had not been a word of politics in it up to the time when the Democratic caucus rejected the budget proposal because of its merits, and imposed upon that party the demerits of that position. The issue has the capacity of assuming the same primacy in national as in New York politics. It is easily the greatest question before the electorate of the State which carries the Union, and does so even more because of its ideas than because of its votes. After New York has adopted the budget idea for itself—as it already has largely done, and with approval for the progress made—a demand for the same boon for the nation will be the next step. It is a reform which cannot move backward, and which cannot be shirked. There is room for much Republican joy over the Democratic sinner that persists in folly.

VEXATIOUS COURT HOUSE DELAYS

The delay in the matter of taking over the site for the new Court House and beginning work on the erection of that much-needed building is discouraging. The history of the inception of the plan, the years wasted in securing a site, and the persistent efforts of certain influential persons in and out of the Legislature to compel the seizure of City Hall Park for that purpose, would fill a large volume. As the matter stands now, a site has been selected, a plan for the building has been approved by a committee of competent architects and the Court House Board, and arrangements have been made by the city to take over enough additional land in the neighborhood of the site to insure architectural harmony, but further progress is delayed by the objections of the Judges to the accepted design. It seems to the amazed public that these objections might have been made known earlier in the proceedings. Nobody had supposed that, after the conflict of many years was nearly finished, the Justices of the Supreme Court, who presumably feel the need of new and permanent quarters for the law courts more than any other citizens, would place fresh obstacles in the way of carrying out the plans.

Mr. LOWELL's design may be defective in more ways than one. It seems that its defects might have been discovered earlier. If they are irremediable, a new plan must be prepared, and that will require more wearisome months. Until the design is finally accepted definite action cannot be taken on the report of the appraisers, which is finished. The exact site must depend largely on the size and shape of the building.

A committee of the Board of Estimate, assisted by an advisory committee of architects, has settled upon plans for the transformation of the whole neighborhood of the Court House site. New streets are to be laid out, and new routes provided for the surface cars. The cost of the Court House site and the building is practically settled. The present cost of the additional land required will not exceed $2,000,000 if the purchase is made immediately. If further delay can be avoided the city will be saved from the expenditure of many more millions in the future. A conference will be held to-day between the Court House Board, the Board of Estimate, and representatives of the Judges, to try to reach an intelligent agreement. If that can be done, the matter can be settled at next Tuesday's meeting of the Board of Estimate, title can be taken to the whole tract, and the work of clearing, boring, and sounding for the foundations can be prosecuted during the Summer.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

When Flour Becomes an Explosive.

That an explosion violent enough to wreck a great industrial plant and to cause the loss of many lives should have resulted from the igniting by an accidental spark of the wheat flour that reposes so peacefully in every kitchen is sufficiently astonishing—to those who have never had occasion to reflect on the nature and composition of gunpowder, dynamite, and the other recognized explosives.

These substances in essentials are all alike, and all are capable of suddenly releasing enormous power because they combine in close proximity finely divided carbon with exactly the quantity of oxygen necessary for its complete combustion—for what a chemist would call its oxidation. The burning can be started in several ways, but, however begun, it is just such a process as takes place in the domestic cookstove or furnace, and always there is the same expansion of solids into gases occupying vastly more space. Whether the effects are gentle and beneficial or violent and destructive depends on the speed with which the change occurs, and that, in turn, on the intimacy of the union of the combining elements.

Now, finely comminuted grain such as accumulates in places where wheat is handled or ground, like the coal dust that covers everything in mines, is safe or dangerous according to the amount of air distributed through it or through which it is distributed. When the proportions happen to be exactly right, only a spark, perhaps only a shock, is needed to produce an explosion as vigorous, and for the same reason, as is that of nitroglycerine.

Not all mine explosions are of this sort, but all mill explosions are, and every one of the kind is easily and completely preventable by seeing to it that the dangerous dust is either removed or kept in a non-combustible condition, which it is when wet or compressed. Coal, as we commonly know it, burns slowly simply because most of its particles are out of reach of the ever-hungry oxygen. The same thing is true of wheat flour and the dust of other grains. They are all good fuels, though too expensive for such use. There is, fortunately, no need to mark the family flour barrel or sack "Dangerous!" as if it were a powder magazine, but that is only because in no conditions at all likely to exist in homes can their stability be overcome.

The Edible Birds and "Pests."

Grave anxiety is felt by all who are interested in the preservation of bird life because the feather importers seem to have convinced the Senatorial committee now considering the Tariff bill that it would be only common sense to permit the bringing into this country of the feathers of birds killed for food or as pests. And there is, indeed, a dangerous, but wholly deceptive, plausibility in these claims for exemption.

To the food argument, besides the answer that practically all birds are or can be eaten, there can be added another, suggested to us by Secretary T. GILBERT PEARSON of the Associated Audubon Societies, to which we have not seen previous reference. The food birds are already more or less protected in most countries at the mating and breeding season, but it is just at this season, and only then, that their feathers have the vivid colors and are in the perfect condition that make them of value to the purveyors of the millinery trade. Therefore would the food bird exemption be especially disastrous in that it would include the vast majority of seed and insect eating birds, and would permit, or at least reward, destruction at the time when it means the death of two generations. Nothing tends more than that toward the rapid extermination of any bird tribe subjected to it.

As for the "pest" idea, that epithet can be and is with something of truth applied to most birds by somebody, and neither the feather importers nor their Senatorial friends propose any test of its justice. Mocking birds are a "pest" to some men because they eat a few grapes, the pisciculturist rages at any bird that interferes with his spawn or fry—as most water birds do—and the ill-informed farmer can see no good in crows because they pull up a little young corn besides killing innumerable cutworms.

To admit to our market the feathers of all birds considered edible by somebody and all those held injurious by anybody is therefore in effect to remove all prohibitions, and it would leave the feather dealers as they want to be—subject to no restrictions whatever. The consequences would not be merely sentimental—they would involve enormous ultimate losses of the most material kind to the very men whose blind greed for immediate profits makes them the deadly enemies of all birds.

Gatun Lake Will Surely Be Haunted.

In the order just given for closing the gates in the Gatun Dam, and the raising of the lake behind it to the destined level, those who crossed the Isthmus on the old railway can read more than that the great canal will be ready for ships within a few months. The filling up of that lake means the disappearance of several good-sized towns and scores of little hamlets which, besides having all the picturesqueness of the tropics, are among the very oldest in the western world.

Their beginning dates back to the days of CORTEZ and PIZARRO—to those of the less stately but not less heroic pirate MORGAN—to those of a hundred other spacious villains who, unlike their successors in these narrower days, were somehow able to make theft and murder romantic professions, almost worthy to be called arts.

None of the to-be-submerged towns, to be sure, is or ever was of any large importance. Their names had been forgotten by all except their own inhabitants until the canal builders and the tourists invaded them, but they did stand on the first "transcontinental road" the Americas ever had—a road, too, that has been in constant use ever since the Spaniards opened it for the travel of their gold-bearing mules.

Obliteration of much the same sort will be caused by New York's far hunt for drinking water, but Ulster County villages, though they have stories of their own, have no such thrilling associations as are possessed by the villages on the Royal Highway across Panama. Perhaps the water from Ulster County will taste the better for it, and that's an advantage, after all.

SYMPOSIUM ON BALDNESS.

Doctor, Barber, and Laymen All Reject the Germ Theory.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Who ever saw a man's head bald below his hat except through disease? Why does the same germ that destroys the hair on the crown of the head leave untouched the hair below the hat line? Why does not the mustache come in for a little germ work? It, too, receives a little attention from the fatal comb and brush of the barber.

A hat fitting tightly against the scalp compresses the blood vessels leading up to the top of the head and the hairs do not receive their proper amount of nourishment and drop out.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As a barber for over twenty-six years I have given considerable thought to the subject of baldness and I have come to the conclusion that Mr. Sheffield is far off the mark in putting the blame on the combs and brushes in the barber shops. People of means who have the barber come to their houses the whole year round and whose combs and brushes are kept scrupulously clean often have bald heads. Every barber combs his hair with the same comb and brush he uses for the customers, and yet it is a recognized fact that very few of the barbers are bald headed.

Mr. Sheffield claims that the ladies don't become bald headed because they don't go to barber shops. This is a very poor argument, because if women were inclined to become bald headed the same as men nine out of ten would have to wear a wig, as ladies visit hairdressing parlors frequently and hardly any lady thinks of bringing her own brush and comb to the hairdresser. I know from experience that hairdressers have been using the same combs and brushes on hundreds of ladies without ever finding that any lady ever lost her hair on that account.

New York, June 26, 1913. A. RAUCH.

Why all this worry in your most interesting paper on the cause of baldness? Why should any one object to being bald? To me it is a sign of evolution in human beings, the mark of which I should be very happy to shew. But, alas! I have a head of hair so strong and thick that it is more or less of a nuisance. As the ladies say, "I can't do a thing with it." If I keep it fairly short, I am mistaken for an Anarchist, and if I wear it long I am mistaken for a waiter or a musician. I wash my hair every day, I have always worn tight hats, and I worry about as much as the average individual. Still my hair grows and grows. I have a stiff beard and shave every day, and I never could understand why men are so anxious to keep the hair off their faces and on their heads.

Let the near-bald-headed man stop worrying about his lack of hair and thank his stars that he is one of the advance guards of evolution. I envy the man who is bald because he doesn't have to sit in a barber's chair and listen to advice on how to prevent a thing which is much to be desired.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

How about baldness among women? My hair, for instance, is so scanty that I am obliged to augment it with a "switch," which is always threatening to tumble off, because there is nothing substantial to fasten it to, and I have not had a haircut since I was 9, nor worn a hard hat, nor used other people's combs and brushes, nor tried on other people's hats. This unfortunate scantiness or sparseness has made me peculiarly observant of other people's hair, and I am correspondingly downhearted when they display a lot of it. This downheartedness is beginning to affect my general health and will in time I fear indirectly kill the few wisps of hair I now cherish.

THE BLOND ESKIMO

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have before me a pamphlet written by Major Gen. A. W. Greely—a reprint from the National Geographical Magazine, December, 1912, whose title is "The Origin of Stefansson's Blonde Eskimo." After a perusal of this pamphlet, which is the résumé made by an able and conscientious authority upon polar history, the natural conclusion is that these so-called blond Eskimos were not discovered by Mr. Stefansson any more than by the explorers of earlier times. In his "Tales and Traditions of the Eskimo," Dr. H. Rink, who lived twenty-two Summers and fourteen Winters in Greenland, translates the following tale from the Eskimo language: "Iviangeravok started for the south of Greenland, and, having passed Cape Farewell, he came to the eastward to some light-haired people of European origin."

In 1828-29 Capt. Graah, Danish Royal Navy, said of an East Coast Greenlander who came to trade at Julianhaab, on the southwest coast: "He had the long black hair and black eyes of his race, but nothing else in his exterior characteristics of the Eskimo. He was about six feet high and strongly built." And again, referring to women and children of the east coast of Greenland, says: "Many of them have brown hair and complexion scarcely less fair than that of our [Danish] peasantry." Again, in the ethnological summary of Capt. Holm's Danish Royal Navy expedition, 1883-85, Prof. Soren Hansen says of the Eskimo of East Greenland, that in their eyes the color of the iris was brown, shading from a dark brown to light brown, with a single exception—a young woman of 20 years, who had blue eyes. None of these natives had ever seen white men. To go back in history, Hans Egede, who entered West Greenland in 1721 and permanently established Christianity there, says: "The Eskimos have broad faces and thick lips, are flat nosed and of a brownish complexion, though some of them are quite handsome and white." Then David McRitchie has published an account of a voyage in which a Flushing Captain, one Nicholas Tunes, claimed a northing in the Summer of 1656 of 72 degrees N. in Davis Strait. Continuing, Tunes says: "In regard to inhabitants [of Greenland] we saw two kinds who lived together on most friendly terms. Of these one kind is very tall, well built, rather fair complexion and very swift of foot," &c. Sir Edward Parry writes of natives seen on the shores of Lyon Inlet in 1821: "We could scarcely believe them to be Eskimos. There was a degree of lankness in their faces, &c. Two men and three women (of one group) had good Roman noses. * * * Several children had complexions nearly as fair as Europeans. It may be added that the portraits of a few of these people in no way resemble Eskimos," &c. These people had never seen Indians or Europeans.

Sir John Franklin, in his journey to the Polar Sea in 1821, met a single Eskimo near the mouth of the Coppermine, and says that "the countenance of White Fox was oval, with a sufficiently prominent nose, and had nothing very different from a European face except in the smallness of the eyes, and, perhaps, in the narrowness of the forehead. His complexion was very fresh and red, and he had a longer beard than I had ever seen an aboriginal inhabitant of America. It was between two and three inches long and perfectly white." In 1837 Thomas Simpson, exploring the continental coast west to Point Barrow with P. W. Dease, met a band of sixty Eskimos west of Mackenzie River. Records that "three men were remarkable for good looks and a stature of 5 feet 10 inches to 6 feet. Some of them had light-colored eyes and complexions which, if cleaned from grease, might have passed for fair in most parts of Europe."

The attractively interesting question as to the admixture of Norse blood with Eskimo, of the pronounced Irish characteristics, and the occurrence here and there of very marked Jewish features that members of different expeditions have recorded, as did that of the Peary expeditions of 1892-3-4, of which I was a member, cannot be discussed in this letter. However, I think that I have indited enough proof to show that the latest one on the ground is one among quite a number who antedated him many years ago. Assuredly, the subject is as fascinating as it is intricate.

The President's Wife.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your correspondent who suggests that the wives of Kings and Presidents ought to be honored equally with their husbands does not understand the difference between the German Empress and the wife of the Chief Magistrate of the United States. The latter has no official status and is, except to some shallow sentimentalists, no more the first lady of the land than is the wife of the Mayor the first lady of the City of New York. When we elect a real lady President instead of a ladylike gentleman then I am sure we shall all be glad to see her face, which will doubtless be an honor to the land, even on the coins of the great Republic.

Library "Hogs."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the great reading room on the third floor of the Public Library books of reference are arranged on the open shelves. Lecterns are conveniently placed near by, on which dictionaries and encyclopedias can be placed for consultation. Still some men are too lazy to transport a big book ten steps. They plant themselves squarely in the middle of the section, they open wide the dictionary and rest it on the edge of the shelf, thus preventing approach by any other person.

The papers have had much to say about the "end-seat hog" in open cars, but the "section hog" of the library is a greater pest because he simply cuts off all approach to the books.

Protecting Central Park.

The present City Charter makes Central Park a mere police precinct. This provision is iniquitous, and the protection of the park is thus put into hands untrained and incompetent, while the Park Commissioner is left powerless except to request.

Sooner or later, it is to be hoped most sincerely, each succeeding Park Commissioner will be governed by a settled policy, one worked out by the designers with the greatest care and foresight, whether in respect to the creation or the maintenance of Central Park. We may then be spared the sorry spectacle of a Commissioner running about helplessly.

Since the arrival of the steamship Imperator there has been a great deal of uncertainty in regard to the proper pronunciation of the name. Does it not come from the Latin word meaning "general" or "leader"? And should it not be pronounced with the accent upon the third syllable?

ASSAILS COURT "SPYING."

Judge Speer of Georgia Denounces Federal Examiner System.

SIOUX CITY, June 26.—Criticism of the Department of Justice for "arbitrary espionage or investigation" of Federal Judges by means of examiners by Judge Emory Speer, United States Judge for the Southern District of Georgia, was a feature of the annual meeting of the Iowa State Bar Association, which was held here to-day.

Judge Speer spoke with great vigor and emphasis, insisting that the situation was "intolerable." He said, in part:

"More dangerous than the power to disqualify a Judge is the power to disgrace and defame him. My brethren, I ask you to consider if, in the utter absence of all charges against him, is not the recently adopted method of arbitrary espionage or investigation of a Judge, made by examiners, as they are termed, of the Department of Justice, under the direct order of the Attorney General, to maltreat American Judges with cruel and apparently callous indifference to their reputation and good name?

"I speak impersonally and with all due deference and respect for the head of a department who is ex officio the leader of the American bar. He is, however, also the leading counsel for the Government, and no matter how considerate, how equable in thought and language, how completely non-partisan he may be, ought any lawyer to have inquisitorial power over the Judge who is to try his case? And, least of all, should this power be exercised in a land where the independence of the judiciary is the very foundation stone of the national structure?

"Is it not indeed intolerable that the lawyer who is the leading counsel for the Government shall have within his power and control the right to question the honor and character, official and personal, of the Judge upon whom determinations of all national jurisdiction must depend? True, the Attorney General can act at any time and make an accusation he thinks proper, as can any citizen, but can he constitutionally exert the powers, detail the officials, utilize the machinery, and expend the money of the Government in inquisitorial examinations of a Judge, appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate and who holds his office during good behavior?

"Where is the constitutional right or statutory authority? Does this not commit to a lawyer on one side of a multitude of cases the right to investigate the title to his office of the trial or appelate Judge, and if this could ever be properly done, should it ever be done without notice to the Judge and information to him of the complaints against him?

"This method is very, very recent. I dare declare that no other could be more offensive to the chastity of judicial vigor. With experience of four years in the service of my State and thirty-four years in the service of my country, I declare that no other proceeding can be so destructive of the confidence and support accorded the judiciary by the masses of the people.

"To endure such an ordeal as that I have but feebly portrayed, without suffering the most intolerable, the Judge must have the hardihood of a head-hunting Igorrote or a Patagonian savage."

MACON, Ga., June 26.—For three weeks R. C. Lewis, special investigator of the Department of Justice, and several examiners have been in Macon inquiring into the official actions of Judge Emory Speer. Lewis has attended sessions of the court while Judge Speer was presiding and made notes of the proceedings. He has interviewed many attorneys and obtained affidavits from them. He also has talked with many citizens who have been litigants in the court.

Car Passengers Imperiled.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A few days ago I came near being run over by an automobile which rushed past the trolley car from which I had just alighted. I trust the effort being made to compel machines to slow up when passing trolleys from which passengers are alighting may meet with success.

GRANDMOTHER'S CHAIR.

And list to the terrible tunes of Broadway,
At velvet and laces and shoulders of milk,
Inhaling the air of the tango—a scent
Of champagne and roses and gasoline blent—
A picture of grandmother drifts in the glare,

In a sprinkling of polka dots little and big,
Like snow were the ruffles on apron and cap,
With needles, thread, thimbles, and scissors inside;
She had silver-rimmed glasses, and silver-white hair,

That chair—all the framework was painted in green,
Not a rush ever broke by so much as a splint,
The legs and the back were as firm as a flint,
And there in the sunlight my grandmother sat
And crooned to the baby, and talked to the cat,

Grandmother's knitting is folded away,
Her chair has been empty for many a day,
But her spirit still flourishes, helpful and sweet,
In the boys and the girls she so tenderly taught
To be honest and loyal in action and thought,
As strong and reliable, steady and square,

WANTS JAPANESE TO BECOME CITIZENS

EXPECT US TO BE JUST

"As this country is so situated as to be able to stand aloof from the dark practices of international politics, America should be the leader of all the nations of this world in establishing high ideals of justice and humanity in dealings among nations." This was the keynote of an appeal to America on behalf of the Japanese in California made by Dr. J. Soyeda, a noted economist, at a luncheon given to him and Tadao Kamiya by the Japan Society of New York at the Hotel Astor yesterday afternoon, at which Hamilton Wright Mabie presided. Dr. Soyeda represents with Mr. Kamiya, who is a member of the Tokio Chamber of Commerce, the American Japan Society, and the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Japan. They were sent to this country to advise the Japanese in California, but they were careful to explain that their mission was in no way connected with the Government. While they were in California they studied the conditions surrounding their countrymen in that State. In his address yesterday, Dr. Soyeda said:

"Visiting the chief centres where my fellow-countrymen reside and coming into direct touch with them, we found them in perfect order, pursuing peaceful vocations, waiting in full hope and trust that a just decision would be arrived at ultimately by the Government and the people of this great Republic. Their calm, patient, and abiding attitude went altogether far beyond our expectations.

"Japan as a nation entertains the highest respect for your country and places the greatest trust in your justice and fairness and firmly believes she will receive a 'square deal' at your hands. In so believing she is fully justified because of many past kindnesses she has received from you—there have been so many in the past that she cannot possibly think otherwise.

"To me it appears there is no other country so often misunderstood as Japan, and one mistake we must rectify is that she is warlike. Is there any power of importance which has enjoyed peace for so long a period as Japan—until she was lately forced to resort to arms for her self-protection and for the preservation of the Far Eastern peace? Her sole aim and aspiration are peace and commerce, progress and civilization, and what she has been trying hard to accomplish has been to harmonize Oriental civilization with that of the Occident. Since Japan became a member of the world's family by your introduction it has been her steadfast policy to adopt and conform to the ideas, habits, and manners of the Occidental peoples."

Dr. David Starr Jordan of Stanford University said that Japan was the only country in the world that liked the United States, and that, therefore, this country should like Japan, too.

"Abraham Lincoln used to say that he had no patience with those that looked upon a foreign race as being unsuitable to come into this country, and I have no patience with them either," he said. "The Japanese are not unsuitable to come into the United States, because they are not, by any means, inferior to us. And they should be permitted to become American citizens. If they become American citizens the Japanese Government need not look after them and they will be under the protection of the American Government. Then the two Governments will not be brought into conflict and the Japanese question will be solved forever."

Reitaro Ichinomiya, New York agent of the Yokohama Specie Bank, thanked Lindsay Russell, President of the Japan Society, on behalf of the Japanese organizations in and around New York City, for the work the society had done to "promote a better understanding between America and Japan."

Jacob H. Schiff was another speaker. He said that California's attitude toward the Japanese in that State was just like that of Russia toward the Jews and of the old régime in Turkey toward the Christians.

Among those present at the luncheon were Melville E. Stone, Jerome D. Greene, Konosuke Seko, Mr. and Mrs. Don C. Seitz, Lawrence F. Abbott, Prof. T. Iyenaga of the University of Chicago, Saburo Kurusu, Japanese Acting Consul General in New York; Willard D. Straight, Isaac N. Seligman, ex-Gov. John Franklin Fort of New Jersey, K. Okazaki, a member of the Japanese Parliament, and Mr. and Mrs. Eugene C. Worden.

GAILLARD ON LOCK CANAL.

Criticisms Apply with Greater Force to Sea-Level Type, He Says.

Col. D. D. Gaillard, Chief of the Central Division of the Panama Canal, which embraces the Culebra Cut, sailed yesterday on the Colon to return to his post after some six weeks' leave of absence. Col. Gaillard, like Col. Goethals, is anxious to get away from the conditions of life in the Canal Zone as soon as possible, though, when speaking in his official capacity at the Walcott, just before sailing yesterday, he asserted that he would leave the work on the great canal with regret. In referring to the criticisms of Philippe Bunau-Varilla, the French engineer, on the Panama Canal, Col. Gaillard said that while it was unprofitable to answer any of M. Bunau-Varilla's arguments against a canal of the present type and in favor of a sea-level ditch, the danger from slides which the Frenchman put forward in criticism of a lock canal applied with much greater force to the sea-level method of construction.

"I haven't had any particulars of a recent slide on the canal," said Col. Gaillard, "though I have heard, in a personal letter, of a large slide on the east side of the canal just south of the Empire Suspension Bridge, on May 7, which heaved the bottom up for a considerable distance. This is probably the one that was reported in the newspapers. Slides that we have had have usually been of a local rather than of a general character, though the small slides invariably merge with one another until the effect when you see the result is as if there had been one big slide. As we excavate more deeply, we remove the lateral resistance from the surface, and this causes breaks. Another reason for the latter is the vibration due to the unavoidable use of dynamite and the running of dirt trains. When we have finished the digging and the blasting and the running of trains, then, it would seem, there would be little reason for the further development of new slides. We count upon removing every slide that is actually in motion by the time we finish.

"After the canal is open for navigation, should a slide occur, it could be very quickly and easily handled by means of dredges or steam shovels or a combination of the two. It is absurd to say that a sea level canal would prevent slides. If we are having so much trouble digging to the depth we are doing, how much more would we be likely to have if we had to go down 85 feet below the present depth! Three-quarters of the slides we have had so far to remove on the Panama Canal have occurred in the last 85 feet we have dug, and certainly if we had to go much further their size and frequency would be apt to increase in something like a geometric ratio."

Doctor of Laws—President G. E. Vincent of the University of Minnesota, Prof. Roscoe Pound of Harvard University, Prof. John Dewey of Columbia University, Dr. John Orlando Roe of Rochester, and Gov. Woodbridge N. Ferris of Michigan.

DR. RAYMOND WEDS MISS G. I. ASHWELL

The wedding of Dr. Edward H. Raymond, Jr., and Miss Grace Isabel Ashwell, a daughter of Mrs. William Cawley Ashwell of Plainfield, N. J., took place at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the Church of the Heavenly Rest, Forty-fifth Street and Fifth Avenue, which was decorated with white flowers and growing plants.

The maid of honor was Miss Madeline Ashwell. She was in palest pink satin veiled with white shadow lace, cut square at the neck and edged with crystal. It had girdle and sash of rose pink velvet. Her small hat of shirred white tulle had in the little poke point at the front a tiny cluster of purple violets. It turned straight up at the back and from it depended long white tulle ends with tiny clusters of rose pink buds and violets caught to the streamers. She carried roses. The bridesmaids were the Misses Muriel W. Ashwell, Helen V. Sherman, Emily Hoyt, and Mary Raymond. Miss Mary Aldrich, who was to have been an attendant, could not, owing to mourning in her family.

The bridesmaids wore large round hats having pink straw crowns and shirred white tulle brims with tiny clusters of mixed flowers—flame-colored roses, heliotropes, forget-me-nots and pink buds caught at odd places in the tulle. Their gowns were trained robes of light rose-pink charmeuse, drawn up a little in the centre front to show the pink satin slippers with pink rosettes and had overdresses of white shadow lace. The girdles were of flame-colored velvet. Clusters of the vari-colored flowers were caught to the sash and here and there on the front of the corsage and at the back. The girls all carried cluster bouquets of bridesmaids' roses tied with pink satin ribbons.

The bride's mother was in white chiffon, having an overdress of black lace and touches of black velvet, and a white tulle hat trimmed with white feathers. Mrs. Raymond, the mother of the bridegroom, was in pale gray satin brocade, topped by the palest possible small hat in gray tulle.

Dr. Raymond's best man was Dr. Edward Colle, and the ushers were Dr. Walter Dickinson, Clarence Helton, Milton Cornell, Irwin Cornell, William B. Symmes, Jr., and Mr. Axhurst of England.

Hamilton Graduate Tells of Marriage After Commencement.

The marriage of Clarence L. Barber of 500 West 144th Street to Miss Eugenie Davenport Burgess, daughter of Mrs. Frederick M. Dowd of Boston, Mass., which took place on Sept. 28, 1912, has just been formally announced.

Although the wedding was not a secret to the relatives of the bride and bridegroom, Mr. Barber managed to keep the fact hidden from his classmates and friends at Hamilton College until last Wednesday, shortly after his graduation. At college he was the manager of Hamilton Life, the student publication, and he was a member of the Theta Delta Chi fraternity.

He announced his marriage just before he took the train at Utica for this city, where he has already started in the advertising business.

ST. DENIS HOTEL FAILS.

Receiver Appointed, but Business May Continue After Reorganization.

Another of the famous old-time hotels of the city, the St. Denis, at Broadway and Eleventh Street, got into difficulties yesterday, and Arthur H. Gottheid was appointed receiver yesterday by Judge Hand. It is probable that there will be a reorganization and that the business will be continued.

From May 1, 1875, to March, 1912, the St. Denis was under the management of the Taylor family, toward the end doing business as William Taylor & Son, Incorporated. But on March 16 last year the St. Denis Hotel Company was organized to take it over. Frank A. McNames is its President, Michael J. Holloway its Vice President and Treasurer, and George A. Reilly its Secretary. Lawrence Mulligan, half-brother of Timothy D. Sullivan, is a Director, and Sullivan himself moved to the St. Denis from his headquarters at the Occidental, at Broome Street and the Bowery, and lived there until his recent illness began. It was generally supposed that he also was largely interested in the St. Denis.

The St. Denis Hotel Company took a ten-year lease of the hotel, with a seven-year renewal privilege, at $4,000 a month. It owes $20,000 for rent. It paid $15,000 for the furniture of the hotel and spent $52,000 on improvements and new furniture, but it received an allowance for its outlay of $25,000, which was to be deducted from the rent for the first year.

Myers & Goldsmith, counsel for the creditors who brought the petition in bankruptcy, explained yesterday that business had been dull for some time, and that, in spite of its many resident guests, the hotel felt the steady trend uptown.

The three creditors who asked for a receiver were Charles M. Atkins, $150 for the rental of a painting; the Elite Steam Laundry Company, $400, and William P. Rooney, who has a claim for $263 on insurance premiums which he advanced.

The assets consist of furniture valued at from $10,000 to $15,000, and supplies which cost between $4,000 and $5,000, the actual value of which is problematical.

SOCIALISTS MARRY.

Miss Dana and R. E. Hutchinson Will Go to New Zealand.

MANCHESTER, Mass., June 26.—Miss Delia Farley Dana, daughter of Richard Henry Dana of Cambridge and a granddaughter of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, the poet, was married here today to Robert E. Hutchinson of Philadelphia. On account of the interest of bride and bridegroom in Socialism, the ceremony was performed by the Town Clerk, and the service was of the simplest character.

After the ceremony the couple left for New Zealand, where Mr. and Mrs. Hutchinson intend to study the principles of State Socialism, with the hope of making practical use of them when they return to America.

CAHAN—WHITEHEAD.

The marriage of Charles Hazlett Cahan, Jr., of Montreal, Canada, and Miss Cecile Whitehead, a daughter of Mrs. Alexander P. Whitehead, took place at noon yesterday in the chapel of St. Michael's Church, Ninety-ninth Street and Broadway, the Rev. Dr. John R. Peters officiating.

The bride was gowned in white lace over chiffon and satin and wore a tulle veil held with lilies of the valley. She carried lilies of the valley and white orchids. Sh had no attendants and walked with her uncle, Judge James Blanchard, who gave her in marriage. Mr. Cahan had his brother-in-law, Burton Habey, as his best man.

The church ceremony was attended by relatives only and a wedding breakfast was served for the bridal party at the home of the bride's mother, 620 West 116th Street.

SEFEROVITCH—HAYES.

Former Montenegrin Officer Weds Miss Bertha G. Hayes.

Mr. and Mrs. Orrill Henry Hayes of 52 West Forty-seventh Street have sent out cards announcing the marriage of their only daughter, Miss Bertha Guernsey Hayes, to Capt. Antony Vladimir Spirov Seferovitch, which was quietly celebrated on Wednesday evening at their home. Only the relatives and a few intimate friends witnessed the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. Dwight E. Marvin of Summit, N. J.

Capt. Seferovitch comes from an old and distinguished family of Montenegro. His parents, now dead, lived in Cettinje, and he first met his bride while she was traveling abroad with her parents, through friends of Mr. and Mrs. Hayes who knew his family well. He has taken out his American citizenship papers and the couple plan to make their home in this city.

GETS $800,000 BY OBEDIENCE TO WILL

IN CHOICE OF HUSBAND

Ban Put on Any Son of Woman Once Grandmother's Friend—Penalty for Disobedience.

Dorothy Falconer Ballard Smith, granddaughter of Mrs. Caroline F. Butterfield, will receive more than $800,000 from Mrs. Butterfield's estate if she does not marry a son of the former Mrs. Eleanor Phelps McKeague, now the widow of Henry Sedley, and if her choice of a husband has the approval of four of the five executors of her grandmother's estate. This provision was incorporated in the will of Mrs. Butterfield, who died on June 7, 1912, leaving property valued in the appraisal, filed yesterday, at $980,292. Mrs. Butterfield and Mrs. McKeague, it is said, were once warm friends, but they had a disagreement which was permanent.

Should Miss Smith disregard this clause in her grandmother's will, her share in the estate will be divided equally among two cousins, the Post-Graduate Hospital, the Children's Aid Society, and the New York Zoological Society. Miss Smith, now 20 years old, has disclaimed any intention of acting against her grandmother's expressed wishes.

Mrs. Butterfield was the widow of Frederick Butterfield, a New York and London merchant. He left his property, valued at $1,000,000, in trust, the income to be paid to his widow during her life and to his daughter, Mrs. Sarah Kate Ballard Smith, the mother of the largest beneficiary under Mrs. Butterfield's will. The principal of this trust fund was to pass, upon his daughter's death, to his legal heirs, "except," as he said in the will, "those children of my late niece, Jane Wright Butterfield, afterward married to Charles Cousin de Montauban, now known as Count de Palikao, I expressly exclude these."

The only evidence of this secondary estate in the appraisal of Mrs. Butterfield's estate was three months' income due her at the time of her death. This amounted to $15,000. Mrs. Butterfield's property, over which she had an absolute right, included $496,446 in mortgages on New York City real estate; bank accounts of $38,682; her house at 17 East Forty-eighth Street, valued at $110,000; furniture and art objects valued at $15,980, and the remainder in securities.

Edward O'Reilly of the art firm of James P. Silo appraised the paintings, four of which were in a loan exhibition in the Metropolitan Museum of Art. The valuations placed upon them by the appraiser were lower than were anticipated. The pictures which were in the Metropolitan Museum and the values placed upon them by appraiser's schedules were: "Early Morn," by Cazin, $2,000; "Ideal Head," by Gustave Jacquet, $250; "Love Token," by Pasini, $400, and "Cordon Bleu," by Vibert, $4,000. There were also three paintings in storage, "Autumn" and "Passing Storm," both by George Inness, appraised at $2,000 and $2,100, respectively, and a portrait by Eastman Johnson, valued at $10.

Mrs. Butterfield bequeathed in her will life interests in various trust funds to cousins and friends, a life trust in her personal effects and $200,000 to her daughter, Sarah Kate Ballard Smith; $5,000 outright to the Orthopedic Dispensary and Hospital, $25,000 to the Children's Aid Society, and the residue to her granddaughter, who also receives the terminated life trusts of the other beneficiaries.

MORE EGG MEN INDICTED.

Latest Charge Is Overclaims for Damaged Goods.

The Federal Grand Jury, which has been investigating since April a complaint of collusion between wholesale egg dealers and railroad inspectors for the padding of damage claims, returned indictments yesterday against De Winter & Co. of 321 Washington Street, John C. De Winter, Edward M. Garrison, Harry D. Wheeler and George Miller; R. B. Shimer & Co. of 336 Washington Street, Harry C. Shimer, and Adolph Fortgang and W. P. Brown & Sons, of 136 Reade Street, William P. Brown and William H. Stanford.

All the defendants with the exception of Miller appeared yesterday before Judge Mayer in the Federal District Court and pleaded not guilty. De Winter, Garrison and Wheeler were held in $5,000 each, Shimer in $3,000, Fortgang in $2,000 and Brown and Stanford in $2,500.

The Government charges that these men conspired to induce the railroad inspectors who were intrusted with the duty of ascertaining the number of eggs broken in shipment in interstate commerce to swell their estimates unduly, thereby practically getting rebates for themselves on the money they paid for freight. In investigating the charges the Government met with considerable difficulty in getting possession of the books of some of the egg dealers.

It is alleged by the Government that one egg shipping firm alone received $80,000 a year more than it should for eggs broken in transit. It is asserted that in a shipment of eggs to DeWinter & Co. from Grover Hill, Ohio, the actual damage sustained was $20.84, but that a claim was put in to the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad for $48.28.

R. B. Shimer & Co. it is charged claimed $15.63 on a shipment which was damaged only to the extent of $3.24 and paid the complaisant inspector $50 to let this and similar claims through unreduced.

"PLAY LEADERS" NOW.

Distasteful Title Is Dropped and Annual Salaries Are Granted.

A number of Playground Attendants appeared at a meeting of the Park Board held yesterday afternoon in the Arsenal in Central Park and said that they were displeased with their title, and requested that they be known as "Play Leaders." They said that they were regarded by a great many parents as laborers, and at times they were asked to run errands.

The board granted their request, and they will be known hereafter as "Play Leaders."

The attendants also asked for an annual salary instead of daily pay of $3 to $4. The board granted this request, and the Play Leaders hereafter will receive annual salaries ranging from $1,200 to $1,500.

CHENAL TO SING HERE.

PARIS, June 26.—Arthur Hammerstein announced to-day that he had engaged Mlle. Marthe Chenal, prima donna at the Opéra and the Opéra Comique for the last five years. He has also concluded arrangements with the composer, Camille Erlanger, to go to New York to conduct his own opera, "Aphrodite," in which Mlle. Chenal sings the leading part.

The impresario said that Chenal would receive a salary of $1,500 a performance. She consented to go to America on condition that she sing "Aphrodite," besides "La Tosca" and "Aida" in Italian, and the usual French répertoire.

C. Vezzani, an Italian tenor, of whom Hammerstein thinks a great deal, has also been engaged.

CENTURY JOINS BOSTON.

Opera Singers Will Be Exchanged—More Principals Engaged.

Milton Aborn cabled to the Century Opera Company yesterday that he had made arrangements in London with Henry Russell, director of the Boston Opera House, to exchange principals at various times during the season between the two organizations. The only individual named is Elizabeth Amsden, prima donna soprano of the Boston company, who will appear at the Century Opera House during the first few weeks of the season.

The Aborns have also engaged for the Century Company Walter Wheatley, tenor; Thomas Chalmers, baritone, and Ivy Scott, soprano, all of whom will be in the permanent forces of the Century Company for next season. Savage for one of the "Merry Widow" companies, and had the title part in his production of "The Girl of the Golden West."

EXPLORERS TO LEAVE BRIDES

When the Crocker Land expedition starts next Wednesday for the arctic regions three newly wedded brides and their husbands, members of the party, will be separated and will not see each other again for at least three years. One wedding has taken place and the other two will occur before the steamship Diana begins her voyage from the Brooklyn Navy Yard to the north.

Miss Victoria Clark and Jerome Lee Allen of 165 Washington Place, Brooklyn, surprised the other members of the party by announcing yesterday that they were married on June 13 by the Rev. D. A. MacMurray in the Lenox Road Baptist Church, Brooklyn. They were schoolmates in their home town in Iowa. Miss Clark, now Mrs. Allen, came here to bid Allen good-bye. They were engaged. Miss Clark in response to Allen's urging, agreed to be married at once.

After Mr. and Mrs. Allen had been congratulated, two other members of the party, Maurice C. Tanquary and Elmer Ekblow, said that they were to be married between now and Wednesday. Miss Josephine Perry, who was a classmate of Tanquary in the University of Illinois in 1907, and since that time a teacher in Chicago, is to become his bride. Miss Augusta Krieger, who was in the Class of 1910 with Ekblow in the same university, will become his wife. Tanquary and Ekblow are making their quarters on board the receiving ship Hancock at the Brooklyn Navy Yard. Their prospective wives are guests of friends in Brooklyn.

The expedition will be under the leadership of Donald B. MacMillan, and will conduct scientific exploring operations in the arctic region during the next three years, under the auspices of the Museum of Natural History.

TORMENTED PARK WOLF.

Caged Animal's Efforts to Escape Stampede a Crowd.

Three youths were arrested by Detective Ottall in Central Park yesterday after he had seen a crowd stampede from in front of the wolf's cage, in the menagerie, due to the manner in which it was throwing itself against the bars. The youths were accused of throwing things at the wolf and tormenting it. In the West Side Court they gave their names as Michael Dorbaey of 40 East Seventy-third Street, Henry Margo of 427 East Seventy-second Street, and John Reba of 421 East Seventy-third Street. They were severely censured by Magistrate Corrigan, who fined them each $2.

At an auction in the Central Park sheepfold yesterday fifty-four lambs sold for $365.25. Seven old sheep brought $47.25 and 700 pounds of wool from the Park flock sold for $130. Several deer were also offered for sale, but owing to the low bids Auctioneer Joseph P. Day declined to sell them. Among the bidders was F. Johnson of Oyster Bay, who purchased ten sheep to act as lawn mowers on his estate. Among the lambs sold was "Sister," who has made a reputation as a "panhandler" by following visitors and begging for sweets. She was a favorite with "Bill" Snyder, the head keeper of the menagerie.

Californians Thought Them Japanese, but Found Them Koreans.

RIVERSIDE, Cal., June 26.—Anti-Asiatic sentiment at Hemet, a small town near here, was shown to-day when a party of citizens met an apricot-picking crew of supposed Japanese from this city and ordered them to leave at once. The baggage of the intruders was thrown on the train after them.

The Asiatics had been engaged by ranchers near Hemet. After they had been driven out the ranchers told the Hemet men that the Asiatics were Koreans.

In a communication from Los Angeles, H. A. Wakabayashi, Secretary of the Japanese Association of Southern California, said the Japanese would avoid any place where they were not wanted, and that the Koreans would not have precipitated the incident had they known of the feeling in Hemet.

When Patrolman Hartman of the East 126th Street Station was guarding the crossing at 120th Street and Second Avenue yesterday afternoon as the pupils of Public School 159 were thronging it on their way home he saw a runaway horse harnessed to a delivery wagon galloping uptown toward them. The policeman hastily cleared the street, and then, just as the horse came up, he jumped for its bridle and hung on. He was dragged twenty-five yards, but he threw the animal when it had kicked him in the leg several times. He was assisted to a drug store, and Dr. Boyd came in an ambulance from the Harlem Hospital to treat him. His bruises were bound up, and he reported himself ill and went home.

The rig belonged to the Twelfth Ward Stables of 307 East 115th Street. It was driven by Joseph Rabinowitz of 2,335 Second Avenue. The driver had lost control of the horse, and the reins were flying when the policeman stopped it.

RATE INQUIRY IS AGAIN ORDERED

WILL SAVE THEM $250,000

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The order of the Interstate Commerce Commission, issued last Saturday, but almost immediately withdrawn, that an inquiry should be made into the contentions of the Eastern railroads that they were entitled to increase their freight rates 5 per cent., was reaffirmed and reissued to-day in different form. The denial by the commission of the petition of the railroads for a rehearing on their application, denied in February, 1911, for permission to advance freight rates is not affected by the order issued to-day, and it therefore stands. But the inquiry which the commission will undertake virtually concedes what the railroads sought and in addition will save an expenditure of about $250,000, the estimated cost of preparing new tariffs which the roads would have been obliged to submit to the commission as a basis for consideration, had the petition for a rehearing been granted.

It became known to-day in connection with the reaffirmed order that the action of the commission in withdrawing its original order was due to objections by Commissioners Clements, McChord, and Marble.

These Commissioners contended that sufficient time had not been given for a consideration of the questions involved in the decision of the commission that there should be an inquiry. After the majority of the commission had agreed to allow time for further consultation, the previous order was reaffirmed by a 5 to 2 vote.

To the report of the commission handed down to-day are attached dissenting opinions of Commissioners Clements and Marble and a separate opinion of Commissioner McChord, in which, while agreeing with the general contentions of the two dissenting Commissioners, he holds that it is the duty of the commission to make the investigation provided for by the reissued order.

In giving reasons for refusing to grant a rehearing of the commission's action in February, 1911, denying the application of the railroads for permission to grant freight rates, and for directing that an inquiry be made into the allegations of the carriers that circumstances justify the advances sought, the commission says:

"The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company, the Erie Railroad Company, the New York Central Lines, and the Pennsylvania Railroad system now petition the commission to re-open the case and proceed with its further consideration. They base their petition upon the ground that the cost of conducting their business has exceeded the forecast of the commission, so that the results are much less favorable than had been anticipated. They assert that to-day, owing to increased costs of operation of various kinds set out in the petition, the net return is no longer sufficient.

"We have therefore determined to deny the petition for a rehearing and have instituted a proceeding of inquiry into the following matters:

"If not, what general course may carriers pursue to meet the situation?

"In this connection the commission desires to make two observations;

"First—The fact that we have decided further to investigate this subject must not be taken as an intimation that the commission has reached the conclusion that revenues are inadequate, or that rates should be advanced. Upon this question no opinion has been formed.

"Second—That the statute gives to any party the right to attack by complaint any rate, and no general conclusion which the commission may reach and announce in this investigation can affect that right."

Each of the three dissenters wrote a brief opinion, holding, in the main, that the commission, having nothing concrete before it, was without authority to establish minimum rates.

The Duke of Sutherland paid a visit to the United States and Canada in the Summer of 1911, when the Liberal Government imposed its heavy land taxes. With other wealthy land owners he started a plan to colonize Western Canada.

He again visited this city in May, 1912, and on behalf of the Royal Yacht Squadron of England, presented to the New York Yacht Club the great carved eagle that adorned the stern of the old yacht America when she raced for and won the famous America Cup of 1850.

The Duke of Sutherland was born in 1851. He was Cornet of the Second Life Guards, 1870, and Lieutenant Colonel of the Sutherland Rifles from 1882 to 1891. He was a Member of Parliament, identified with the Liberal Party, from 1874 to 1886.

In 1884 he married Lady Millicent Fanny St. Clair-Erskine, daughter of the fourth Earl of Rosslyn. Two sons and one daughter were born of the union.

The Boston Braves got little more than exercise out of their double tilt with the Giants at the Polo Grounds yesterday afternoon, McGraw's men taking the opener by a great seventh inning batting rally and the second game by hard hitting all the way. The double victory gave the Giants a big boost in the pennant chase, as the Superbas were mauling the Phillies for a pair of victories at Quakertown while the Polo Grounders were fattening at Boston's expense. The first game was decided 5 to 4, and the second game by 11 to 3.

The Braves had the opening game apparently sewed up when the Giants took their turn at bat in the seventh inning. Lefty Tyler had held them hitless through five innings, and the first New York run, which arrived in the sixth inning, was the result of a hit batsman and a pair of scratch hits. The visitors had previously driven Art Fromme to cover, and were continuing their bombardment against Otey Crandall, though with less success from a scoring standpoint. With the score 4 to 1 against them the Giants got busy with Tyler in the seventh inning, and before the second out had been made they drove the Boston southpaw from the mound with four hits, tying the score. Big Bill James, who succeeded Tyler, was touched up by Burns, the first New Yorker to face him, for a double, which chased in the deciding run.

The early innings presented numerous Boston opportunities, most of which were allowed to slip away. In the opening inning a pair of triples and a pass with only one out netted only one run. In the fourth inning the Braves got three singles and a pass off Fromme with only one out, and this collection again netted a single marker. They picked up eleven hits off Fromme and Crandall in seven innings, failing only in the third chapter to hit safely. After the Giants had forged to the front in the seventh inning through their cannonade of hits McGraw called upon Mathewson to hold the visitors safe, and only six batsmen faced him during the last two innings.

The two final innings of the first game served as a warm-up for Matty, and he was again on the mound for the Giants when the second game began. For six innings he had the Braves helpless, holding them to two clean singles and one scratch hit. With the score 9 to 0 in New York's favor Matty drew a vacation in the sixth inning, and Crandall finished the game. Jim Thorpe was sent in to bat for Mathewson in the sixth inning, and he took three big swings, thereby earning the distinction of being the only New Yorker to strike out during the game. The Braves got half of their eight hits in the ninth inning, touching up Crandall for a triple, a double, and a pair of singles before the first out had been made. This belated rally furnished two runs.

The ambition of every ball player—though few have it gratified—to pole out a home run with the bases full fell to the lot of Larry Doyle in the fifth inning, and settled all doubts about the outcome. With Matty on third, Herzog on second, and Fletcher on first, all as the result of singles off Otto Hess, the New York Captain gave the ball a Frank Baker massage and it floated into the crowd in the lower section of the right field stands. Matty jogged along the line while the remainder of the parade was getting into close formation, and the quartet of runners ambled across the plate only a few feet apart. Merkle followed Doyle with a drive into the centre field pansy bed, but it netted him only a triple, a muff by Catcher Brown at the plate allowing Merkle to score.

A great jumping catch by Larry Doyle, robbing John Titus of a double or triple, was the fielding jem of the second game. Doyle propelled himself into the air as far as he could jump and came back with the ball tightly encased in his glove. A similar catch by Rabbit Maranville of the Braves had cost Merkle an extra base hit in the opening game.

Connolly, McDonald, and Burns carried off the honors with the stick. Connolly got three triples and a single in nine trips to the plate during the two games, McDonald got five singles in eight attempts, and Burns, who has been hitting poorly of late, treated himself to four singles and a double in eight chances. The scores:

Two New York Players Shifted.

Infielder Claude Derrick, who has been with the Yankees since the beginning of the present season, has been released to the Athletics. Derrick was formerly a member of Connie Mack's team, but was turned back last year to the Baltimore Club of the International League. The Yankees obtained him from Baltimore, and recently, when an attempt was made to turn him back to the Rochester Club, Manager Jack Dunn of Baltimore filed an objection. Dunn declared that Baltimore was entitled to first choice on the player. It is presumed that Manager Mack of the Athletics secured him for Baltimore.

Pitcher White of Georgetown University, recently signed by the Giants and later released unconditionally because the Giant squad was above the twenty-five limit, has been signed by Manager Mike Finn of the Mobile Club. The deal was made through the New York Club, which holds options on several players now with Mobile.

Johnson to Suppress Rowdyism.

CHICAGO, June 26.—President Ban Johnson of the American League to-day declared relentless war on rowdyism on the ball fields. In discussing the suspension of Joe Jackson of Cleveland, the league executive said he was determined to suppress outbreaks of roughness and that as an example Jackson's suspension was made indefinite. Rowdyism seriously hurt the game in Cleveland some years ago, according to President Johnson.

BROOKLYN STRIKES BLOW TO PHILLIES

Two Victories Push the League Leaders Down Close to the Giants.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., June 26.—Brooklyn broke the Phillies' streak of six straight victories to-day by hammering out two victories in a double-header. Scores—First game, 5 to 2; second game, 4 to 2.

The first game was a thriller and lasted fourteen innings. It went to the Dodgers when Luderus lost his head. With one out in the fourteenth, and runners on second and first bases, Smith hit to Luderus. The latter fumbled the ball, but recovered it in plenty of time to touch the bag or Smith. Instead, Luderus threw to Seaton, who was standing away from the bag. Then came some bad throwing, and before the Phillies had settled down the Dodgers had scored three runs.

A triple by Moran and a single by Cutshaw in the first inning, and a double by Smith and a single by Hummel in the second, gave the Dodgers a pair of runs. Rixey then settled down and for the next five innings only one hit, a double by Wheat, was made off him. Rixey was taken out of the game in the seventh inning to permit Dolan to bat for him. Seaton took Rixey's place on the rubber.

For five innings the Phillies drew blanks, although they got a pair of singles in the second and another pair in the fifth. Rucker used a change of pace which baffled the home players.

There came a decided change in the sixth, when Luderus led off with a single and Lobert bounced the ball into the left centre field bleachers. It looked as if a fan reached out and touched the ball, and the Brooklyn players' claim of interference was allowed. Although the alleged interference in no way affected the fielding of the ball, Luderus, who had crossed the plate, was sent back to second base, and Lobert, who had reached third, was ordered back to first base. This decision prevented the Phillies from tieing the score and the best they could do was to get one run on Magee's sacrifice bunt and Cravath's sacrifice fly to Stengel.

A wonderful bit of fielding saved the Dodgers in the seventh. With men on second and first bases and one out, Luderus drove the ball on a line over Hummel's head. The latter went into the air and pulled down the horsehide with one hand. The catch robbed Luderus of a two-bagger and prevented both runners from scoring and the Phillies from taking the lead.

The Phillies tied the score in the eighth when Lobert tripled and scored while Magee, who drew a pass, was being doubled up with Cravath. Each team had only one good chance to score from that point until the thirteenth inning, when a double play, with Doolan on the big end, blanked the visitors.

Alexander and Curtis went to the rubber in the second game. In the sixth inning, while Smith was at the bat, a foul tip tore a gash in Manager Dooin's hand. Charlie left the game and a physician dressed the injury.

The Phillies scored first in the fourth inning, Luderus tallying the run after making a double to right centre. The next tally came in the sixth, Cutshaw and Stengel scoring for Brooklyn. The Phillies scored their second and last run in the seventh, while Brooklyn clinched the game by tallying two in the ninth on doubles by Smith, Hummel, and Fischer. The scores:

Athletics Continue to Bat Hard and Win Two Games from Senators.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Philadelphia took both ends of a double-header to-day in a walk, defeating Washington 11 to 2 and 10 to 3. The visitors continued their terrific hitting, and batted Mullin from the box in the first game and Groom in the second. For the visitors, Plank pitched a steady, winning game in the first, while in the second Bender, who relieved Brown after the locals had scored two runs, simply toyed with Washington. The only run scored on him was by Ainsmith, who singled and was allowed to steal all the way home, the Indian deliberately holding the ball until after the runner crossed the plate. The scores:

WILLIAMS DEFEATS DAVIS CUP PLAYER

WIMBLEDON, England, June 26.—The American players again figured prominently in the English lawn tennis championship tournament to-day. Maurice E. McLoughlin of San Francisco was not required to play, having successfully finished the round yesterday. This left R. Norris Williams, Craig Biddle, and Wallace F. Johnson, the Philadelphia trio, to compete. The two first named won in the singles, while Johnson, with G. Zinn as a partner, came through the second round of the doubles.

The match between Williams and R. F. Le Sueur, the South African player, was the main attraction and large crowds gathered round the centre court. Williams won in straight sets, 8—6, 8—6, 7—5. While the match was being played, Craig Biddle on another court beat F. H. Jarvis of England by 6—1, 6—3, 7—5. The play is this match was very one-sided until the third set, when Biddle had to do some smashing in order to win in straight sets.

Johnson and his partner, Zinn, drew an easy match in the first round, but to-day they were extended to beat Stoddart and Watts of England by 6—3, 9—7, 6—4. As in the first round, Johnson was compelled to bear the brunt of the match and successfully carried his partner through.

The match betwen Williams and Le Sueur was marked by hard fighting throughout. The American went off in the lead of two games, but then fell away. His driving became less certain and the South African took the lead twice during the set. Williams then, however, took command and won three games in succession and carried off the set.

In the second set the South African was within a point of winning the set at the tenth game, but the American then equalized and ultimately won by some splendid sideline drives and clever cross shots.

Williams continued his forcing tactics in the third set, but Le Sueur held him well until the score was 5—5. That was the South African's final spurt, and Williams took the last two games with ease and with them the set.

Johnson was scheduled to play G. A. Caridia of England, but the latter scratched, leaving the Philadelphian at liberty to engage in his doubles match. The Canadian player, R. B. Powell, beat W. C. Crawley, one of the best players in England, in straight sets, 6—2, 6—4, 6—2, and in a second match later in the day defeated V. R. Gauntlet, the South African Davis Cup player, by 4—6, 6—1, 6—3, 7—5.

A. W. Gore, a former British champion, beat B. P. Schwengers, the Canadian champion, by three sets to one, the score being 6—1, 6—3, 4—6, 11—9. J. C. Parke of the British Davis Cup team beat A. H. Lowe, another English player, three straight sets, 7—5, 6—0, 7—5.

WASHBURN BEATS HALL.

Middle States Tennis Championship Reaches Final Round.

W. M. Washburn played true to his form yesterday in the semi-final round of the men's singles for the Middle States tennis championship on the Orange Tennis Club courts when he defeated Walter M. Hall two in three sets by the score of 3—6, 6—2, 6—4. Hall took the measure of Washburn in the first set and appeared to advantage over his opponent, but the latter braced in the second set, and by dash and speed easily passed Hall on many shots and won 6—2. With one set each the two players rallied in the third set, but when the issue came after the eighth game Washburn outplayed Hall and won the right to play Gustave F. Touchard in the semi-final round. As Wallace F. Johnson, the present champion, defaulted owing to his selection to represent the United States in the Davis Cup matches in Europe, the winner of this match will play Dean Mathey, who qualified for the final round by defeating C. M. Bull, Jr., in three hard sets.

Holcombe Ward, the former national champion, was paired with W. H. Mills in the doubles, and won from Bragau and Fisk in straight sets. Ward was aggressive and carried off the bulk of the playing. Dr. Rosenbaum and Dionne found Glazebrook and Reimer a hard proposition, two of the three sets played going to vantage for a decision.

Grant to Play Man in Finals.

HARTFORD, Conn., June 26.—The semi-finals in the singles in the annual New England tennis tournament were reached this afternoon, the victors being Wylie C. Grant of New York, national indoor champion, and A. H. Man, Jr., of Yale. They will play to-morrow for the championship. Grant outgeneraled E. R. Hastings, Jr., of Harvard, winning the last two sets with ease, after Hastings had exhausted himself in taking the first set. The scores were: 8—10, 6—0, 6—2. Man had no difficulty in defeating G. C. Burgwin of Trinity, 6—0, 6—4.

C. E. Bacon and J. A. Richards of Wesleyan, New England intercollegiate champions, sprang a surprise by defeating A. H. Man, Jr., and E. W. Peaslee of Yale in the semi-finals in the doubles, 5—7, 6—2, 6—3. Man and Peaslee won the title last year. W. C. Grant and R. H. Cole defeated J. A. Holcombe and P. Roberts, 7—5, 6—1. Grant and Cole will play Bacon and Richards for the title in the doubles to-morrow afternoon.

Giants and Yankees to Play.

A baseball game between the Giants and the Yankees will be played at the Polo Grounds early next month for the benefit of the Newsboys Home. The tickets for the event will be placed on sale to-day. A special effort is being made to make this benefit a big success, as the proceeds will go toward the fund of $50,000 which is being raised for the "newsies." Manager McGraw and Manager Chance will both put their best teams in the game, and the contest will not only be a treat for the youngsters but will arouse much interest among the rooters for the rival clubs. The ball players have offered their services, and the arrangements are being made by a press committee. The novelty of such a game between the teams of the two leagues in mid-season is sure to excite much interest.

SEE A GREAT FIELD FOR MOTOR TRUCKS

Makers Elated Over Prospect of Tests by Army Board.

Motor truck manufacturers are elated over the recent announcement from Washington that the United States will test officially the commercial motor vehicles for the army. The makers are confident that a thorough test will demonstrate the superiority of the motor truck over the horse and the mule for army use, and that it will become part of the regular equipment before long. A board made up of officers representing all branches of the service, it is said, has been appointed to make the investigation. The date and conditions of the test, it is expected, soon will be announced. Various army problems have been simplified by the use of the motor truck in foreign countries. Truck makers here believe that similar satisfactory results will be shown for the United States Army, and they therefore anticipate a brisk business in supplying trucks. As G. W. Bennett, one of the makers, put it: "We are confident that the truck will make an excellent showing, and if this proves true, we will have a vast new market opened for our product."

Motorists who make use of the River Road leading from the Edgewater ferry to Fort Lee Hill should exercise caution, according to the touring department of the Automobile Club of America, since the hilly portion is full of holes and is in a dangerous condition. Automobilists bound for New Jersey points are advised to use the Weehawken ferry. Another route to northern Jersey and that part of New York State just west of the Hudson may be found by taking the east shore of the river through Yonkers and Dobbs Ferry to Tarrytown, and then ferrying to Nyack. From this point a good macadam road leads to Suffern on the main route to Tuxedo and Newburg. The West Point route may also be followed from Nyack.

On the main route from Boston to Salem, Mass., a detour of about a mile will be necessary during the next two weeks, where the road is closed between Revere Beach and Lynn. The detour is easy to follow, since it has been well posted. Motorists making the trip from Worcester to Lowell will find excellent road conditions. The route by way of West Boylston, Clinton, and Harvard is good practically for the entire distance.

A motor truck with hydraulic drive hauled a load yesterday which proved too much for the pavement of Broadway to bear. At Cedar Street the wheels of the trailer, which the truck was pulling, went down nearly to the hubs. On the trailer was a vault door for the Clearing House, weighing thirty tons. The trailer itself weighed ten tons, while the truck, weighing five tons, carried about six tons of ballast.

Detroit's first completed cycle car made its appearance on the streets this week. The little car, called the Carnation, and built by the American Voiterette Company, has a four-cylinder engine of 3¼-inch bore by 3¾-inch stroke, a 44-inch tread and a 100-inch wheel base. The car drives from the centre with a right-hand shift, and uses wire wheels and 30 by 3-inch tires. It is made in three-body models, one seating two passengers tandem fashion, another a four-passengers touring car, and the third a runabout, seating two side by side in the usual way.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Advertising Catalogues Denied Free Entry—Other Decisions.

It was decided yesterday by the Board of United States General Appraisers that certain trade catalogues are not free of duty under the Tariff act of 1909. William Prestler, of Toledo, took exception to duty at 25 per cent. ad valorem as printed matter, and claimed free entry on books intended for gratuitous distribution. Judge Fisher held that advertising matter of the sort before him was not exempt, and affirmed the Collector.

William Larzelere & Co. of Philadelphia were defeated in a controversy regarding duty to accrue on galvanized strips of iron in coils in varying lengths. The merchandise, which was described as material for the manufacture of flexible metal tubing, was returned at 45 per cent. ad valorem under Paragraph 199, as manufactures of iron not specially provided for. Various claims for lower duty were made.

It was decided by the Board that pin and needle sticking machines imported by the Boye Needle Company of Chicago must pay 45 per cent. ad valorem under the provision in the present law for manufacturered products of metal. The company asked to pay 30 per cent. under Paragraph 197, as machine tools. Judge Fisher gave the decision.

Gowns May Be Entered in Bond.

Members of the Dress and Waist Manufacturers' Association are elated over the action of the Senate Finance Committee in the matter of gowns which are imported for purposes of adaptation. The present duty on these gowns is 60 per cent. ad valorem, and the high prices demanded for them in foreign countries make their landing cost almost prohibitive. The association asked for a drawback allowance of 99 per cent. when the model gowns were re-exported or surrendered to the Treasury Department. The Finance Committee, however, has made a provision for these models to be entered in bond. The bonding privilege will be extended only to bona-fide manufacturers. Style brokers must continue to pay the full rate of duty. According to Secretary Bartholomew of the association the amendment provides that the models must be kept in the factory of the manufacturer by whom they are imported. They must also be re-exported at the end of six months. Under this arrangement no duties will be paid.

Tea Controversy Near Climax.

Oliver C. Macy of Carter, Macy & Co., tea importers, who have been notified by the Treasury Department that $20,000 worth of rejected Formosa tea brought here by the firm would be destroyed under the direction of Collector Mitchel if it were not exported by Saturday noon, would not say yesterday what disposition would be made of the tea in question. No information could be obtained at the Custom House. Litigation over this tea has been going on for months, and has attracted much attention in trade circles.

Newark to Provide for Leather Measuring.

A special session of the Newark Common Council will be held to-night to adopt an ordinance covering the measuring of leather to be shipped into Massachusetts from that city. This action will be taken to protect the interests of the Newark leather manufacturers. It was made necessary by the passing of a law in Massachusetts, effective on July 1, which prohibits shipment of leather into that State unless it has been measured by a certified measurer. The purpose of the proposed ordinance in Newark is to give the city sealer of weights and measures power to swear in measurers at each leather factory.

Raw Silk Prices Still Rising.

Prices continue to rise in the Yokohama raw silk market. Current quotations are fully $15 a picul higher than those of last week. Tram silks are very scarce there. It is estimated that the Italian crop will fall 25 per cent. short of last year's, and reelers are asking very high prices for new silk. Cocoons are advancing steadily at Milan. The Shanghai market has been quite active in the last few days, and both it and the Canton market are firmly held as to price. August is the earliest date at which shipments can be had from Shanghai, for stocks there are exhausted. Despite the advances in the primary markets and the continuation of the silk strike here, business was fairly active in New York.

BUSINESS NOTES.

A. H. Morgan & Co., 200 Fifth Avenue, manufacturers of petticoats, will move in a few days to new quarters in the building at 122 West Twenty-sixth Street. A long lease has been taken of the fourth loft there.

According to cable dispatches received by H. L. Gwalter & Co., 95 Madison Avenue, sales of raw silk at Yokohama in the last week amounted to 1,500 bales. Shipments in the same period were 1,700 bales, of which 1,300 bales came to this country. Stocks there are now reduced to 1,250 bales.

SIDELIGHTS ON SELLING.

Monogram belts made up in the initials of the college fraternities are among the newest novelties offered in the jewelry field.

Sashes, particularly those of bright colors, are being worn extensively by women this Summer. The bathing cap usually has a band or bow of the same ribbon.

One of the newest devices for changing women's watches into the expansion bracelet type now so popular is a circular rim attached to the bracelet. Into this rim, which has a locking device, the watch may be slipped easily. Once locked in the rim the watch is firmly held, but it may be taken out and replaced as often as desired. While in the rim the watch lies flat against the wrist of the wearer.

CONSULAR TRADE NOTES.

The Governor General of Australia has issued the following regulation, under the Quarantine act, to prevent the introduction into Australia of the codling moth:

"The importation is prohibited into the State of Western Australia of (a) walnuts from the State of California wherever such walnuts may have been grown; and (b) walnuts grown in the State of California wherever such walnuts may have been shipped."

Cotton growing in Korea this season is reported to have extended to 35,000 acres, against 15,000 acres last season.

The absorption of a big oil field concern of Trinidad by a British petroleum syndicate has created public fear there that it is an attempt to monopolize the oil trade of the colony. It is reported from London that the transaction has made it difficult for independent oil field developers in Trinidad to obtain money.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

THE ST. DENIS HOTEL COMPANY.—The St. Denis Hotel, at Broadway and Eleventh Street, was put into bankruptcy yesterday by three small creditors, and Judge Hand appointed Arthur H. Gotthold receiver; liabilities said to be $55,000 and assets probably $15,000. The bankruptcy petition was filed against the St. Denis Hotel Company, which has carried on the business since March, 1912, by Myers & Goldsmith, attorneys for these creditors: Charles M. Atkins, $150 for rental of a painting; Elite Steam Laundry Company, $400, and William P. Rooney, $263, insurance premiums advanced. It was alleged that the company was insolvent, made preferential payments of $2,500, and on June 25 admitted in writing inability to pay its debts and willingness to be adjudicated bankrupt on that ground. Hoadley, Lauterbach & Johnson, attorneys for the company, consented to the appointment of a receiver.

WILLIAM C. BEUTEL & CO., INC.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against William C. Beutel & Co., Inc., wholesale dealers in imported beers and other beverages at 403 East 81st Street, by these creditors: Frank J. Funda, $200; William Babor, $132, and Peter Rathje, $300. It was alleged that the corporation was insolvent and made preferential payments on June 17 to Peters & Heine, $141, and the New York Bottling Company, $112. The business was started twenty years ago by William C. Beutel and was incorporated on Jan. 23, 1913, with capital stock of $25,000, and Mr. Beutel as President. Judge Hand appointed Appleton C. Clark receiver, bond $10,000, on consent of Emil G. Rupprecht, Vice President and Treasurer of the corporation, and Leo Kanders, Secretary. Liabilities are $30,000 and assets $20,000.

HENRY B. LASKEY.—Henry B. Laskey of 170 Third Avenue has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $2,060 and no assets. Of the liabilities $1,310 is for rent of 865 Sixth Avenue for three years, where he formerly had a pawnbrokers' sale store, and $750 is for borrowed money.

EDWARD MARTIN.—Judge Hand has dismissed the petition in bankruptcy filed on May 9 against Edward Martin, furrier, of 10 and 12 West Thirty-eighth Street, on a settlement with creditors at 33⅓ cents on the dollar. Liabilities were $42,140.

IVY HAT COMPANY.—Judge Hand has appointed John L. Lyttle receiver for the Ivy Hat Company of 549 Eighth Avenue and 324 West 125th Street, bond $1,000. It was stated that a City Marshal levied on considerable stock on an execution of $329 in favor of Tweedy & Hurd, and the Marshal gave a receipt for 600 straw hats and 400 caps which he removed.

CHARLES SIMON SONS, INC.—A meeting of creditors of Charles Simon Sons, Inc., wholesale dealers in hosiery and underwear at 15 Union Square, was held yesterday at the office of Stanley W. Dexter, referee in bankruptcy, at 71 Broadway, and Holmes J. Corbett was elected trustee, with a bond of $25,000. The referee authorized a sale of the assets at auction. Liabilities are $253,843 and assets $49,538.

BALKIND JOSEPH & CO.—Amended schedules in the bankruptcy of Balkind Joseph & Co., manufacturer of clothing specialties, at 836 Broadway, have been filed in accordance with an order of Judge Hand, including Adolph Arons as a partner, and directing that his assets be included in the firm's assets. Mr. Arons withdrew from the firm on Jan. 25, but creditors, it was claimed, were not notified of his withdrawal, and he went into a clothing business at Waterbury, Conn., alone. The liabilities of the firm when Mr. Arons was a partner prior to Jan. 25, are $40,432, and assets $35,119. The liabilities of the firm after Jan. 25, when Messrs. Balkind and Joseph were the partners, are $90,964, and assets $37,833. Mr. Arons's liabilities are $20,562, and assets $13,825, consisting of stock and fixtures at Waterbury, $12,000, and cash in a trust company there, $1,325.

THE PANHELLENIC.—Schedules in bankruptcy of The Panhellenic, (corporation,) publisher of a Greek newspaper, at 26 Vesey Street, show liabilities $15,536, and assets, $2,952, consisting of machinery and fixtures, $1,000; note of S. A. Xanthaky, $1,000, and accounts, $952. Among the creditors are Socrates A. Xanthaky, $4,376, loans and salary; Demetrius J. Vlasti, $5,184, and Apostolo Ringa, $1,249.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

Wheat closed at a net loss of ⅜c. to ⅝c. Corn final prices were ⅜c. to ½c. net higher. Oats prices closed steady, net unchanged to ¼c. lower. Cottonseed oil showed net advances of 4 to 10 points at the close. Cotton closed easy, at a net decline of from 7 to 15 points.

Sentiment in the wheat market was again unsettled by conflicting views on the crop situation, but on the whole the news of the day was somewhat more encouraging, and prices were easier under liquidation by recent buyers, closing at a net loss of ⅜ to ⅝c. Good rains were reported in Canada and in portions of Minnesota, and there were predictions of showers and cooler weather quite generally throughout the Northwest. Advices from the Southwest indicated increased offerings of new Winter wheat, and while cash markets were steady there appeared to be an absence of foreign demand for the new crop. The official Russian report placed the Winter wheat crop in that country at 276,000,000 bushels, compared with 237,592,000 last year, and the weather abroad was generally favorable. In the local cash market No. 1 Northern Spring wheat was quoted at $1.01½, cost, insurance, and freight, afloat.

CORN.

There was active buying in the corn market, credited to the same interests which have been on both sides of the market for several months. Prices were higher, closing at a net advance of ⅜@½c. Cash markets at the interior were firm, and considerable interest was attracted to an advance in the Southwest, where the weather was said to be hot. The foreign markets were easier, owing to estimates of large Argentine shipments. In the local market export corn was quoted at 68½c., nominal, free on board, afloat.

OATS.

The oats market was firm early with further active buying on recent unfavorable crop advices. Several authorities expressed more hopeful views on the crop, however, and longs sold freely on the advances and prices eased off, closing net unchanged to ¼c lower. The local cash market was steady. Standard white quoted at 46½@47c; No. 2, 47½c; No. 3, 46@46½c; No. 4, 45@45½c; ordinary clipped white, 46@47c; fancy clipped white, 48@49c, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

The provision market was quiet, with very small price changes in the absence of aggressive operations. The hog markets were again firm and receipts moderate. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 21,000; estimated for Friday, 17,000. Kansas City received 8,000 and Omaha 13,000.

COTTON.

The cotton market lost most of Wednesday's advance during yesterday's trading, with the close easy at a net decline of 7 to 15 points. Conflicting rumors as to the showing of the National Ginners' report helped to confuse sentiment during the day. The certificated stock of cotton now in New York amounts to only a little over 42,000 bales, so that the notices this morning can only be moderate. Liverpool was a seller of July again to-day, creating further uncertainty as to whether the interests who took up cotton for shipment abroad on May contracts will take up further supplies on July. If Liverpool people do not take up the cotton large local spot interests are expected to do so, although in that event it is thought possible that July may be allowed to sell under the price of August. The issuance of notices to-day may not fully eliminate nervousness over the old crop situation, but the market is now approaching a season of the year when probable new crop supply and demand condition must of necessity become the dominating factor.

After opening steady at a decline of 1 to 6 points, the market sold 5 to 10 points net lower during the early trading in response to disappointing cables, smaller English spot sales, foreign selling of near months, and scattering liquidation. Closing prices were the lowest of the day. Southern spot markets were unchanged, except for a decline of 1-16c at Houston.

COTTONSEED OIL.

The bullish sentiment in the cotton oil market showed no signs of abating, and prices advanced to new high records, with further active covering in the old crop positions, as well as on buying by refiners. Prices were well above the eight-cent mark, and offerings were small, owing to continued evidences of light stock, as expressed by the strength of the spot position. The new crop months were also higher in sympathy, and at the close the market showed a net gain of 4 to 10 points.

COFFEE.

Coffee closed at low, with a net loss of 22@26 points. Four days' continuous rain in Brazil was relieved by clearing weather, and the European markets failed to respond to the sharp advance in New York at Wednesday's close. In Brazil prices were generally steady, and cost and freight offers were in some cases higher. Receipts at Brazilian points were liberal, and the crops have now exceeded the popular estimates of eight and a half millions for Santos and two and a half millions for Rio. Havre showed a net gain of ¼@½f, while Hamburg was unchanged to ¼ pfennig lower.

There is a great deal of uncertainty among investors over the possible results on July 1st of the Supreme Court Decision, which, coupled with the extremely low prices at which the securities of these roads are selling, makes our analysis of the subject vitally interesting.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Prices Lower—Some Think Crest of High Money Rates Has Been Reached.

Trading was reduced to still narrower compass yesterday and the movement, as a whole, continued reactionary, although higher prices were established for a number of stocks in the first hour of trading. There was a disposition on one hand to lay stress on the importance of the financial community's understanding regarding the general character of the plan which will be emodied in the form of decree which is to be submitted to the United States Circuit Court for approval in the Union Pacific case. On the other hand, there was manifested a disposition to hold judgment in this matter in reserve and this particularly in view of the fact that it was not expected yesterday that the matter would be taken up in court until next Monday on the very eve of the day on which will end the extension of time granted by the Supreme Court. It was confidently expected that the matter would be adjusted satisfactorily, the statements made within the last few days by the Attorney General going far to remove any anxiety which was felt on the score that it might not be possible to formulate a plan which would be accepted by the Government and by the court. This conflict of viewpoint in respect to the Union Pacific situation found reflection in a further slight net loss in the price of Union Pacific, which was paralleled by the movement of the list as a whole.

A matter which contributed to the dragging tendency of the market was the placing of further issues of short-term securities at rates which supplied reminders of the very firm position of the time-money market. The State of Tennessee completed yesterday its negotiations for the money which it needs to provide for its bonds which mature July 1. The notes on which these funds are being raised were offered on terms which indicate that the State had paid 6 per cent. for its money. That is more than 1 per cent. above the rate which New York State recently paid on an eight months' loan. The difference reflects in part the fact that these Tennessee notes run longer than those issued by New York, and further, that in the interval a good deal of money has been absorbed by other borrowers, further lessening the supply available to others. A futher explanation of the difference lies in the fact that the notes issued by New York were available as security for deposits of State moneys, and these were considerably increased at the time of the note issue. The Tennessee issue has not enjoyed this special kind of support. For these reasons it is plain that the rate paid by Tennessee cannot be regarded as reflecting the credit of that State, between whose credit and that of New York no unfavorable comparison is being drawn. Even those in the very highest credit are being forced, if they borrow at present, to pay high rates. It is pertinent to inquire how fully the possible pressure upon the money market is measured by the rates which have been paid this week for the short-time accommodation which has been secured by the several classes of borrowers who have put out note issues within the last few days. It is interesting in this connection to record the opinion expressed in more than one banking quarter yesterday that it seemed that the crest of high-money rates for borrowers of unquestioned credit had been reached. This, of course, is but one banking view of a complex situation, but it is of interest because reflecting a more hopeful judgment regarding the outlook than has until this time prevailed in these quarters. Cash continues to flow to New York in large amount, showing the continued effect of the influences which have been set at work in the direction of re-establishing a normal condition in the money market.

The "Other Individual."

Oddly enough, the first name which occurred to Wall Street, when the story of an attempt to coerce the Union Pacific management into the employment of several men to grease the ways for the dissolution plan came out, was not mentioned by Judge Lovett in his session with the Senate Lobby Committee. The Union Pacific Chairman spoke of Edward Lauterbach and "another individual." The latter is a speculator and manipulator, to give him the kindest terms ever applied to him, who is aptly described as "the Wolf." Attempts were made yesterday to find the Wolf, but none of his occasional associates knew his whereabouts. At a brokerage house at 15 Broad Street, where he sometimes is to be found, it was said that he had not been seen for two weeks. Whether or not his name will be made known in the testimony to be given by other men who are expected to be called to Washington by the investigating committee depends upon whether he dealt directly with any of the Union Pacific interests or through an intermediary, his usual method of procedure being through an innocent looking third party. He seldom shows his hand, although there is generally little trouble in discovering his connection with enterprises in which he is interested.

The High Cost of Money.

A railroad President who recently sold an issue of short-term notes for his company was shaking his head yesterday over the price he had been compelled to pay in order to interest the bankers. "Borrowing money is like buying locomotives," he said. "Sometimes we pay one price and a little later a much higher price for the same article. Just now we have to pay the top figure, but I am confident that if we could wait a while for funds we would be able to get much lower terms. In fact, the bankers told us so. Conditions seem very bad just now, they said in effect, but one of these days people will say to one another, 'Well, things are picking up,' and we will all be full of confidence again. We can usually buy our locomotives when the market is right, but we have to have money whether we like the price or not."

Union Pacific Plan Near.

While nothing to confirm such an opinion was announced after the meeting, it was generally understood yesterday that the Directors of the Union Pacific had confirmed changes in the dissolution plan made as the result of the conferences between Judge Lovett and Attorney General McReynolds in Washington Wednesday. It is now expected that the final decree will be handed down next Monday, which is the last day of grace allowed by the Supreme Court. It is considered likely that the proposal for an exchange of about $38,000,000 of Southern Pacific stock for Baltimore & Ohio shares held by the Pennsylvania will be approved, and that the balance of the stock will be disposed of along the lines proposed in the second alternative plan, with the Central Trust Company as trustee for the actual stock until buyers of the certificates issued against it satisfy the requirements regarding their interest in Union Pacific.

An Unsatisfactory Market.

Brokers dislike exceedingly a session of the stock market like yesterday's. There have been duller days in the year, and days when the chances of profits were less than in the languid seesaw movements of yesterday, but there have been few sessions when the execution of orders was so unsatisfactorily accomplished. Floor members of commission houses spent much time in grumbling about complaints from customers which came in over the telephone. They bought and sold at the best advantage possible, but stocks showed a disposition throughout the day that could best be described as "cranky," and when reports on their orders were handed to customers the figures were so far from quotations on the ticker at the moment that they frequently voiced, in forcible fashion, their opinion of the floor broker's ability. An illustration will show best the peculiar condition of the market. A broker received an order to buy 2,000 shares of Steel. When he called for offerings little stock was in sight, and before he had his quota the price had advanced half a point. As he took up the last hundred shares stock appeared in quantity, and by the time the broker's report had been received at his office, Steel had receded further than it advanced in the few minutes he was buying. Naturally, the man who had placed the order was not pleased as he compared his slip and the ticker tape. On the selling side stocks did not act in quite so contrary a fashion, but there were occasions when short sellers were disgruntled. Brokers did not attempt to explain the erratic undertone of the market. They expressed hope, however, that there would not be a similar session in many, many weeks.

Strife Among Car Makers.

From a casual examination the statement of earnings of the American Car and Foundry Company in the last fiscal year showed that the company did a satisfactory business. Income available for dividends on the common stock did not fall far short of twice the amount on hand at the close of the previous fiscal period. The report indicated that sales were considerably in excess of 1911, but it did not display the stress of competition which had to be met in getting contracts. It was said in quarters close to the company's management yesterday that the strife for business between equipment makers last year was more severe than in many seasons. "When a railroad called for bids on a piece of work," one statement said, "the car companies went after the contract with an axe. They seemed to feel that this would be the last order before the millennium."

Call Money in Heavy Supply.

One of the larger Wall Street banks, which in the past has usually set its minimum loaning rate for call money at 3 per cent., was a heavy lender on the Stock Exchange yesterday at 2 per cent. There was a great amount of funds available, but the demand was small. The lowest rate recorded, however, was 1½ per cent., against 1 per cent. on Tuesday.

Oil Melon Not Unexpected.

Wall Street was not taken unawares yesterday by advices from London telling of a proposed 100 per cent. stock dividend by the Anglo-American Oil Company, a former subsidiary of the Standard. Tips had been industriously circulated along Broad Street for several days that a melon would soon be cut, and considerable buying of the stock occurred in the Curb market on earlier days of the week.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Transactions in unlisted stocks yesterday were in considerably larger volume and advances were numerous. Anglo-American oil showed the greatest activity among industrial issues. The closing sale at 20⅝ was a gain of ⅞. Bonds were more active at fractionally lower prices.

BOURSES OF EUROPE

LONDON, Friday, June 27.—The Times in its City article to-day will say:

"The pressure for money was less yesterday. Only moderate totals of loans for the week were obtained from the Bank by the market. Discount rates gave way, bills being in demand and scarce; but their tendency hardened in the afternoon on the publication of the Bank return, which showed a decrease of nearly £500,000 ($2,500,000) in the reserve and an increase of nearly £3,000,000 ($15,000,000) in public deposits.

"Reports from Belgrade of fresh fighting among the Balkan allies caused the stock markets to open dull all around, dealers taking the precaution to mark down prices in anticipation of sales from the Continent. When it was ascertained that the Bourses were undisturbed by the above-mentioned rumors, and that in fact the Continental operators were rather inclined to buy their specialties, the general tone of the markets improved, but the volume of business passing was disappointingly small. Except for American shares, which were subjected to some selling pressure from New York, and Mexican railway stocks, which weakened slightly, owing to a certain amount of nervousness regarding further disturbances in Mexico, most markets closed remarkably steady at about the highest points of the day."

PARIS, June 26.—The Bourse opened heavy to-day. Later a better tone prevailed and the market closed steady.

Bargains in Bonds

We offer the services of a house which has no securities of its own for sale, but will serve its clients with critical judgment and careful analysis of all stocks and bonds recommended for purchase.

COMMERCE COURT IS IN HIGH FAVOR HERE

LAWYERS, TOO, DISTURBED

Conflicting Decisions Avoided Under Existing Arrangement—No Temptation to Partiality by Judges.

Representatives of large shipping interests deplored yesterday the stand taken by the House Democrats in caucus on Wednesday in favor of abolishing the Commerce Court. S. C. Mead, Secretary of the Merchants' Association, made a formal statement strongly in favor of continuing the court. B. D. Caldwell, President of Wells Fargo & Co., made public a copy of a resolution adopted recently by the Traffic Club of New York in favor of the continuance of the court. Mr. Caldwell is Chairman of the Public Affairs Committee of the Traffic Club.

Lawyers engaged in railroad and shipping cases also were of the opinion that to abolish the court would be taking a step backward. William C. Breed of the law firm of Breed, Abbott & Morgan, 32 Liberty Street, said:

"It will be unfortunate if the Commerce Court is put out of existence. Without the Commerce Court there is no such thing as uniformity in the decisions in shipping cases in the different Federal judicial districts. There are seventy-eight of these districts. Each district court will have the functions of the Commerce Court if the Commerce Court is abolished. The decisions of any one court, however, will be binding only in the single district. The courts of different districts may decide in opposite ways cases involving practically the same matters.

"Take a certain case we have now before the Interstate Commerce Commission. In case of appeal we now could take it before the Commerce Court and get a final settlement without much delay. The matter involved in the case affects practically every Federal district in the United States. If there were no Commerce Court we could bring an appeal in almost any one of the seventy-eight districts. If there were no Commerce Court we would have to look up the decisions on similar points made by these different district courts and then bring the appeal before a Judge whose past decisions gave promise of a favorable decision in this case.

"Before we could obtain a final decision we would have to wait until the case had traveled through the district court and through the United States Supreme Court.

No Temptation to Partiality.

"Before the Commerce Court was created there were varying and conflicting decisions on the same questions in many of the district courts. The shipping cases that came before the district courts frequently called for decisions in which the business interests of that particular Federal district conflicted with the business interests of some other part of the country. I don't like to say that a Judge is ever influenced by sectional prejudice, but of course a Judge is a human being. A Judge should not be asked to decide whether a business advantage shall be with the locality where he lives or with some other locality. The Commerce Court, a single body with a nation-wide jurisdiction, is in better position to be impartial and to be exempt from local influence.

"The Commerce Court has only been established since Jan. 1, 1912. If it continues in existence for some time, the Judges naturally will acquire a wide knowledge of the shipping conditions all over the country, and this will be of great benefit to litigants. I am not in favor of specialized Judges as a general rule. Lawyers pretty generally agree that specialization is likely to make a Judge narrow and that the wide experience of a Judge, who sits in all sorts of cases, qualifies him to go deeper into fundamental principles.

"There are exceptions to this, however, and the Commerce Court is one. In the first place, great experience and knowledge of the subject are required to understand shipping cases, because of the effect which a decision in any one case is likely to have on shipping in all parts of the country. Judges of the Court of Commerce gain an intimate understanding of the commercial interests of every part of the country, whereas a District Judge cannot be expected to be so familiar with conditions elsewhere as he is with matters in his own district."

Traffic Club's Views.

B. D. Caldwell, President of Wells Fargo & Co., when he was asked what his opinion was of the proposal to abolish the Commerce Court, said: "My opinion is expressed in the resolutions of the Traffic Club. I am Chairman of the committee which drew it up." Here are the resolutions:

> Whereas, the Congress of the United States has failed to appropriate the necessary funds for the maintenance of the Commerce Court beyond the first day of July, 1913; and,
> Whereas, the Traffic Club of New York, with a membership of 1,100, composed of the official representatives of the transportation companies and of the industrial and commercial shippers who supply the traffic tonnage, is organized to promote the mutual interests of its members; and,
>
> Whereas, the aforesaid Traffic Club of New York is deeply concerned in every agency created for the purpose of facilitating the prompt and efficient handling of traffic upon a basis equitable to all concerned; it is, therefore,
>
> Resolved, That, for the purpose of securing expeditious and competent adjudication of the manifold questions constantly arising in relation to matters of transportation, thereby giving aid to the Interstate Commerce Commission in the adjustment of differences and the enforcement of its regulations, it is the sense of the members of the Traffic Club of New York that provisions should be made for the continuance of the said Commerce Court, believing it to be greatly to the interest of the industrial and commercial enterprise of the country; and, be it further
> Resolved, That the Secretary of the Traffic Club of New York be and is hereby authorised and directed to transmit a copy of these resolutions, together with the preamble, to the President of the United States, to each member of his Cabinet, as well as to each member of both houses of the Federal Congress.

Important to Whole Country.

S. C. Mead, Secretary of the Merchants' Association, said: "I regard the continuance of the Commerce Court of vital importance to the whole country, and that to permit it to expire directly or by failure to appropriate funds for its maintenance will constitute a hardship to the whole country.

"Before the Commerce Court was created appeals from the Interstate Commerce Commission had to go to Federal courts, whose decisions were guiding only in their own jurisdiction. This resulted in conflicting decisions and brought about uncertainties which could not be cleared up unless the issues were passed upon by the Supreme Court of the United States. When the Commerce Court was created appeals went directly to it, and its decisions were equally binding in all parts of the country. The confusion that existed under the old system was done away with.

"The second great advantage of the Commerce Court is greater promptness in rendering decisions. Formerly a problem concerning shipping remained unsettled until it had waited its turn and finally been decided by the highest court in the nation. Another advantage, of course, is that which shippers derive from having their cases decided by Judges having the experience in shipping cases that the Judges of the Commerce Court must acquire.

"In time the Commerce Court, I think, would bring this other great advantage, by sweeping away the confusion and conflicting decisions, it would lessen litigations, and reduce that item of cost to shippers."

The Merchants' Association has already made its position known to President Wilson and the Chairman of the Committee on Appropriations.

Provision for meeting the $9,222,000 bonds of the State of Tennessee, which mature on July 1, was finally made yesterday through the sale of about $10,000,000 of temporary refunding bonds, bearing interest at 5 per cent. and maturing July 1, 1914, to Potter, Choate & Prentice and Harris, Forbes & Co., heading a strong banking syndicate.

The bankers announced that they would offer the new bonds in the near future on a 5½ per cent. basis, and that holders of the maturing bonds would have an opportunity of exchanging their bonds for those of the new issue. It is understood that the temporary bonds will be sold to large buyers on a 5¾ per cent. basis.

The new issue, like that which it refunds, is a legal investment for savings banks and trust funds in New York State.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

The Reorganization Committee of the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton announces that the plan for reorganizing the northern and southern divisions has been declared operative. Time for depositing bonds and certificates has been extended to July 10.

A comparative statement of values of public utility and railway securities has been issued for distribution by Kelsey, Brewer & Co. of Grand Rapids.

The proposed consolidation of the New York Central and the Lake Shore has raised so many technical questions that L. von Hoffman & Co. have had a map made by White & Kemble, showing graphically what the security issues will be after the consolidation.

GARFIELD CLEARED THE STEEL TRUST

Testifies He Told Roosevelt He Could Find No Abuses as He Did in Standard Oil.

NO UNFAIR COMPETITION

Hearings in the Government's suit to dissolve the United States Steel Corporation were concluded for the Summer yesterday with the examination of James R. Garfield of Cleveland, who was Secretary of the Interior under President Roosevelt, and prior to that, Commissioner of Corporations in the Department of Commerce and Labor. As Commissioner Mr. Garfield made an exhaustive report on the steel business.

"I had many conferences with Judge Gary," said the witness. "I told him the inquiry was to be searching, and he agreed with me that the Government was entitled to the fullest information. In the Fall of 1905, I think, I arranged a meeting with the President, Secretary Metcalf, and Judge Gary. I made a thorough investigation of the corporation, which put no obstacles in my way."

Mr. Garfield said that there had been no written report on the Steel Corporation, but verbally he had frequently told the President the result of his inquiries.

"I reported that I had not found any of the evidence of rebates or unfair competition that I had found in the Standard Oil Company," said the witness. "I did not discover any pools, either, although I had heard that they were common."

Mr. Garfield said that in 1907 President Roosevelt consulted with him relative to the proposed purchase of the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company.

"I told the President that I saw no reason why sanction should not be given," said the witness. "I told him the bureau had not found anything that would call for a prosecution of the Steel Corporation. I found no illegal or improper practices on the part of the corporation. I so reported."

Mr. Garfield said in the course of cross-examination by Judge Dickinson for the Government that he had never examined a witness under oath, although he had the right to do so. He had not examined the minutes of the corporation nor any witnesses outside.

Thomas G. Crawford, President of the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company, who was on the stand earlier in the day, said that he took charge of the plant upon its acquisition by the corporation in 1907, and had spent since $19,000,000 in bringing it up to date. He told of great savings brought about in the cost of producing iron and steel.

Mr. Crawford testified that many rails made by the old company had been rejected, among them a large percentage of rails supplied under contract to the Harriman lines. This was early in 1907, and Mr. Harriman had ordered 157,500 tons of open hearth rails at an advance of $1 a ton over Bessemer rails. The Government maintains that this at once put the company in the position of an actual competitor of the Steel Corporation, and of a possible rival which could not be ignored. Mr. Crawford endeavored to show that the Tennessee Company made such poor rails that it could never have been considered a real competitor of the corporation.

"The Harriman people were dissatisfied with the rails," said he, "and we got no further orders until 1909."

Within a year after the Tenessee Company was taken over by the Steel Corporation it began to make better open-hearth rails, according to the witness, and by 1909 90 per cent. of the "heats" were successful, as against 60 or 65 per cent. when the company was independent. A saving process now in effect has brought about a reduction in the cost of coke of $1 a ton. A creosoting process installed lately turns out timber which lasts five times as long as before being treated.

Mr. Crawford admitted that he made pig iron cheaper than he had in Pittsburgh. "The only way to save the investment in the district was to work it on the most efficient mechanical basis," he said.

REST SHOE MACHINE CASE.

Government Evidence In—Patent Question to be Taken Up.

BOSTON, June 26.—The Government to-day rested its case against the United Shoe Machinery Company which it is seeking to dissolve under the Sherman act.

By agreement of counsel, the patent question which is involved will be submitted to an examiner. The Government contends that the original patents on the principal machines of the defendants have expired and that other machines may be substituted for them without infringing on any valid patents. The court allows six weeks in which to thrash out the patent question.

Classes for ungraded children in Public Schools 21, 25, 95, and 107, Manhattan, will be continued for six weeks during the Summer vacation, provided the Summer School of New York University be responsible for obtaining the attendance of the children and furnish the materials and supplies as well as teachers.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Wireless observations from vessels in the Gulf of Mexico showed the presence of a disturbance on Thursday over the Middle Gulf. It is apparently moving north, northwestward, and advisory warnings of storm winds and squalls have been issued for the Middle and West Gulf coasts.

Warm weather was general during Thursday over the Plains States, the Mississippi and Ohio Valleys, and the interior of the South, with the highest temperatures over Kansas and Nebraska, where they approximated 100 degrees.

There were local rains during the last 24 hours on the Gulf coast and in the Middle Atlantic States, the regions of the Great Lakes, and the Rocky Mountains and California.

Warm weather will continue Friday and probably Saturday over the Middle Mississippi and Ohio Valleys and the interior of the Middle and South Atlantic and Gulf States.

Lower temperature will overspread the north Plains States and the extreme upper Mississippi Valley Friday.

The weather will be warmer Friday and Saturday in the North Atlantic States, while moderately cool weather will prevail over the Northwest Friday and Saturday.

There will be showers Friday and probably Saturday along the Gulf Coast and in the North from New England to the Rocky Mountains.

In the Middle Atlantic States, the Ohio and Middle Mississippi Valleys, and the interior of the Gulf and South Atlantic States the weather will be generally fair during the next forty-eight hours.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Woman Buys in Pearl Street—Twelfth Street Sale for Bath Building—$500,000 Investment in Flatbush for Congregational Home—Board of Brokers Changes Name—Good Business Leases.

The real estate field yesterday furnished several items of interest, including the purchase by a woman investor of a Pearl Street building, the acquirement of a $250,000 site in Flatbush for a new building for the Congregational Home for the Aged in Brooklyn, and a special meeting of the Real Estate Board of Brokers, at which important changes were made toward increasing the scope and influence of the organization in real estate interests.

The Pearl Street deal included the four-story business structure at 253 Pearl Street, a plot 23 by 113, which was sold for Frank Schiate by the Charles F. Noyes Company to Marie Talbot Constant.

The building was recently modernized and leased by the same brokers for five years to the Richard L. Walsh Company and Jacobs & Cohen. It is one of the few loft buildings in the vicinity covering more than a full lot. The property was held at $35,000, and the purchase was made for investment. David C. Bennett represented the buyer. The seller bought the building last November from the Lorillard estate.

Twelfth Street Deal for Bath House.

The Herbert H. Herrman Company has sold for Margaret Brown the three-story and basement building at 539 East Twelfth Street, between Avenue A and Avenue B, on lot 22 by 103.3. The purchaser will improve the property with a six-story bath house from plans being prepared by Henry B. Herts.

East 77th Street Deal.

Sigmund Meyer has purchased through the J. Romaine Brown Company the four buildings at 159, 161, 163, and 165 East Seventy-seventh Street, making a plot fronting 75 by 102. The property at 159 to 163 is occupied by three three-story dwellings, and was sold for J. Adler Townsend and Mrs. Ida Friese. The parcel at 165 is a five-story apartment house, which was sold for Leonard Weill. The new owner intends to improve the plot in the near future with a new structure.

Two West 160th St. Apartments Reported Sold.

An investor is reported to have purchased the two five-story apartment houses 531 to 537 West 160th Street. The structures occupy a plot 88.4 by 99.11. Daniel F. Mahoney and Julius E. Mucke are the owners of record.

The building is a seven-story structure and is owned by R. H. Davis. It covers a plot 33.4 front by 100.5 deep. Mr. Herckmans will vacate his present quarters to-day. He will make extensive alterations to the Holland Hotel, the chief of which will be the establishment of a large restaurant on the ground floor.

$500,000 Brooklyn Home for Aged.

The Congregational Home for the Aged in Brooklyn has just purchased for about $250,000 a large plot in the Flatbush section for the erection of a new home. The property has a frontage of 223 feet on the north side of Linden Avenue, between Bedford and Rogers Avenues, by 257 feet deep. The new building will cost over $200,000, making the total investment about $500,000. The present site of the home is at 125 and 127 Gates Avenue. The new structure will be three stories high, and plans are being prepared by the architects, Walter E. & W. A. Parfitt. The purchase of the new site was negotiated by Howard C. Pyle & Co. as brokers.

Brooklyn.

James A. Caufield has purchased from the estate of Timothy G. Sellew a plot of about seventy lots in the Bushwick section, bordering on the Queens Borough line. It has frontages on both sides of Jefferson Avenue and both sides of Hancock Street, between Irving Avenue and Wyckoff Avenue. The buyer is said to have paid about $140,000, and he will erect sixty-eight two-family brick dwelling houses, at an estimated cost of $450,000. The transaction was negotiated by Richard Goodwin.

Mead a plot 80 by 100, on Bay Twenty-fourth Street, 200 feet north of Benson Avenue, and for Henrietta Franz a plot 60 by 100, on the north side of Fifty-eight Street, 240 feet east of Twenty-first Avenue. The buyer gave in exchange a two-story brick dwelling at 7,709 Nineteenth Avenue.

Real Estate Board Changes Name.

The Real Estate Board of Brokers of the City of New York voted yesterday, at a special meeting held at 115 Broadway, to change the name of the organization so that hereafter it will be known as the Real Estate Board of New York. The purpose of the change is to widen the scope of the board and to increase its influence for the benefit of real estate interests in general.

The membership in the future will be divided into three classes—active, non-resident, and associate. The active membership, which is to be limited to 200, will be composed of brokers whose main office is in the City of New York. Non-resident membership will be composed of brokers whose main office is outside of the Borough of Manhattan. The associate membership is open to any owner of real estate or other person who is interested in the welfare and advancement of real estate interests.

It will be a brick and limestone structure, with a frontage of 154.7 feet on Broadway and 111 feet on the street, and will have a seating capacity of 2,095. Charles A. Platt is the architect, and has placed the cost at $150,000. The name of the lessee has not been announced.

PARK AVENUE PLAN VETOED BY GAYNOR

Continuation on Two Sides, He Says, Would Meet All Needs.

AGAINST LOWERING 34TH ST.

Points Out Damage to Property and Says the City Must Avoid Useless Expense.

Mayor Gaynor vetoed yesterday the plan for alteration of the crossing at Park Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street whereby the present steps would have been eliminated, the entrance to the street car tunnel would have been at Thirty-fifth instead of Thirty-fourth Street, and a continuous thoroughfare would have been provided on the east as well as on the west side of Park Avenue. That plan was suggested by Lloyd Collis of the Fourth Avenue Association, and had vigorous support from Borough President McAneny. Shortly before the Mayor's decision was given out, Mr. McAneny left town for Lake George. The Borough President will be back next Tuesday morning.

The proposal met bitter opposition from the start. Alfred G. Vanderbilt, owner of the Hotel Vanderbilt, and ex-Ambassador Bacon led the fight of residents near the Thirty-fourth Street corner of Park Avenue against it, and an alternative plan was suggested by which, while keeping Thirty-fourth Street as at present, a ramp would be constructed in front of the Seventy-first Regiment Armory so that traffic could flow uninterruptedly up the eastern side of the avenue.

Mayor Gaynor set forth thus his reasons for vetoing a proposal which had been adopted by the Board of Estimate:

"The proposition before me is to close the entrance to the tunnel between Thirty-third and Thirty-fourth Streets, fill in and make Fourth Avenue continuous from curb to curb in that block, lower Thirty-fourth Street six feet, run the said surface cars up to and over Thirty-fourth Street at grade, and then at the north side of Thirty-fourth Street to have the cars dip down again into the tunnel. To do this, the park in the centre of Park Avenue, from Thirty-fourth to Thirty-fifth Street, for nearly the whole length, has to be ripped out, thus leaving an open cut between Thirty-fourth and Thirty-fifth Streets.

"The damage which would be done to property by carrying out this scheme is manifest. The lowering of the grade of Thirty-fourth Street six feet will leave the houses on Thirty-fourth Street for a considerable distance on either side of Park Avenue above the new street grade. On the other hand, the lowering of the grade of Fourth Avenue south of Thirty-fourth Street will leave the property on the west side of Fourth Avenue above the new grade. The owners of the property in each case will be entitled to damages for the change of grade. And then the ripping out of the park in the centre of the street between Thirty-fourth and Thirty-fifth Streets will obviously damage the property on each side of Park Avenue.

"And if this thing be done, I am not able to see what is gained by it. Why should the surface road in Fourth Avenue be run up to and over Thirty-fourth Street only to immediately go down again into the tunnel under Park Avenue? Why is it not better to have such road enter the tunnel between Thirty-third and Thirty-fourth Streets as it does now? But it is said that passengers on the said Fourth Avenue surface road have to go up a flight of steps to Thirty-fourth Street in order to change cars to the surface road on that street, or to change from Thirty-fourth Street to the Fourth Avenue cars they have to go down the same flight of stairs, and that this inconvenience would be done away with.

"But this gain is more imaginative than real. All over the city we go up and down flights of steps to and from the subways and the overhead roads and we think nothing of it. The other alleged gain is that we will have Fourth Avenue entirely surfaced over and in use between Thirty-fourth and Thirty-third Streets, instead of having the cut which is there now approaching the tunnel. I do not see that this amounts to much. North of Thirty-fourth Street only the two sides of Park Avenue are available for travel, there being a park in the centre. All that is needed is the continuation of these two sides of Park Avenue down into Fourth Avenue on each side.

"This city must now avoid all expenditure which is not absolutely necessary, for the relief of real estate, which is burdened with the great bulk of all our expenditures."

SEPARATION FOR KRAMERS.

Supreme Court Justice Greenbaum granted a decree of separation with alimony of $9,000 a year to Mrs. Charlotte Elizabeth Kramer, wife of Albert S. Kramer of 115 East Sixty-fourth Street, yesterday. Mr. Kramer owns much real estate in this city, including a half interest in the Atlantic Garden, a large interest in the Thalia Theatre, a block of property in Elizabeth Street, and property in Riverside Drive.

Mrs. Kramer was the only witness called, as her husband did not defend the action. She testified that she married Mr. Kramer in 1908, and that they had two children, a boy and a girl. The witness asserted that her husband came home intoxicated often, and once threatened her with a revolver, which was produced in court.

In April, 1912, Mrs. Kramer testified, her mother died, and for a time her husband stopped drinking. He abstained for nearly nine months, she said, and then began again.

ARREST SELF-STYLED COUNT

Felix von Borsow, who referred to himself as "Count" in the West 100th Street Police Station, was locked up there last night on a charge of attempted bribery, made by Patrolman Fitzpatrick, who said the prisoner offered him $1 to release him. Fitzpatrick arrested the self-styled Count at Ninety-fourth Street and West End Avenue. In the station von Borsow, who was well dressed, protested that if he was locked up it would prevent his marriage in two weeks to a young woman prominent in society here. Later in the night James J. Mayer, a lawyer, of 117 West Tenth Street, visited the prisoner in the police station.

William G. Marguet, a clerk in the jewelry store of the Brandhier Company at 634 Fifth Avenue, said that von Borsow visited the establishment last Wednesday and selected a diamond engagement ring worth $350 and a silver cup worth $150, asking that they be sent to his rooms at 131 West Ninety-fourth Street. Marguet told the police that he went to the address given by his customer last night and that as von Borsow saw him from the stoop he ran away. Marguet followed, blowing a police whistle, and von Borsow was caught by Policeman Fitzpatrick. Then, the policeman says, his prisoner tried to bribe him. In the police station von Borsow said he came to this country from Frankfort, Germany, where he was a partner in a large manufacturing concern. He would not explain why he had tried to evade Marguet.

FOR BRIGHTER COURTHOUSE

Board Will Try to Give the Justices More Windows.

The Court House Board will have a conference this afternoon with the committee of Supreme Court Justices that has been considering Guy Lowell's design for a Court House. The bodies will meet in the chambers of Justice Greenbaum at 1:30 o'clock. Borough President McAneny and Controller Prendergast have been invited to be present, but Mr. McAneny is out of town. It is intended to go into the Justices' criticisms of Mr. Lowell's plan and to see if the modifications which he has announced his ability to make will meet their desires. The main objection is the impossibility, in the Justices' opinion, of providing in a circular building courtrooms with light from more than one side. Mr. Lowell believes that by doing away with the annular court he can provide a double set of windows.

The estimate of cost made by the Justices also will be challenged. They contend it would be from 75 cents to $1 a cubic foot. Mr. Lowell thinks the experience with big Federal buildings shows 50 cents would be a fairer estimate.

HOBART'S PERSONAL ESTATE

Special to The New York Times.

PASSAIC, N. J., June 26.—Surrogate Beggs in the Passaic County Orphans' Court to-day filed the intermediate account of the estate of Garret A. Hobart, Vice President of the United States in the first term of President McKinley.

Commissions of $4,677.22 were given to the trustees, Jennie T. Hobart, Edward T. Bell, William Barbour, and Albert A. Wilcox. The accounting was of the personal estate. It was estimated to be $1,484,555.04 on June 1, 1912, but it decreased to $1,465,962.74 on June 1 last. The personal estate is made up of bonds, mortgages, stocks, Public Service Corporation certificates, and the Hobart Mausoleum.

ACTOR KILLS HIMSELF.

Peter J. Schlicht, an actor, known on the stage as Al. Bellman of the team of Bellman and Moore, committed suicide in a fit of melancholy early this morning in the grill room of the Vaudeville Comedy Club, at 107 West Forty-fourth Street, by taking a solution of cyanide of potassium. Members of the club, including Moore, who were present called Dr. Louis Stern of 221 West Thirty-fourth Street, who was in the club. Schlicht died a few minutes after he had taken the poison.

McREYNOLDS YET HOPEFUL.

Pacifics Dissolution Conference—S. P. $30,000,000 Note Issue Balked.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—After a long conference to-day with Secretaries Garrison and Lane over the latest proposals for the dissolution of the Union Pacific-Southern Pacific merger, Attorney General McReynolds was still hopeful of an agreement between the Government and the railroads on a plan of dissolution before July 1, when the time for submitting plans to the United States court will expire. Details of the plan, the Attorney General to-day indicated, may not be given out until presented to the court.

PHOENIX, Ariz., June 26.—Although the California State Railroad Commission has acquiesced the Corporation Commission of Arizona to-day denied permission to the Southern Pacific to issue $30,000,000 in trust notes on the ground that the company had not sufficiently explained its purpose. It was feared, also, that the company would soon ask for permission to issue bonds to retire the notes.

It was understood that the Southern Pacific already had arranged to place the notes in New York at 97½. About $7,500,000 was desired by the company to reimburse the treasury for moneys advanced to the subsidiary lines. Part of the balance was needed for improvement of lines to the East.

EAST SIDERS FORM A WHITMAN LEAGUE

Another organization to promote the nomination of District Attorney Whitman for Mayor was formed yesterday. It is the East Side Business and Professional Men's League, and it comprises Republicans, Progressives, and independent Democrats in that part of town. Arnold Kohn was elected President; Joseph S. Rosalsky, a brother of Judge Otto Rosalsky, Vice President; A. L. Kass, Treasurer, and Louis J. Frank, Superintendent of Beth Israel Hospital, Secretary. Other members are Emil Kiss, Max Kobre, Henry G. Bralower, William Blau, Louis Schwartz, Mayer Schoenfield, James Horvath, Louis Zeltner, and Meyer Jarmulowsky.

The members of the new organization met in the State Bank Building, at 376 Grand Street, yesterday and passed resolutions indorsing Mr. Whitman for Mayor. To-day the members of the league will call on the District Attorney and present a copy of the resolutions to him. A committee of twenty-five from the league will call upon the Fusion Committee of One Hundred and Seven and urge that body to select Mr. Whitman as its candidate. The league plans to hold many Whitman meetings on the east side.

A large delegation representing the Colored Independent Democratic Party, headed by Dr. T. A. Johnson, called on the District Attorney at his office in the Criminal Court Building yesterday and pledged him the support of that organization. The delegates were received cordially by Mr. Whitman, and departed after he had thanked them.

The Nominating Committee of the Fusionists, which has been holding conferences with representatives of political organizations to decide upon a candidate for Mayor met yesterday and discussed the report it would make to the Executive Committee next week. The committee heard that many Progressives who announced themselves in favor of Mr. Whitman had changed their minds and wanted somebody else. These Progressives, it was said, were not at all satisfied with the activity of the Republicans in booming Mr. Whitman as their own candidate on the ground that they were making a partisan matter of his candidacy.

It was reported yesterday that the Progressives contemplated uniting on Mayor Gaynor as their candidate and that they would indorse him and the present members of the Board of Estimate if Tammany nominated the Mayor for re-election. While many of the Progressives are lukewarm on the matter of having all the members of their party enroll others are urging all to enroll as speedily as possible so that Mr. Whitman's name can appear on the primary ballot of the Progressive Party.

Henry Birrell, who is managing the campaign for District Attorney Whitman on behalf of the Whitman leagues, said last night that Whitman would be a candidate for Mayor if he had to run on the Republican ticket alone.

BAD MAN FROM VIRGINIA.

Telling all who cared to hear that he was a bad man from Virginia, John Palmer Hill strolled down lower Fifth Avenue last night. A string of double-decker buses and touring cars was in his wake. At Eighth Street Patrolmen Hettler, Werner, and Jackson of the Mercer Street Station, who had been attracted from various directions by the clamor, met the six-foot-two pedestrian. It required the efforts of all three to get handcuffs on him. The trip to the Mercer Street Station was uneventful.

In the police station John Palmer Hill, when the Lieutenant asked him his address, insisted he was "from the Kenesaw Mountains of Virginia" and was "some cow-puncher." The doorman informed the policemen later that that address was all right, except that there was only one Kenesaw Mountain; that it wasn't in Virginia, but in Georgia, and that cow-punchers were not indigenous to its soil. Now they are wondering whether "John Palmer Hill," the name he gave, is not merely a name employed for the occasion.

DAVID DOWS SUED.

Held in $1,000 Bail in Damage Suit Brought by Reporter.

On an order issued by Supreme Court Justice Giegerich on Saturday, Sheriff Julius Harburger and his special deputies arrested David Dows of 121 East Seventieth Street yesterday, in a suit for $25,000 damages for "false imprisonment, aggravated assault and battery," brought by Alva Johnston, a reporter for THE NEW YORK TIMES. Mr. Johnston's complaint set forth that he was attacked and held prisoner in Mr. Dows's home, when he went there at Mr. Dows's invitation to interview him in regard to his attempt to ride a trick mule at the circus.

Mr. Dows was convicted of assault in the third degree when he was tried on the same charge in Special Sessions. Sentence upon him was suspended. Mr. Johnston, through his attorney, Mortimer W. Solomon, filed the papers in the civil suit June 18. Mr. Dows after his arrest yesterday gave bail in $1,000, and was released.

ST. PAUL CERTIFICATES.

Potter, Choate & Prentice and Clark, Dodge & Co. have purchased jointly $3,000,000 Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway Company, Puget Sound & Willapa Harbor Railway five-year 5 per cent. trust certificates, due June 1, 1918, guaranteed as to the payment of both principal and interest by the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway Company. These certificates are issued by the United States Trust Company against the deposit with them of a like amount of stock, being all the shares of the capital stock outstanding of the Puget Sound & Willapa Harbor Railway Company, which the St. Paul has agreed to purchase at par for cash at the maturity of these certificates.

The Puget Sound & Willapa Harbor Railway has no outstanding indebtedness, and provision has been made that no mortgage or other form of security or charge may be placed upon its property during the life of these certificates. The interest, amounting to $150,000, is payable by the St. Paul before any dividends are payable on its $232,623,100 preferred and common stocks.

A large part of the issue having been disposed of privately, the bankers offer the balance at 98¼ and interest, yielding 5.40 per cent.

Collateral Under $25,000,000 Issue Made More Attractive.

Another change has been made in the collateral under the Missouri Pacific Railway $25,000,000 three-year 5 per cent. secured notes. The $5,000,000 Texas & Pacific Railway Company stock has been withdrawn and $2,500,000 face value St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern Railway first and refunding 6 per cent. forty-year gold bonds substituted. This brings the total amount of Iron Mountain bonds under these notes up to $22,000,000 par value.

The amount of St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern stock under the notes was reduced by $1,430,000, reducing par value of that company's stock still remaining under the notes to $1,070,000.

ADD PISTOL POCKET TO WOMEN'S SKIRTS

NARROW LINES TO HOLD

Louisiana Only State to Keep Size of Skirts Over a Yard and a Quarter at Bottom.

A pistol pocket is the latest thing in the smart woman's skirt. She is going to have two of them, in fact, the National Ladies' Tailors and Dressmakers Association has decreed, two patch pockets, one on each hip, and if she does not care for the pistol she can carry her powder puff in one and her purse in the other.

The convention of the association will open this morning in Room 634 in the Marbridge Building, but yesterday it had its latest models in suits on hand and a pretty young woman to try them on and show just how they will look. Skirts are to be no wider, one yard around, New York says, while Chicago is a little more generous, giving a yard and a quarter, but with two slashes, one at the front and one at the back, as the skirts are longer and need the extra opening for that reason. New York says only one front slash, with a silk petticoat repeating the color of the trimming of the gown showing beneath.

There is another important decision that the tailors have made—all the gowns are to open in the front.

Styles of different nations and different periods are combined in the different gowns. Sleeves are Japanese, coats are Napoleon, there is the Medici collar, and the skirts are perhaps American.

There is no talk by the national tailors of putting the women into trousers, but they can have one of the trouser effects on their gown, and this is seen in the cuff skirt. The "cuff" is at the bottom of the skirt, turned up from the lower edge as a man turns up his trousers. This is shown in a brocaded eponge of American make. It is an attractive skirt in a three-piece suit. It is made of one width of the cloth fitted with several long diagonal tucks in the front, leaving the back to fit, but loosely, so that there is room for sitting with comfort and no unpleasant drawing.

This is Isaac Cupler's New York suit: The coat cuts away in the front and tapers down in a long coat tail in the back. There is a full standing collar at the back of the neck.

There is an Imperator in women's suits in a pebble Matelasse and dark-blue broadcloth. It has the cutaway First Empire effect in the coat, drooping Japanese shoulders, and the Medici collar.

It is Chicago which has the pistol pockets in Max Finkelstein's Playmort suit of black and white Grecol cloth, and the double slit skirt goes with it. It is a nice, simple, little runabout suit.

The association, while it is in session, is to decide on the length of the skirt, width of sleeve, materials, trimmings, and lines of coats and skirts. New York, it is said, will win out with most of the things it has in mind, though no one will wish to take away Chicago's pistol pockets. Perhaps women can carry pistols in Chicago.

Louisiana is said to be the only staid member of the convention, still sticking for a two-yard skirt, no slashes, and shirt waists instead of a three-piece suit.

FOREIGN TRAVEL HEAVY.

Steamship Men and Foreign Railway Agents Report Big Traffic.

With the departure yesterday of the White Star steamship Celtic with 300 first-class passengers for Liverpool the total number of first-class passengers who have sailed so far this week for Europe is close upon 2,000, and the second-class traffic exceeds that figure. In addition the American liner St. Paul, Cunarder Carmania, and White Star liner Oceanic, leaving to-day and to-morrow, have few vacant berths.

The agents of the foreign railroads said yesterday that the rush of European travel within the past three weeks had exceeded their expectations. The Great Eastern Railroad reports big bookings over its Harwich-Antwerp route to the exhibition at Ghent; the Great Western is handling increased American tourist traffic between Queenstown, Waterford, and Fishguard, and the Southeastern and Chatham Railways have had to run their club train from London at 2:20 P. M. daily in two sections. The season started poorly so far as the cabin passenger traffic was concerned, but is now catching up rapidly, steamship agents said yesterday.

Chesapeake Note Issue.

The Chesapeake & Ohio sold yesterday to Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and the National City Bank $3,500,000 of 5 per cent. notes to mature June 1, 1914. No information as to the cost of the money was obtainable, and it was said by the bankers that the notes would in all probability not be offered to investors. It was said that no further financing would be needed for the year's requirements.

CAR AND FOUNDRY GAINS.

The American Car and Foundry Company reported yesterday net income in the fiscal year ended on April 30, amounting to $5,539,829 against $4,193,751 in the preceding year. From this total $2,211,236 was laid aside for renewals and replacements and $2,100,000 was paid out in dividends on the preferred stock. The balance available for the $30,000,000 common shares was equivalent to 4.09 against 2.46 per cent. in 1912.

The report said that the finances of the company were in a healthy condition at the close of the year and orders for new cars on the books were about the same as at the corresponding date in 1912. No damage was suffered from floods, although one plant in West Virginia was inundated in March.

"While buying in the aggregate during the year has been considerable in volume," said President Eaton, "it has been irregular as to time—orders being placed with regard rather to financial conditions than to actual needs. The company has had its fair share of these buying orders. The compactness of its organization, the efficiency of its plants and resources in the way of working capital at its command, have enabled it to meet the competitive conditions existing, and on the small margin of profit obtainable to produce what the management feels is, considering all circumstances, the very satisfactory net profit shown."

The balance sheet showed cash on hand amounting to $8,422,093 in contrast with $2,885,371 at the end of the previous fiscal year. That Friday Night Dinner

Of Hungarian Specialties, with wine, at one dollar, is the result of years of study. It has attained a reputation among good livers. No less famed is the jolly, genial atmosphere that permeates the Boulevard.

The Cabaret and Hungarian orchestra entertain with modern European and popular American melodies. For almost twenty years the Boulevard has been the only resort of its kind in America.

DESERT GOLD

By ZANE GREY

"A face haunted Cameron—a woman's face. It was there in the white heart of the dying camp-fire; it was living in the shadows that hovered over the flickering light; it drifted in the darkness beyond." As you see, romance glows in this headlong adventure on the Arizona-Mexico frontier. Some splendid horses, too!

IS IT ENOUGH?

By HARRIETTE RUSSELL CAMPBELL

This story of a musical genius who finally wins his way in New York has caught much of the spirit which made "The First Violin" famous. It is a story of his strange charm for one woman who, bewitched by his music, followed him and his fortunes. No more striking character has been created in years.

"Lenigan Made" Suits at $23.50

Formerly up to $50.00

¶ Every one of them made by the J. F. Lenigan Co., the most remarkable tailoring institution in the world and, in fact, the only wholesale custom tailors we know of; never before has any of this clothing been sold for less than $30.

¶ The very newest English models, fine English fabrics in more than half of them and not one single, solitary ear-mark of ready-made clothing about any one of them.

¶ There isn't a shred of haircloth or padding in any coat—soft-rolling lapels, high gored collars, slim slender sleeves, lean shapely trousers, and high-cut waistcoats.
